Hopkins Offers Tax, Labor Truce To Business

General Reforms Finished, He Says, Asking Capital Have Confidence

Des Moines, Feb. 24 (AP).—Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins tonight mapped a Federal program for business, based on "a desire to create an environment in which private capital will be encouraged to invest."

In a speech before the Economic Club here, Hopkins asserted such environment "can become a reality without compromising the great reforms which stand as hallmarks of this Administration's enlightened program."

Hopkins' Recommendations

The Hopkins' pronouncements on business—his first "policy" declarations since leaving the social welfare field of WPA—recommended:

No "general rise" in Federal taxes this year and amendment of levies which "tend to freeze the necessary flow of capital."

"Tolerance and fairness" from labor in dealing with employers.

An increased national income to provide jobs for the unemployed and to balance the budget.

Assistance for small business.

Lack of Confidence Fact

The former national WPA administrator, a native Iowan, recognized lack of business confidence as a "hard stubborn fact."

"It may be as real a deterrent to restored business health as any we have to deal with," he said. "I do not propose to ignore it."

In his brief reference to the taxing structure, the Secretary suggested that levies which retard business could be replaced "by increasing other taxes which do not have the same deterring effect."

He indicated his concern over condition of the railroads by suggesting the carrier situation be explored immediately "in the interest of labor, the investor, management and the public."

Until the rail problem is solved, he said, "it is difficult to hope for anything like a complete recovery in America."

He warned that businessmen "have to have money to hire workers" and asserted labor's contribution to a rising national income "must be tolerance and fairness in reaching just agreements with employers."

He termed a reconciliation of A. F. L. and C. I. O differences "as much in the interest of business as it is to the workers themselves"

He assailed "Government aid to business in which "special interest groups" seek privileges by the application of pressure.

"Business enterprises should progress by seeking the favor of consumers, not the partisanship of legislators or administrative officers of the Government," he said.

2 Sealing Ships Sinking in Gale Off Greenland

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 24.—A brief message at 4:45 p. m. today said two sinking Norwegian sealers, the Nuken and Saltdalingen, were "still afloat" in mountainous, icy seas 300 miles east of Cape Farwell, Greenland.

The message was picked up by the American-Scantic liner Scannpenn.

The Scannpenn started for the rescue from a point 270 miles from the sinking boats and reported her speed had been cut from 13 to 4 knots. Under present weather conditions it might take her more than two days to reach the scene.

President's Ship Sails 'Secretly'

Miami, Fla., Feb. 24 (AP).—President Roosevelt spent his sixth day at sea today—in the vicinity of the South Atlantic fleet maneuvers—but kept the position of his flagship, the Houston, a secret.

No word was received from the Houston all day. This indicated she was in the "war" zone of the contending armadas testing the defenses from an Atlantic "attack."

The President had hinted he would make no daily reports once the fleets settled down to fighting out "Problem 20."

Administration May Abandon Profits Tax

Morgenthau Seeks Means to Ease Business Burdens

The Administration, as a result of conferences with business leaders by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Undersecretary John W. Hanes, may consent to abandonment by Congress of the 2½ per cent undistributed profits tax on corporations, it was learned yesterday.

At the same time, it appeared possible that Congress might enact new corporation taxes at this session, as a result of Morgenthau's suggestion that the tax structure be re-examined to remove possible "deterrents" to business.

Representative Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, announced from a hospital bed that he favored inviting the Treasury to "co-operate with us immediately" in a study of the tax structure to make it more acceptable to business. The committee originates all tax legislation.

Special Taxes Remain

The so-called "nuisance" or special excise taxes expiring on June 30 must be renewed, Doughton emphasized, but he added that he was "not in favor of seeking additional revenue by increased taxes at this time."

Conservative Democrats in the Senate did not respond favorably to the intimation in Morgenthau's statement that taxes might be reduced to some extent by elimination of "deterrents." Senators Byrd, Virginia, Bailey, North Carolina, and King, Utah, expressed the belief that, so long as the present spending scale is continued, there is no possibility of reducing taxes.

The trend of Treasury thought, however, is definitely toward revamping the tax structure in such a way as to appease business. After unsatisfactory experimentation with a tax designed to force business to pay out profits in the form of dividends, Treasury authorities appear inclined to go back to the time-honored principle of taxation solely for the purpose of revenue.

Congress, in the 1938 revenue act, cut the undistributed profits tax, previously graduated from 7 to 27 per cent according to percentage of income retained, to a flat 2½ per

Sickness Thins Ranks of Sit-In Mine Strikers

Hazleton, Pa., Feb. 24 (AP).—Sickness from dampness and cold slowly depleted today the ranks of miners who have refused to come out of a deep anthracite shaft until their demands for back pay are met.

Fifty-six remained in the mine at nearby Oneida. Five have been brought up for treatment.

The others, bundling themselves in blankets in makeshift shelters 250 and 500 feet below the surface, repeated their challenge to the Wolfe Collieries Co. that they would remain until "our demands are met."

These, said John Breslin, vice president of the local union of the United Mine Workers, include payment of $28,000 in back wages the miners claim have been due since 1937, payment in cash of the pay roll due February 20 and offered in checks, and a twice-a-month pay schedule.

3 Crime Judges Needed, Say Civic Leaders

Docket Fell Behind With 2; Laws Shift Called 'a Mistake'

The need of three justices to preside over the District's criminal courts was stressed last night by civic leaders who called transfer of Justice Laws to civil sessions "unfortunate" and "a mistake."

Confidence that the District Court judges would enable the criminal bench to keep abreast of its work and further District Attorney Pine's "speedy justice" program was expressed by many citizens.

The transfer of Justice Laws, who broke open the Warring jury tampering scandal and yesterday jailed the five men implicated, was announced as a measure to deal with the congestion of the civil docket, which has more than 5,000 cases pending and is nearly two years behind its work. His transfer would leave only two justices in criminal sessions.

Assigned Last October

A survey Thursday, however, showed that two justices were needed on the criminal bench years ago, when there were only 1,200 to 1,400 indictments a year, compared with the present load of 1,800 to 2,000. The survey also revealed a direct association of piling up of criminal cases pending with the absence of the third justice.

Some of those who commented had the understanding that the transfer of Justice Laws was a routine change in assignment. The practice in District Court has been to leave a justice at the same duties for a year. Justice Laws was assigned to criminal court last October.

Others believed the pressure of the civil cases justified a reduction of the criminal bench.

Among those condemning the transfer was William R. Vallance,

McCall Compares Himself to Jesus And Dies in Chair

By the Associated Press.

Raiford, Fla., Feb. 24.—Calmly, almost defiantly, Franklin Pierce McCall died in Florida's electric chair here today for the fatal kidnaping last May 28 of 5-year-old Jimmy Cash, with whom he used to play at Princeton, Fla., where they lived.

McCall, who confessed the $10,000 kidnaping and pleaded guilty, insisted at the last he was innocent, compared himself to Christ and said:

"Judas Iscariot betrayed Jesus Christ for 30 pieces of silver. It would be interesting subject matter to know just how much some received who were instrumental in the perpetration of this present-day crucifixion. I hope that I may be pardoned for drawing a parallel between the Master's death and my own. The chief difference is He died for a cause—Christianity—while I am dying for nothing."

Babies born last year can figure on living 62 years, they were assured yesterday by the United States Public Health Service.

Warring Gets 26 Months in Jury Scandal

His Two Lawyers Freed, Upperman Draws Year; 3 Others Sentenced

Emmitt Warring, numbers baron, and four men sentenced with him began jail terms last night for tampering with the juries that tried Warring and his brothers for criminal conspiracy.

Justice Laws closed court investigation of "the ugly picture" by sentencing them yesterday, but commented that he was not satisfied that "all the true facts" were revealed about the "startling dishonesty" which led to the "shocking charges."

Justice Laws exonerated Attorneys Harry T. Whelan and William B. O'Connell of taking part in the plot.

Given Maximum Term

Emmitt Warring, 34, brains of the gang that ran a shoestring into a $2,000,000 gambling business in Washington, was sentenced to two years and two months on his pleas of guilty to using bribes of liquor and money to win acquittal in the conspiracy case, in which the maximum penalty was two years.

"I believe there is good in you," said Justice Laws. "It is my hope that when you are released you will try to build a different empire."

Upperman to Serve Year

John B. Upperman, 57, who ended a 12 year career as a trusted United States marshal in charge of juries with his confession that he sold out his trust of the Warring jury for $110 and several bottles of whisky, was sentenced to one year in jail.

"It is apparent to me that this affair has been a bitter experience to you," Justice Laws told the bowed, gray-faced Upperman. It is hard for me to punish any person, particularly one of your age who heretofore has sustained a good reputation. You have suffered. It may interest you to know that I have suffered also." The court said that but for Upperman's confession, and having given evidence against others accused the sentence would have been "much heavier."

Fine Gets 6 Months

Harry Fine, race horse handbook aide who confessed bearing Warring's offer of $600 for an acquittal to Juror Carl T. Denekas, was given six months in jail.

"It was apparent to me that you were working in this vicious assault on justice for money you hoped to get and which you demanded from Emmit Warring," Justice Laws told Fine. Warring swore that Fine "shook him down" and he feared Fine would set Denekas against him.

District Attorney Pine urged the court to be lenient with Fine, saying he "pleaded guilty like a man" and helped expose the corruption. Because of this, said Justice Laws, he gave Fine half the sentence he first had in mind.

Juror Denekas, who pleaded that the court "go a little light on me on account of my child," was sentenced to two months. He had told on the stand how he was offered the $600 and how he met Warring in a Connecticut avenue night club.

"You toyed with the commission of a terrible crime," said Justice Laws, "but it seems that your conscience, spurred by liquor or nervousness, brought you to a point where you insisted upon revealing the true facts to the court. . . . I am favorably inclined to you. It pleases the court that you brought about the revelation of this misconduct. However, I cannot entirely condone your misconduct."

Denekas sat four days in the jury box before he confessed to Upperman, who made the report and thus precipitated the exposure that soon involved himself. From this report came the whole investigation.

Thomas Harrison Quinlan, 29, a telephone company employe, who admitted conferring with Warring about whether two prospective jurors could be influenced and in-

Dies Aides Seek Ban on Storm Troops

Dempsey and Voorhis Also Would Require Deportation of Alien Communists

By Robert C. Albright.

Legislation bringing Nazi or Fascist "civilian military" organizations under Federal surveillance and making mandatory the deportation of aliens seeking overthrow of this Government may be reported this session by the House Committee Investigating Un-American Activities.

Influential members of the group are urging action at once to stem both Nazi and Communist agitation, on the basis of information already uncovered, it was learned.

Proposals by two members of the committee, Representative Dempsey, of New Mexico, and Voorhis, of California (Democrats), are before the group, and are expected to be considered on the return of Chairman Dies, now convalescing from an operation.

Would Ban Uniforms

The first is aimed at groups of the German-American Bund type, and would prohibit the forming of military units, the display of the swastika or other foreign flags, or the wearing of uniforms of a foreign government at meetings of such groups. Dempsey said it was designed to destroy the "emotional appeal" of such meetings.

His second measure, he said, would make it mandatory for the Secretary of Labor to deport any alien inciting to violence or publicly or privately "preaching" against this form of government. "There isn't anything in the Constitution giving special freedom to aliens," said Dempsey.

Representative Voorhis, who made it clear he was not speaking for the committee, which has a secrecy rule, explained two bills he has drawn covering the same subject.

To Rest With President

Voorhis proposed registration of "civilian military organizations" by making it illegal to organize or join such groups unless these societies had a permit from the President.

The President could license them under any conditions he saw fit, subject to revocation at his discretion without notice. All such permits would be reported to Congress, which would reserve the right to revoke them.

One section in the Voorhis measure authorizes the Secretary of War to require organizers or members of the groups to submit a sworn statement "of the proposed or existing purposes, activities, membership, mediums of propaganda employed or to be employed, present or proposed sources of financing" and other information.

Term Defined

His bill defines civilian military organizaztions as "any camp, school, society, fraternity, order, league, lodge, brotherhood, institute, or any group of two or more persons whatsoever which engages in, or meets for the purpose of engaging in, study, drill, or discussion of military or naval science, strategy, formations, functions, or methods, or the use of actual or imitation military or naval firearms, signals, symbols, codes, or methods of military or naval communication or transportation, or any such group which by its written rules or constitutions or by its oral oaths or teachings advocates the denial to any citizen or group or class of citizens of any protection, privilege or immunity guaranteed by the Constitution . . . by use of force, violence, threats, intimidation or economic coercion."

The second bill offered by Voorhis provides for deportation of any alien residing in the United States "who advocates that any citizen of the United States or alien permanently admitted to the United States owes fealty to any other government."

King's Aide Reveals Plans for Visit Here

British Sovereigns Arrive June 8, 12 in Official Party; Will Stay at White House, Remain Two Days

Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, and Alan Frederick Lascelles, acting private secretary to King George VI, spent nearly two hours yesterday afternoon going over the "day by day, and hour by hour" plans for the visit of the British sovereigns to President Roosevelt and the United States on June 8 to 12. They conferred with George T. Summerlin, chief of protocol of the State Department.

At conclusion of the conference the Ambassador and Lascelles said "everything" had been discussed but nothing had been settled. Several questions await decision by President Roosevelt. Others were settled on the Ambassador's recent visit to London and the answers brought to Washington on his return.

Discussions will be continued at the State Department for two or three days, before Lascelles leaves for Canada, it was announced. Through that time the King's spe-

French, Franco Reach Accord On Recognition

Action Follows Chamber Vote, Supporting Daladier

By the United Press.

Paris, Feb. 24.—Senator Leon Berard, French envoy in Burgos, and the government of Generalissimo Franco reached full agreement today on unconditional de jure recognition of Franco's regime in Spain at almost the same hour the French Chamber of Deputies gave Premier Edouard Daladier a 323-to-261 vote of confidence on the question of recognizing Franco next Monday.

Recognition will be announced, therefore, following a meeting of the council of ministers on Monday. From London it was reported reliably that Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain will make a similar announcement simultaneously in the House of Commons.

Polish Students Riot on Eve of Ciano's Visit

Warsaw, Feb. 24 (AP).—Twelve hundred Polish University students demonstrated against Germany today) the eve of a five-day friendship visit of Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano of Italy—Germany's axis partner.

At Poznan, 500 of them broke windows in a German library. Police kept them from the German consulate.

In Warsaw, 700 massed, and singing anti-German songs and shouting anti-German slogans, swarmed into the streets to protest treatment Polish students receive in the polytechnic school of Nazi-controlled Danzig.

The government of the Free City of Danzig, meanwhile, protested to Poland's diplomatic representative there that an anti-Nazi resolution drawn up by Polish students in Danzig had placed an "intolerable burden on mutual relations."

Katz Kidnaping Suspect Held

New York, Feb. 24 (AP).—A definite suspect, whose name was not disclosed, in the kidnaping of 4-year-old Michael Katz, was taken into custody by police today.

The Katz boy was kidnaped last Monday, held for two hours and released after his father, George Katz, a bookmaker, paid a $250 ransom

Italians Hint At Migration From Corsica

Rome Denies Mass Move From French Island Is Ordered

By the Associated Press.

Ajaccio, Corsica, Feb. 24.—A wholesale migration of Italians from this French island of Corsica, one of the objects of Fascist agitation against France, will begin next week, it was stated today in Italian circles here.

(These reports of a mass migration were discounted in Rome, although it was admitted there tonight that it was possible some Italians might be leaving the island.)

The migration, it was explained here, was the result of the recent decision of the Fascist grand council in Rome to repatriate all Italian emigrants. (There was no immediate evidence that the migration had any political or military significance.)

Informed persons said that Italian consulates in Corsica had advised all Italian residents of the island to return to Italy within the shortest possible time. The entire group, Italians said, after a short stay in Italy, would set out for Libya, to be employed there by the colonization service.

The informants said that the first group of Italian subjects would leave Corsica Monday for the port of Bastia.

Pope Left Holy See All He Possessed; Value 'Not Great'

Vatican City, Feb. 24 (AP).—Pope Pius XI bequeathed his personal possessions to the Holy See in a handwritten will finished a little less than a month before his death, the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano disclosed today.

The last testament published by the newspaper showed the pontiff's personal possessions were by his own appraisal "not of great pecuniary value."

A small inheritance he had from his father, Francesco Ratti, a silk manufacturer of Desio, near Milan, was believed to have been distributed among his relatives before his death. The many gifts Pope Pius received during his reign were bequeathed to the Holy See and to his successor.

The first page of the will was dated May 31, 1927, and the last January 16, 1939. The Pope died February 10.

Senators Ask $100,000,000 For Stocks of War Material

13 Essential Items Covered in Report Voted Unanimously By Military Group

The Senate Military Affairs Committee yesterday unanimously approved a $100,000,000 authorization, spread over four years, to store "stock piles" of metal and mineral raw materials essential to the National defense.

Authorization of $25,000,000 a year for the next four years would be provided to acquire large stocks of "strategic and critical" materials, now largely imported from foreign sources.

Senator Thomas, (Democrat), of Utah, author of the bill, called it closely in line with the national defense program and "very timely," although the President has not recommended it.

For Emergency Only

The Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy, acting jointly through the Army and Navy Munitions Board, would determine the quality and quantities of materials to be purchased, when they decide the domestic supply "is insufficient to meet the industrial, military and naval needs."

Stocks acquired would be stored by the Treasury procurement division on military and naval reservations or on other locations, and could only be released on order of the President when an emergency existed with threat of war or serious domestic shortages.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull wrote the committee "there would appear to be no question . . . but that a sound national defense program would provide adequate supplies of these materials for use in the event that supplies from abroad should be cut off or restricted.

Budget Bureau Opposed

"Furthermore, the existence of such reserves in this country should also be of material assistance in time of peace in guaranteeing freedom of action to this Government in maintaining a policy of neutrality or noninvolvement in international conflicts; without such reserves we might find essential supplies of these materials largely or entirely in the control of foreign governments."

Secretary of War Woodring wrote that his department "strongly recommends favorable consideration" and Assistant Secretary of Commerce Patterson said the bill will "materially contribute to our national security" while not adversely affecting "the present commerce in these strategic commodities."

Acting Secretary of the Interior Burlew wrote that "the failure to exercise this simple and obvious foresight until an emergency is upon us, is to jeopardize national safety." The Treasury Department called the legislation "meritorius." But all Government departments asked for opinions said they were advised by the Budget Bureau the legislation "would not be in accord with the program of the President."

Thirteen "strategic" materials that would be purchased under the bill, for which the United States depends almost entirely on foreign sources,

Russian Attache Took Secret Data, Spy Jury Told

Los Angeles, Feb. 24 (U.P.).—A Federal agent testified today that Hafis Salich, Russian-born former United States naval intelligence aide, admitted giving 69 secret naval reports to Mikhail Gorin, Soviet tourist agent, accused of transmitting them to his government.

Gorin, a Russian, his blonde wife, Natasha, and Salich are on trial here for espionage for Russia.

Salich, according to Federal Bureau of Investigation Agent G. B. Dierst, was shown two volumes containing 1,200 secret reports, and pointed out 69 which he revealed to Gorin.

Morgenthau Foresees Rise In Debt Ceiling

Treasury-Postoffice Bill Report Reveals 50-Billion Forecast

By the Associated Press.

The House received a $1,700,471,354 appropriation bill for the Treasury and Postoffice Departments yesterday along with official word from Secretary Morgenthau that this year's budget would necessitate increasing to $50,000,000,000 the limit on the public debt.

The measure reported by the appropriations committee carried $909,626,670 for expenses of the Treasury Department in the year beginning July 1 and $790,844,684 for the Postoffice Department.

The $1,700,471,354 total represented a $197,029,280 increase over appropriations for the current year.

President's Request Cut

It was $27,926,138 under the total recommended by the President and the Budget Bureau, however, making it the fifth straight appropriation bill that the committee has cut below Mr. Roosevelt's estimates.

Morgenthau's advice that the present $45,000,000,000 limit on the public debt would have to be raised was contained in the printed record of the committee's hearings which was sent to the floor with the appropriation measure.

The record showed Morgenthau told the committee the debt could go to $50,000,000,000 without endangering the Nation's financial structure, but declined to hazard an opinion as to how high it might safely go.

When Representative McLeod (Republican, California, asked if it it could go considerably higher, Morgenthau said:

"Well, I would not be worried to see it go the other four or five billions which is in the present budget and we are going to have to ask Congress, if you vote this money, to increase the Treasury's power to borrow another $5,000,000,000."

Asked whether this increase might be hazardous, the Secretary replied:

"No, I am willing to say, I am not worried about it going up to 50, but I do not want to make any forecast."

Bank Holding Firms Hit

He also asserted he favored Congressional action against bank holding companies and that there would be considerable disadvantage if a free gold market were established in the United States.

Starting House debate on the measure, Representative Ludlow (Democrat), Indiana, said the $27,926,138 pruned from the budget estimates would have little bearing on the national financial picture, but nevertheless should be "a good tonic to business."

"It ought to create a better feeling among those who are genuinely concerned over the vast expenditures and continued deficit financing of our Government in seeking to promote recovery," he said.

Security Figure Reduced

The biggest reduction was $20,000,000, taken from the $600,000,000 which the Treasury wanted Congress to put in the social security reserve fund for old-age pensions.

Under the security act, social security taxes are placed in the general fund of the Treasury and Congress then appropriates the amount of the taxes into the reserve account.

The reduction was made, the committee explained, because it believed the Treasury had overestimated the amount of taxes that would be collected for the social security program.

Paradoxically, the committee took what it called another step toward economy by allowing the Budget Bureau $159,570 more than it had in the present fiscal year. The increase is to help the bureau carry out a reorganization program intended to enable it to give closer scrutiny to appropriations requested by other Government agencies. The bureau will be able to employ ten more persons.

Atlantic Air Mail Covered

"Economies in all governmental operations should, and must be, had," the committee said in a report to the House. The committee included an item of $996,000 to help finance transatlantic air mail service. The service should be under way in May, it said.

Its economy axe fell on what Ludlow described as "useless offices which were in the nature of luscious political plums, but in no wise essential to efficient administration" when the committee decided to take from the Federal pay roll the comptrollers of customs in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans, San Francisco and Chicago. It took the same action against the surveyor of the Port of New York. Ludlow said the net saving was $51,600.

Use of Philippines As Trade Outpost In Orient Urged

By the Associated Press.

Salvador Araneta, Manila business leader, told the Senate Territories Committee yesterday the United States should strengthen its economic position in the Orient by using the Philippines as "a strategic commercial outpost."

He proposed that in liberalizing the independence act, Congress keep trade relations with the islands on a preferential basis "indefinitely or at last until 1960."

Araneta asked the committee "not to promote Japanese domination in the Orient by voluntarily destroying Philippine-American trade and the spiritual values that go with it."

12 in Royal Party

Ambassador Lindsay reported there will be 12 members in the royal party. They will be the King and Queen; Lady Nunburnholme and Lady Katharine Seymour, ladies in waiting; the Earl of Eldon, lord in waiting to the King; the Earl of Airlie, lord chamberlain to the Queen; Lascelles; Surgeon Capt. H. White, R. N., medical officer; G. F. Steward, chief press liaison officer; Capt. M. Adeane, assistant private secretary to the King; Lieut. Col. the Hon. Piers Legh, equerry to the King, and Capt. E. M. C. Abel-Smith, R. N., equerry to the King.

The itinerary of the royal visit was announced at the State Department after yesterday's conference, which followed closely Lascelles' arrival in Washington. The King's secretary landed in New York from the liner Queen Mary Thursday.

It was the State Department also that announced the day by day and hour by hour nature of the discussions, which involve matters of ceremony and general arrangements. The royal party will cross the border from Canada at Niagara Falls June 7 and will arrive in Washington before lunch June 8. On June 8 and 9 Their Majesties will be guests of the President at the White House.

On June 10 they will visit the World's Fair in New York, probably motoring to Hyde Park the same day to visit President Roosevelt there.

No definite arrangements have been announced for June 11 and 12, although it was stated that King George and Queen Elizabeth will leave the United States June 12.

A number of arrangements remain to be taken up between the President and London, it was stated.

Several women reporters, worried over matters of etiquette, questioned Lascelles yesterday afternoon about the matter of curtsying to the queen.

"We will be guests of your country, and you naturally set the customs to be followed," Lascelles answered.

British Humor Wins

One of the reporters asked Lascelles if he were related to the Earl of Harewood, as Lascelles is the family name of the Earl.

"Yes," Lascelles answered.

"How?" he was asked.

"Quite legitimately," he replied, as he entered the automobile of the ambassador to be driven away, smiling amusedly as though challenging even former Mayor Jimmie Walker of New York to outdo that one.

Before becoming assistant private secretary to the King in 1935, Lascelles was secretary to the governor-general of Canada from 1931 to 1935. He said he expected to go to Canada from Washington, probably early next week.

According to Burke's Peerage and the British Who's Who, Lascelles is a first cousin of the sixth Earl of Harewood, his father and the fifth earl having been brothers.

legal adviser in the Department of State. "I am very much surprised to hear of Justice Laws' transfer," he said, "and I very much regret it. I feel very strongly that it is a mistake to subject the District to the dangers of criminals roving at large on bail pending trial. Prompt conviction has a very salutary effect in driving out and keeping out criminals."

"Young and Vigorous"

Vallance said Justice Laws was the logical choice to remain in criminal sessions because he was "the best man to investigate and clear up police bribery and other charges." He is "young and vigorous" and that he has just shown his capacity in handling the Warring case, Vallance said.

Mrs. Harvey Wiley, clubwoman, said that "the reason for the shift of Justice Laws is obviously the jammed condition of the civil court. It is a good thing. It seems to me that Justice Laws should be transferred back after the jam is broken and after two new justices take their seats."

She referred to Representative Goldsborough (Democrat), of Maryland, who was confirmed last week for one of the two District judgeships authorized a year ago. There has been no nomination for the other vacancy.

The transfer of Justice Laws "appeared unfortunate at this time," said L. A. Carruthers, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations. He said criticism for the congested civil docket ought to be directed to failure to fill the existing vacancies and that when a vacancy is filled the new man ought to be assigned to civil work.

"Very Commendable Attitude"

"I think Justice Laws has shown a very commendable attitude not only in running down the Warring jury bribery charges, but in his conduct of the numbers racket trials. It is unfortunate that this particular justice should be the one affected."

Carruthers explained that the transfer was apt to raise a question among more skeptical minded persons as to whether something was behind the shift, although this might be unfounded.

Odell Smith, chairman of the public order committee of the the Board of Trade said he understood the transfer to have been made in the regular rotation of the justices and not connected with the Warrian trial. He said the question might be discussed at a meeting of his committe Tuesday afternoon.

"Justice Laws' work in the criminal court has been splendid and I think he should stay there," said Mrs. Ella C. Werner, vice president of the Washington Criminal Justice Association. "We need every justice that we have on the criminal bench."

E. Hilton Jackson, attorney, said: "I think they ought to have three criminal justices. What needs to be done is to bring the calendar up all along the line. Although we have to concede that when people are in jail or under bond that is more important. However, I think that the improvement ought to be directed toward the whole calendar."

Chinese Tunnel Mountains for Air Raid Shelters

Shanghai, Feb. 24 (AP).—Foreigners in Chungking, China's temporary capital, reported tonight thousands of coolies, working with primitive implements, were burrowing into the mountains surrounding the city in an effort to dig out shelters for 300,000 persons against Japanese air raids.

Chungking, with a population estimated at more than 500,000, is one of the cities of inland China marked out by Japanese for air raid attack.

On the strength of their report of having shot down or destroyed about 50 Chinese fighting planes in an air raid yesterday on Lanchow, Japanese officials here asserted they had dealt a crushing blow to China's efforts to rebuild her air strength. They indicated that continued raids on Lanchow and Chungking could be expected.

Byrnes Plans U.S. Aid to All 'Handicapped'

$125,000,000 Involved In Scheme for Relief Of 800,000 Individuals

A proposal that Federal grants be extended to the States in behalf of "handicapped individuals," as well as the aged, dependent children and the blind was added to a projected revision of the social security law yesterday by Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina.

At opening of hearings of the special committee to investigate unemployment and relief, of which he is chairman, Senator Byrnes revealed he had supplemented his earlier bill liberalizing the present public relief structure with an entire new section that would cost the Government an additional $125,250,000 next year and indeterminate sums thereafter.

The provision would give Federal aid to those States carrying out a specified program of assistance to unemployables who are not in public institutions but are unable to perform work "because of physical or mental disability" other than blindness. Senator Byrnes estimated that this addition to his bill would help care for 800,000 persons who previously have been entirely dependent on State or local relief.

Altmeyer Indorses Bill

Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer, of the Social Security Board, the only witness at yesterday's hearings, gave general indorsement to the Byrnes bill. He testified that those sections granting the States more generous Federal aid for the aged, blind and dependent children, would annually cost the Government "from $51,000,000 to $93,000,000" more than at present.

All sections of the Byrnes bill dealing with public assistance, whether to the aged, blind, dependents or "handicapped," proved that the Government shall make a contribution of from 50 to 66 2-3 per cent, depending on the relative per capita income of each State.

Closely questioned by Senator Lodge (Republican), of Massachusetts, on this feature, Altmeyer said: "The bill has the right approach. It lays down minimum standards of adequacy and endeavors to meet the minimum by giving the poorer States greater proportionate aid than the richer."

Jobs Drop 880,000

The head of the Social Security Board warned against too greatly liberalizing unemployment benefits without raising the rate of contribution. Unless this were done, he said, unemployment reserve funds would be exhausted in underpopulated or one-industry States.

However, Altmeyer approved increasing some of the current unemployment benefit rates. Under the present law, he said, a man earning $50 a month would have to have been employed five years to receive, in unemployment compensation, $15 a month.

Meanwhile, at a press conference yesterday, Secretary of Labor Perkins said 880,000 fewer workers were employed in non-agricultural occupations last month than in December. She said 60 per cent of the decrease had occurred in retail trade, but that the drop was "much smaller" than the decline from December, 1937, to January, 1938.

Miss Perkins added that employment last month was 100,000 below that in January, 1938, but the total payroli is up 4 per cent.

Monopoly Unit Slated to Get $500,000 More

No Anti-Trust Bills To Be Submitted This Year, Barkley Reveals

The Congressional "Monopoly" Committee, headed by Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, will receive another $500,000 from Congress, but no anti-trust legislation will be advanced this session, Majority Leader Barkley indicated yesterday, following a conference of the Senate's major committee chairmen.

At the meeting, held to coordinate and speed up the Senate's lagging legislative program, Chairman Harrison of the Finance Committee was reported to have advised against new anti-trust laws on the ground they would discourage business.

Aside from the bill authorizing reciprocal taxation of salaries of Federal and State employes, already passed by the House and favorably reported by the Senate Finance Committee, no new tax legislation is on the immediate program. Barkley pointed out that the companion proposal to remove tax exemption from governmental securities now is in the House, where it is uncertain whether the measure will take the form of a constitutional amendment or an ordinary law.

Full Calendar Forecast

Senator Barkley, who reported "not a ripple" of disharmony disturbed the meeting, said the Senate will have a full legislative calendar "within a few days."

Scheduled for action next week are the national defense bill, the reciprocal salary tax bill and a stream pollution measure.

Barkley said the Senate probably will act this session on "some sort" of railroad relief, executive reorganization, trust indenture bills and amendments to the Wagner act.

The Committee on Education and Labor will begin hearings on the Federal aid to education bill March 2. Hearings on the Wagner act amendments will come "at an early date," it was said. Legislative proposals are expected from the La Follette Civil Liberties Committee within two or three weeks, Barkley stated.

To Wait on Reorganization

Barkley declared the House bill on executive reorganization appears "generally pretty satisfactory" and that the Senate will await House action.

He said a trust indenture bill will be ready for action within a few days. The Banking and Currency Committee, he said, will hold hearings next week on extension of the stabilization fund, with Secretary Morgenthau expected to testify.

The only major farm bill now headed for the Senate floor is one dealing with cotton, wheat and corn surpluses. Chairman Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, said some action is probable within two weeks.

Possibility of neutrality legislation remained uncertain, as Chairman Pittman of the Foreign Relations Committee was unable to attend the meeting.

New Nazi Taxes Hit Unwed Persons And Childless

Berlin, Feb. 24 (AP).—Nazi Germany imposed new income tax regulations today on her bachelors, spinsters and childless married couples.

The new measures raised the levies on the unmarried by 12½ per cent and created a new tax group of couples who are childless after five years of marriage. The latter group will pay 2.2 per cent less than unmarried persons.

Nazis hastened to say the new taxes, which they estimate will bring in from $80,000,000 to $160,000,000 annually, were not based on the need for further funds but stem from necessities of population and political aspirations of the nation. The new rates go into effect April 1.

Senator Smith Thinks There 'Ought To Be a Law Against Television'

By the Associated Press.

Senator Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, thinks there "ought to be a law against television."

While the Senate Agriculture Committee was discussing inventions informally, he bellowed in mock seriousness:

SEN. SMITH

"The next invention will be a wall that they can't look through," observed Senator Norris (Independent), of Nebraska.

Speaker Bankhead and members of the House Territories Committee wore Hawaiian leis on Capitol Hill yesterday after a luncheon celebrating the annual feast of Hoolaulea.

Their host, Delegate King, of Hawaii, said the day was observed annually in the Islands as a spring festival.

Representative Dickstein (Democrat), New York, demanded to know yesterday why the Dies Committee on Un-American Activities had not launched an immediate investigation of the recent German-Amreican bund meeting in New York.

"It was a horrible and distressing affair," he said.

He was challenged by Representative Dempsey (Democrat), New Mexico, a member of the committee, who asked him how he knew the committee did not have a full report on the affair. Dempsey added that the Mayor of New York authorized the meeting and that it was not up to the committee to stop it.

Senator Bailey (Democrat), North Carolina, puts Senators Glass and Byrd, of Virginia, in a class with George Washington.

At a Senate hearing on merchant marine matters, W. F. Taylor, president of Southgate Nelson Corporation of Virginia, commented that he had "nothing to brag about."

"If I were from Virginia I'd rather brag about Carter Glass, Harry Byrd and George Washington, if nothing else," Bailey remarked.

U. S. and Shoshone Indians Hold Pow-Wow on $4,500,000

Nine Confer Here on Money Awarded for Confiscation of Land; Each Tribesman to Get Share

A delegation of nine Shoshone Indians sat in conference most of yesterday at the Department of the Interior in an effort to reach an agreement on the disposal of $4,500,000 awarded their tribe of 1,100 members by the United States Supreme Court last April.

They had come from the Wind River reservation in Wyoming to get as much cash for each individual as possible, asserting that their purpose is to buy land and farming equipment in order to better their living conditions. The money was awarded them in compensation for land belonging to their tribe that was given to the Arapahoes by the Government in 1879, without permission of the Shoshones. After 11 years' litigation, it was decided to let the Arapahoes retain a half interest in the reservation, but to pay compensation to the Shoshones.

As explained by Charles J. Kappler, Washington attorney specializing in Indian affairs, and George M. Tunison, of Omaha, who represented the delegation, the conference was called to determine how much each Indian shall have put to his individual credit, and how much shall be retained in the Treasury for the benefit of the tribe. In either case expenditures have to be made under the supervision of the department.

Today another conference begins at which both the Shoshones and the Arapahoes will appear. This is over the matter of oil leases to the Continental, Ohio, Texas and Standard Oil of New Jersey, which both tribes—who have an equal interest—declare have not been used. Granted to the companies in 1918, the leases are up for renewal. The Indians insist that no renewal should be given unless the companies develop the wells so the tribes may benefit.

In the Shoshone delegation are the son and grandson of Chief Washakie, who is cited in old records as being one of the most loyal and heroic leaders of Indians sympathetic to the Government. For example, it was pointed out by a member of the Interior Department, that Chief Washakie in 1870 led 100 mounted Shoshone warriors to join Gen. Crook on Goose Creek in northern Wyoming against the Sioux and the Cheyenne. Two weeks later the Shoshones played a big part in the engagement on the Rosebud and Tighee, one of Washakie's lieutenants rescuing Col. Guy V. Henry, who was wounded, and the tribe transported him to Fort Laramie, where he recovered. Credit was given the tribe for averting another such slaughter as that of Gen. Custer's men.

Charles Washakie, son of the old chief—who died in 1900 at the age of about 100 years—and Marshall Washakie, grandson, were among leaders of the Shoshone delegation yesterday. With them were Gilbert Way, Sam Nipwater, Pete Aragon, Cyrus Shongutsie, John Boyd, Charles Driskell, a Carlisle graduate, and Mrs. Maude Clairemont, whose husband is employed at the agency and who is a graduate of Sherman and Haskell Institute.

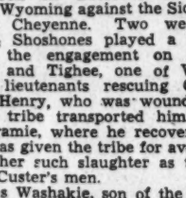

In the Arapahoe delegation, which will attend today's hearing, are Bruce Grosbeck, also a Carlisle graduate, Jerome Oldman, Robert Friday and Nellie Scott.

The delegation has chosen the Grafton Hotel for their local wigwam, until the controversies that brought them here are decided.

Railroads Urge Elimination of Waterway Subsidy

By the Associated Press.

A railroad proposal to end what was called the "Government-subsidized competition" of the Inland Waterways Corporation was presented to Congress yesterday.

R. V. Fletcher, general counsel for the Association of American Railroads, suggested to the House Interstate Commerce Committee that the Government rid itself entirely of the corporation. He appeared for the committee of six railroad and railroad labor executives named last year by President Roosevelt to submit recommendations upon the general transportation situation.

Fletcher submitted a legislative proposal whereby the Secretary of War would be directed to dispose of all of its properties "at the earliest possible date."

Wallace Maps 2-Price Plan to Export Cotton

Scheme Similar to Wheat Program Would Move Surplus Abroad

By the Associated Press.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, it was learned yesterday, has drawn up a "two-price" plan designed to facilitate exports of cotton at world prices while maintaining a higher level of prices to consumers in this country.

The plan has been submitted to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Vice President Garner and several Senators and Representatives from cotton States.

Meanwhile, Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, charged that cotton speculators who are "short" on the market were pressing for release of Government loan cotton in an attempt to cash in on a price decline.

The Oklahoma Senator made this charge at a hearing of the Senate Agriculture Committee considering several bills dealing with the more than 11,000,000 bales now under Government loans.

Although Agriculture Department officials declined to discuss Wallace's proposal, it was said in some quarters that it would use present loan provisions of the crop control law to maintain domestic prices possibly higher than present levels, which average 8.3 cents a pound.

To facilitate exports, which have dwindled this season to the level of the 1880's, cotton which the Government has acquired in return for loans to growers would be sold to exporters at prices which would enable them to meet competitive prices in world markets.

The Wallace plan is similar to a program now being used to expedite exports of wheat.

Second Killing Feared as Md. Bus Driver Dies

4 Witnesses Released On Bail; Wife Afraid Husband Is Murdered

Shortly after Andrew Walker Straughan, 36, died in Casualty Hospital yesterday of a shattered skull, a Hyattsville woman notified Prince Georges County police that her husband had been missing since he received his $150 pay check Thursday.

Mrs. Milton Knight, hysterical with fear that her husband had suffered a like fate, asked police to find her husband, 27-year-old employe of the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center. She said he was seen last with two men in his automobile at Hyattsville.

Believe Him Murdered

Straughan, a bus driver, was found early Thursday morning, unconscious and half frozen, on the bank of Paint Creek near Berwyn. He died without regaining consciousness.

Three of his friends and a fourth man, arrested Thursday as State's witnesses, were released from Hyattsville jail last night under $100 bond each. A report Straughan collected a large numbers bet shortly before he was found was labeled false by police.

The belief Straughan was murdered was strengthened, county authorities said, after an autopsy and "other developments," Dr. Martin J. Keane, after the autopsy, said the man apparently had been beaten to death with a blunt instrument.

Funeral Set Monday

"Several new angles have developed," Wheatley said, "but the investigation will be carried further before any charges are made."

Funeral services will be held from W. W. Chambers' parlors Monday at 2 p. m., members of the family announced. Straughan leaves his wife, Mary Evelyn, a daughter, Mary Evelyn, 4, and a son, Buster, 2.

Board Bans Exterior Display Of Liquor Signs

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday ordered a ban on displays of beer, whisky and wine signs visible from the street, effective Wednesday.

Mrs. Agnes Mason, board member, said the move was in co-operation with the Federal Alcohol Administration, which ordered the removal from windows and buildings of all beer signs showing trade-mark or brand names. She said dealers, if they wish to use displays, first must have approval of the board.

It was revealed this is the first step in bringing dealers under the board's supervision in all matters concerning displays and other types of advertising. The board is working on a list of regulations to prevent "misstatements" in liquor ads. It was pointed out before the regulation are made effective the public will have a voice at a public hearing.

The book was removed from historic Williamsburg in the Civil War by "some party or parties unknown," according to the resolution.

Virginian Offers Bill to Prohibit D. C. Price-Cutting

A bill to prohibit retail price cutting in the District of Columbia was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Smith (Democrat), of Virginia.

The bill would provide that the retail price of an article would include "at least a 6 per cent markup" above cost and the wholesale price a markup of not less than 2 per cent "of the total cost of the merchandise at the warehouse or outlet."

Bona fide clearance sales, rush sales of perishable fruits and groceries and sales of damaged goods would be exempted.

Robber Given 3 to-6-Year Term

Justice Adkins yesterday imposed a prison term of three to six years on John T. Aldridge, 26, colored, on two robbery counts. George D. Hall received a four to six months sentence, and Thomas F. Commodore, three to six months, for numbers violations. William Sills was given a maximum of six years after pleading guilty to eight charges of receiving stolen property. William McDowell, 35, colored, received a sentence of two to four and a half years, on charges growing out of the death of John B. Crawford, colored, 35, in July 1938.

Prof. Bridgman Praised for Ban On 'Totalitarians'

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 24 (AP).—Dean Christian Gauss, of Princeton University, today praised Dr. Percy W. Bridgman, world-famous Harvard physicist, for closing his laboratory to visits by citizens of totalitarian states.

"By turning on the red light," Dean Gauss said, "Prof. Bridgman has rendered us a great service. We might as well give machine guns to outlaws as to turn over further destructive secrets to nations on the rampage."

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 24 (AP).—Commenting on Physicist Percy W. Bridgman's aim to make it more difficult for totalitarian states to get scientific information they might misuse, Prof. Pitirin Sorokin, of the Harvard sociology department, said:

"Any scientific discovery or invention which could be applied in war should be kept secret except from the government concerned—because today's friends may be tomorrow's enemies.

Hopkins Wryly Advises Iowans to Shun His Backing

Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 24 (AP).—Secretary of Commerce Hopkins today wryly advised Iowa legislators to "Hire me to say that I would vote for your opponent."

Before a joint session of the Iowa Senate and House, he observed:

"If I were voting in Iowa, I would vote for higher prices for corn and hogs. Any of you that want to run for office should hire me to say that I would vote for your opponent. Then, you would be pretty sure to win."

The heavily-Republican Legislature applauded.

While WPA administrator last spring, Hopkins said he woul cast his ballot for former Representative Otha Wearin for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator "if I voted in Iowa." Wearin took a 2 to 1 trimming from Senator Gillette.

Dewey Sums Up; Calls Hines Schultz 'Pal and Intimate'

New York, Feb. 24 (AP).—District Attorney Dewey, disclaiming any political motive in the prosecution of James J. Hines on policy racket charges, accused the defense today of a "wilful, filthy attempt to raise some sort of passion for a betrayer of democracy."

Summing up in an all-day jury speech that was mainly cold, soft-voiced and sardonic, Dewey denounced the Tammany leader as the "pal and intimate" of the "greatest gangster of his day"—the late Dutch Schultz, head of the numbers syndicate to which Hines was accused of having hired political protection.

Judge Nott will deliver his charge tomorrow morning and hte case probably will reach the jury by noon.

Munich, Feb. 24 (AP).—Adolf Hitler presided tonight at the annual gathering of 1,300 of his "old guard" men and women at the Munich beer hall where 19 years ago his Nazi Party program was formed.

An additional 2,000 party veterahs heard Hitler's address through loudspeakers in another beer hall.

Reviewing the past year, he said the salient factors in Germany's resurgence were political restoration, economic recovery and military strength.

Profits Tax May Be Abandoned

Tax

cent. This tax was made effective only for 1938 and 1939.

Morgenthau's suggestion that Congress re-examine the tax structure, it was learned, was an invitation to Congress to dispose of the corporation tax question at this time instead of waiting until the next session.

The Treasury head feels that, if the matter is deferred until the next session, businessmen will enter the 1940 calendar year not knowing what to expect in the way of Federal corporation taxes. This will add to the uncertainty which business complains of, he believes. Since new corporation taxes should be formulated to apply to 1940, it ought to be done now.

Treasury officials incline toward the belief that "irritants" should be done away with, so far as revenue needs permit.

Treasury officials feel that the fact that businessmen think the undistributed profits tax is a deterrent probably makes it so.

It is possible that the Treasury will suggest taxes to replace any irritants which Congress might remove in revamping the tax structure in accordance with Morgenthau's suggestion. A move to repeal the 2½ per cent undistributed profits tax probably would result in a request that the 16½ per cent corporation tax be increased to 17¾ or 18 per cent to make up for the revenue loss.

Morgenthau holds strongly to the view that the main source of additional revenue is improved business. The Treasury could afford to scale down taxes substantially if resulting encouragement to business would offset revenue losses, he believes.

One thing responsible for the willingness of Treasury officials to try to appease business by tax readjustment is the advance in business since the 1938 revenue act was adopted. The improvement, it is believed, may have been partly due to the new corporation and undistributed profits taxes.

Before arriving at a conclusion concerning the new taxes, however, Treasury officials will study the income tax returns for 1938, due March 15.

Commissioners Back Permanent Installation Of Parking Meters

A $10,000,000 maximum on collections for unemployment compensation here was approved yesterday by the commissioners along with three other legislative measures submitted to the Budget Bureau prior to submission to Congress.

Provisions of the bill will separate the District Unemployment Compensation Board from the Social Security Board and will compel the DUC to maintain a balance of $10,000,000 at all times. In this connection the board will be empowered to fix the rate of contributions for employers in the District but in no event can the rate exceed 3 per cent.

Other bills approved were:

A proposal to install parking meters on a permanent basis.

A bill to establish a lien for money due hospitals for services rendered in cases caused by negligence or fault of others and providing for the recording and enforcing of such liens.

A bill amending the present act regulating the proceedings of adoption in the District.

The Commissioners disapproved of three pending measures before Congress.

Adversely reported were: A bill to re-enact a portion of the District Code and make the words "all taxes" include special assessments; a bill which would prevent use of a lot at Tenth and F streets southwest, for an automobile testing station, and a bill relating to the Federal payment to the District.

One section of the proposed compensation bill would hold, in certain instances, the purchaser of a business liable for unpaid contributions of the previous employer.

One of the features of the new act, the Commissioners said, would be the new system of computation of the amount of payments. The proposed system of computation "is decidedly less complex than the present system and it will enable the District Unemployment Compensation Board to accelerate the computation of benefits and reduce the possibility of error."

Anderson Protest Set in Colored Church

White Congregation's Objection Accepted to Avoid Hurting Pastor

Leaders of tomorrow's proposed mass protest against denial of two auditoriums here for a concert by Marian Anderson, colored contralto, yesterday canceled plans to hold the meeting at Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

They asserted they were taking the action voluntarily after a group of church members had protested the permit granted by the pastor, the Rev. Fred S. Buschmeyer.

The meeting, expected to draw 1,500 sympathizers, instead will be held at Lincoln Congregational Church, 1701 Eleventh street northwest, a colored church, at 4 p. m. The rally was called by a citizens' committee after use of both Constitution Hall, operated by the Daughters of the American Revolution, and Central High School auditorium was refused for the singer's recital, scheduled for April 9.

"Feel No Resentment"

U. Simpson Tate, chairman of mass meeting arrangements, declared last night his committee decided to change the meeting place when it learned that a "D. A. R. and reactionary group" of Mount Pleasant Church had "put the pastor on the spot."

"We feel no resentment in the matter," Tate said. "If that's the temper of any part of the congregation, then it is best we avoid any embarrassment for the Rev. Mr. Buschmeyer and hold our protest in other quarters."

The Rev. Mr. Buschmeyer said last night, "I had assumed it would be all right," but that "doubt has been expressed by a minority of the congregation." The pastor pointed out he had planned to place the question before the church trustees when opposition arose but the protest committee informed him it would accept the offer of a meeting place by Dr. R. W. Brooks of the Lincoln Church.

Congressman to Speak

Tate said 70 District organizations planned to send representatives to the rally and announced the following speakers: Representative Keller (Democrat), of Illinois; Doxey A. Wilkerson, professor of education at Howard University; Dr. James M. Nabrit, of the Howard University law faculty, and Clarke Foreman, director of the PWA power division.

The Citizens Committee will appeal the school board's refusal to allow use of Central High auditorium at a hearing Wednesday.

Fred E. Hand, manager of Constitution Hall, denied a charge that the auditorium had been offered to another artist for the evening of April 9 after the request of Miss Anderson's manager had been turned down.

Takoma Lutheran Men Plan To Fight for a Better City

The Takoma Evangelical Lutheran Church

Brotherhood to Organize Group to Press For Reform of Numbers Racket and Other Community Evils; Would Unite Laymen

Christian laymen of Washington will have a more active voice in combating the numbers racket, liquor and other community evils through a project to be launched next month by the Men's Brotherhood of the Takoma Evangelical Lutheran Church, Seventh and Dahlia streets northwest. The church is affiliated with the American Lutheran Synod.

The committee backing the project—which has set its first meeting March 16—intends to bring pressure to bear upon authorities for stricter enforcement of liquor, gambling and other laws, according to Carl V. Hickman, president of the Brotherhood.

PFEIFFER (pastor)

A mechanical engineer in the Ordnance Bureau, Navy Department, Hickman says that the idea has developed out of what he feels is "the dire need of more concrete objectives in Christian men's programs." Hickman hopes it will eventually embrace all Christian laymen's organizations in the city. Also active in the Brotherhood are Milford Stein and William Rupertus, secretary and treasurer, respectively.

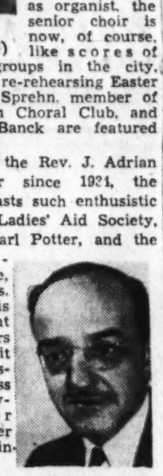

The Brotherhood is quite typical of the active organizations at Takoma Lutheran Church, which was formed in 1924, its initial meeting being held in the Takoma Theater. The cornerstone was laid May 22, 1927, and the building dedicated on October 16 of that year.

HICKMAN (brotherhood)

Led by Clayton E. Baus, and with Mrs. Baus as organist, the senior choir is now, of course, like scores of other choral groups in the city, rehearsing and re-rehearsing Easter music. George Sprehn, member of the Washington Choral Club, and Mrs. William Banck are featured vocalists.

According to the Rev. J. Adrian Pfeiffer, pastor since 1924, the church also boasts such enthusistic groups as the Ladies' Aid Society, led by Mrs. Earl Potter, and the Woman's Missionary Circle, of which Mrs. Ralph Mahr, is president. Eight to ten members of the latter unit offer regular assistance to Miss Frances Dysinger in her Lutheran Inner Mission work in Washington.

C. E. BAUS (choir chief)

Young people's activities at Takoma revolve around the Luther Leagues, of which the young people's forum is an interesting unit. Among the leaders are Vincent Gingerich and the Misses Margaret and Elner Lustig. The forum subject for next month will be "Courtship and Marriage."

Among other interesting personalities of the suburban congregation are Phil Johnson, president of the board of trustees and head of the Sunday School; Maj. William Fisher, active civic worker; Mrs. Harvey Brake, leader of the Junior Sunday school department, and J. J. Gruenbaum, custodian of the treasury.

Sometime ago all finances of individual organizations were placed in one fund, a move that has turned out to be very successful, according to the Rev. Mr. Pfeiffer.

JOHNSON (school head)

Born in Springfield, Ohio, he received his bachelor's degree from Capital University, Columbus, Ohio, in 1927.

In 1930 he was graduated from the theological department there, later accepting a call to St. James Lutheran Church, Rockdale, Md. At present he is busy with plans for the approaching Luther League Conference at Maryland University in June, having been named publicity chairman. Tomorrow morning he will speak on "Providence or Fatalism—Which?"

The Rev. Mr. Pfeiffer succeeded the church's first pastor, the Rev. Reuben G. Steinmyer, now associate professor in the department of political science at Maryland University. He, too, was graduated from Capital University.

Dr. Taylor's Topic 'Family And the Home'

Presbyterian Youth Group's Emblem Is 'Doers of the Word'

Dr. James H. Taylor, pastor of Central Presbyterian Church, will preach tomorrow morning on "The Family and the Home" and in the evening on "Revelations of Glory."

The Westminster League of young people has selected as its motto, "Be Ye Doers of the Word and Not Hearers Only," from the Epistle of James. The society has also adopted as its emblem the Greek letters "Pi Lambda," which stand for "poetia logou," or "Doers of the Word."

Chevy Chase. "Be Ye Separate" is to be the subject of Dr. J. Hillman Hollister's sermon in the morning.

Gunton-Temple. Dr. Bernard Braskamp, pastor, will have for his topic at the 11 a. m. service, "The Secret of Release From Anxiety."

Metropolitan. Y. M. C. A.-Y. W. C. A. night will be observed at 8 p. m. Officers and members of the two associations will be special guests. Dr. J. Lowrey Fendrich, jr., will use as the subject of his sermon, "What Do You Mean—Christian?"

New York Avenue. Dr. Peter Marshall, minister, will have for his topic at the morning service, "The Grindstones of God."

At 8 p. m. Dr. Albert Evans, associate minister, will conduct the service. His subject will be "God's Saving Presence."

Falls Church. "Dead Church Members" is to be the theme of Dr. Alton B. Altfather's morning sermon.

Bishop Freeman To Begin Lenten Sermon Series

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, D.D., LL.D., Bishop of Washington, will begin a series of Lenten sermons on the general theme "Christ—Life's Interpreter," tomorrow at the evening service at 4 p. m. in Washington Cathedral.

At the service of Holy Communion at 11 a. m. the preacher will be the Very Rev. Noble C. Powell, D.D., dean of Washington. Other services in the Cathedral tomorrow in observance of the first Sunday in Lent will be celebration of the Holy Communion in the Bethlehem Chapel at 7:30 a. m. and 9:30 a. m.

There will be a series of Lenten addresses by the Cathedral clergy on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays at the evensong services. On Tuesdays the Rev. William M. Bradner, canon precentor, will speak on "The Hymnal as an Aid to Devotions." Dr. Powell will speak on the first four Wednesdays in Lent on "The Beatitudes," this series to be concluded by Canon Anson Phelps Stokes on the three following Wednesday afternoons. On Thursdays Canon Edward S. Dunlap will take up the theme "New Apprehensions."

Youth in Capital Churches

This column can begin on no more suitable note than the announcement that tomorrow at 7 p. m. at Fifteenth Street Christian Church two new Christian Endeavor societies will be born. Intended for junior and senior high pupils, they will be sponsored by the senior C. E. organization of that church, under the guidance of Mrs. Mary Hill, youth counselor.

On the other side of town at the same time the three Epworth Leagues of Emory Methodist Church will be meeting. Adele Clark will be leading the Junior High League in discussing "What Causes Crime in Our Nation?" Judith Leichhardt, assisted by Mrs. E. C. Cushing, will lead the senior group's consideration of "What Do We Believe?" and John Ray will direct the young people's body on "Enriching Our Sunday Experiences."

At the Evening Youth Hour tomorrow at the Lutheran Church of the Reformation, Elise Kettler, missionary from India, will be guest speaker of the Young People's League.

"Why Alcohol?" Edward Maynard, member of the Intercollegiate Board of Alcoholic Control, will ask the Young People's League of Petworth Church at 7 p. m. tomorrow. The Intermediate League at 6:30 also is to hear a dialogue on the life of Helen Keller. Shirley Nolan will lead the program.

During the past week the First Congregational Church confirmed the following as members of the board of junior deaconesses for 1939:

Mary Esther Bailey, Mary Jane Benson, Jean Blanchard, Mildred Craig, Mrs. Madeline Eckstein, Grace Louise Greenwood, Charlotte Humrichhouse, Muriel Hurd, Mrs. Dorothy Lord, Mrs. Josephine Adams, Elaine Olmstead, Harriet Parker, Mrs. Marion Radley, Jean Smith, Ione Stuckey, Mrs. Betty Wells, Florence West and Dorothy Wilcox.

After that imposing list of names, it is a pleasure to record that the young men of the board of junior deacons have elected one—and only one—to be their chairman. He is Carl Freeman.

Bethany Baptist B. Y. P. U. would seem to be heading for a busy evening tomorrow.

William Caskey, director of the service commission, will direct the presentation of a special "life service" program at 6:45 p. m. After this members of the union will have charge of the evening church service, and following this they will attend a Seth Parker meeting at the home of George and Verona Ruhl.

The Rector's Lenten Message

By Dr. Z. B. Phillips
Rector Church of the Epiphany

The season of Lent is unique in its challenge, for while on the one hand is calls to self-denial, it quite clearly on the other hand invites to self-indulgence.

One of the paradoxes of the Christian philosophy of life is that which says we must die to live if we would disclaim parentage from the dust and live as befits our royal heritage. It is this paradox, imperfectly understood no doubt, that is responsible for much of the unsuccess of the keeping of Lent, for so many people linger in the negative sphere of mere self-denial, which, while it naturally fosters the spirit of pride, also keeps them from entering into a life of achievement, which should always be the result of self-mastery and the living of the higher life in all its fullness.

The stoic could crush his fleshly instincts, and so can we, but unless our human personality glows with the spirit of devotion to the Christ, issuing in service to our fellow-men, we shall be but aware at the close of Lent of the real meaning of that parable which describes the soul as swept and garnished, but left empty 'til pre-empted by evil spirits, so that our last state shall be worse than the first.

Of course we want to live decent lives, engendered by self-denial and the overcoming of our peculiar temptations, but our goal should be to live in deeds, not years, to measure time by thoughts and heart-throbs for others, that loving Gob above all else and hating those sins from which Christ has redeemed us, we may comfort those who are in sorrow, strengthen the faint-hearted and above all speak the word to those about us that shall make them unafraid.

So may we keep our Lent.

Industrialists Hail Hopkins' Iowa Address

Harriman Cites His Railroad's Purchases Since Nomination

By the Associated Press.

Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 26.—W. A. Harriman, chairman of the board of the Union Pacific Railroad, tonight said Secretary of Commerce Hopkins' "business reassurance" speech "indicated his understanding of the necessity of the profit system."

"The address should be encouraging to every one responsible for the conduct of business," said Harriman, who is chairman of the commerce department's business advisory council.

"He (Hopkins) talked in terms business men will understand. His statements on public utilities show that reform is substantially completed and that the energies of Government hereafter will be directed toward recovery."

Cites Purchases of Road

In a brief talk preceding Hopkins' address before the Economic Club, Harriman said that the Union Pacific has purchased 2,300 freight cars and 15 locomotives since Hopkins was nominated to the Cabinet.

He predicted that Hopkins "will be the greatest Secretary of Commerce that we ever have had."

New York, Feb. 24 (AP).—In business circles where comment was available on Secretary Hopkins' speech tonight the reaction reflected approval, although some executives tempered their appraisal of the Secretary's remarks with a suggestion that business wait for a practical demonstration of his program.

Floyd L. Carlisle, chairman of consolidated Edison of New York, one of the largest utility systems in the country, said he felt that Hopkins' comment on public utilities "clearly indicates a desire on the part of the administration to remove the doubt that may be existing in the public mind as to the competitive fields of public ownership and operation and the fields occupied by the private companies. . . .

"If the effect of the Government's policy aids in reopening the securities markets a healthy expansion in the public utilities will follow."

Wilkie's Comment

Wendell L. Willkie, president of Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, said:

"It is hoped that Mr. Hopkins speaks with the authority of those Governmental agencies that have to do with the power industry. If so, then his offer of co-operation . . . will be reassuring. . . .

"The log jam in utility investment, which if broken would mean so much in promoting employment, must be broken by action on the part of Government."

Pedestrians Complain Right-Turning Autos Prevent Them From Crossing Streets Legally

350 Boy Scouts To Aid in Education Program Today

Washington pedestrians—almost to the man (and woman)—who gave their views on the new walking rules yesterday protested loudly against the "menace of right-turning vehicles when we are attempting to lawfully cross busy streets."

As they commented for benefit of The Washington Post-WJSV pedestrian control survey at principal downtown intersections, both natives and out-of-town visitors took opportunities to strike at motorists who refuse to yield the right-of-way while making turns.

"I'm willing to abide by the new regulations," said one woman at Fourteenth and G streets northwest, "but how can I do it and still get across the street on a green light? Why, the light changes even before I have had a chance to step from the curb."

Wants Motorists Educated

Told that provisions of the recently adopted pedestrian laws require drivers to permit free passage of walkers who cross on proper signals, the woman added:

"Then I feel this 'education' period being conducted by the police should apply more to motorists and not so much to pedestrians—we are willing, but it's going to take more than willingness."

Many persons who gathered around the WJSV sound truck at Fourteenth and F streets northwest earlier in the day expressed doubt that the new law will succeed unless certain intervals are provided for pedestrians to cross while vehicular traffic waits.

"What we need to make this thing something more than a joke," remarked a man who asked permission to speak into the WJSV microphone, "is expansion of the so-called 'walk' light system now being used on F street at two corners. By this method, a pedestrian would have a definite signal on which to move and they could walk with the assurance that some car is not going to sneak up behind them."

At Fourteenth and F streets, Policeman W. E. Clark said about 50 per cent of all pedestrians who cross at his corner obey the lights. "And the other 50 per cent obey them when I blow my whistle," he laughed.

The crossing officer at Fourteenth and G streets—Policeman A. G. Paul—said he is convinced from watching operation of the rules since they were placed in effect earlier this week that arrests for violations after March 10 will not be necessary.

"The way they (pedestrians) are catching on now," said Paul, "I don't believe we will have much trouble after this period of education is over."

Capt. Milton D. Smith, who in the last several days has kept in constant touch with progress of the control program, recorded his sentiments when the WJSV mobile unit stopped at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue during the afternoon rush hour.

Capt. Smith said "each day seems to show that more and more persons are becoming familiar with the intent of the regulations. With the added publicity of having some 300 Boy Scouts stationed at downtown intersections tomorrow to help this education program, I feel everyone in town will be fully acquainted with the rules by March 10, when they actually become enforced with fines and penalties."

Capt. Smith referred to special details of 350 Boy Scouts who today will augment crossing policemen.

One group of Scouts will be on duty from 10 a. m. until 2 p. m., and another from 2 p. m. until 6 p. m. Under the direction of 15 scout officials and Washington I. Cleveland, of the American Autobmobile Association, the boys have been specially trained for the job.

French and Franco Reach Agreement On Recognition

French

Daladier that "if a crisis breaks out in March" the government which has "compromised French security can be considered responsible."

This served Daladier admirably as a cue for his argument.

"It is precisely in order not to have to defend the 'third frontier' that France must have good relations with the real Spanish government," he told the Chamber.

"The British government advised us on February 22 that it considered the hour had come to recognize Franco as a result of declarations Franco had made to Hodgson (British agent Sir Robert Hodgson) on the independence of Spain and his internal policy. Britain judged these wholly satisfactory and resolved not to let another week pass without recognition.

"The final reason for recognition is security. I am persuaded that we must be represented in Burgos because this year we must overcome redoubtable obstacles. Peace will be defended vigilantly. International politics are not stabilized and during the coming weeks and months I prefer for France to be represented at Burgos."

"Thus I took the decision for recognition. France must not be isolated."

With recognition a foregone conclusion, Spanish President Manuel Azana completed arrangements today to announce officially the third Spanish republic no longer exists. His announcement simply awaits official notification by France and Britain that they have recognized Franco.

Then Azana will hand his resignation to the president of the republican Cortes (Parliament), Diego Martinez, also a refugee here. Barrio, who today held a secret meeting with members of the Cortes now in Paris to agree on procedure, will inform the Cortes that there is no successor to Azana. He will say that since he himself, next in line of succession, refuses to take over the office the presidency therefore is extinct.

Barrio told the members of the Cortes that Foreign Minister Julio Alvarez del Vayo had secretly returned to Paris with a third demand from Premier Juan Negrin that Azana and other refugee government officials return immediately to Madrid to continue the war. The break between Azana and Negrin appeared complete and final.

Berard, who concluded official talks with Count Francisco Gomez Jordana, Franco's foreign minister, in their third meeting in Burgos today, conferred before leaving for Paris with Sir Robert Hodgson. It was emphasized here that now there is not the slightest difference of opinion between the French, British and Spanish (Nationalist) governments.

were listed as follows by the Army and Navy Munitions Board:

Antimony, chromium, manganese, manila fiber, nickel, quartz crystals, quinine, rubber, silk, tin, mica, mercury or quicksilver, and tungsten.

Materials less urgently listed included aluminum, coconut char (charcoal), optical glass and wool.

The bill also provides for researches to develop these materials, or substitutes for them, within the United States.

Meanwhile, Army and CCC officials appeared before the House Labor Committee to oppose proposals for military training of CCC enrollees.

Brig. Gen. George P. Tyner, Army assistant chief of staff, said his department never has advocated military training for the CCC "for many reasons."

"But if competent authority decides that such training be given," Tyner said, "the War Department favors limiting it to disciplinary training and simple drill movements only, and no weapons to be involved, except possibly for gallery practice as a recreational feature."

If this course is followed, Tyner said, all training should be in the camps on outside project work periods and concurrently with camp routine, such as reveille, falling in for work, retreat, and so on.

Hearings were being held on a bill by Chairman Mary Norton, of the Labor Committee, to make the CCC permanent.

James J. McEntee, acting CCC director, declared "We haven't any right to take this group of boys from poor families and tell them we are going to train them to defend the country."

"Defense is everybody's job, and if it is to be applied to these boys it ought to be general."

Rearmament Bill Rushed

Other developments on the national defense front:

Chairman Sheppard, of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, was rushing a favorable report on the $358,000,000 Army expansion bill preparatory to consideration of the measure in the Senate Monday. Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, indicated he would oppose the Senate increase in the Army's authorized plane strength from 5,500 to 6,000 planes.

The Senate Naval Affairs Committee was facing revival of the fight for restoration of $5.0000,000 harbor improvements at Guam to the Navy base bill, from which it was stricken by the House Thursday. Chairman Walsh said he favored the Guam item as a means of aiding commercial aviation across the Pacific, but he saw little possibility it would be approved.

Associated Press dispatches from Tokyo said the Japanese press gave prominence to House action defeating the project, but Japanese naval officials withheld comment. An official spokesman recalled a previous statement that the Guam improvements were "not important strategically, but an unfriendly gesture."

Warring Gets 26-Month Term; Court Clears Two Attorneys

Warring

vestigating one of them, was sentenced to three months in jail.

"You might have gotten involved in an affair which would have brought to you a long term of imprisonment," said Justice Laws. "I have considered your co-operation and also the fact that you did not personally reach a juror. However, I cannot entirely ignore the willingness which you showed to engage in an enterprise which might defeat the ends of justice."

Each defendant was hustled out of the courtroom as soon as he heard his sentence. All the prisoners except Warring will serve their terms in District Jail. Warring, because his term is more than a year, will be confined where the Department of Justice directs. It was believed he would be kept near the District until the conspiracy charges are disposed of.

Whether the defendants will get time off their jail terms for good behavior is in the hands of Justice Laws.

Held Grave Menace

Justice Laws began his 12-page opinion with a general discussion of the jury-tampering scandal. He said that it was the solemn duty of the courts to demand that rugged honesty be maintained by all parties and that should confidence in the administration of justice be lost it would be "one of the gravest menaces which might affect our community, even our country."

He had resolved, he said, that the investigation be persistent and determined as well as temperate and fair, so that the punishment of the guilty would serve as a sharp warning to others. Many agencies had been aroused, Justice Laws said, and it would "be reassuring to the court, as well as to the public in general, if those agencies would carry on after the court proceedings have been concluded."

Justice Laws briefly announced his reasons for adjudging Denekas in contempt and analyzed at length the evidence against Whelan and O'Connell.

Two Lawyers Absolved

A respondent in a criminal contempt of court proceeding, he said, must be presumed innocent until proved guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. "If the case were being tried by a jury, I should have to instruct them to follow these rules and, of course, I also must follow them."

Whelan and O'Connell were accused by Upperman of having paid him $110. Emmitt Warring swore that it was he who paid the money. Of Upperman Justice Laws said that he came before the court "not only as an accomplice but as a totally discredited man." Upperman failed by his demeanor on the witness stand to remove this discredit, said the court. His "recollection was vague." He lacked "a full and complete attitude of telling the truth." His testimony was "without any real corroboration."

Two Are Criticized

Justice Laws said he had considered whether any motive was shown for Upperman to make untrue charges, but that it was the law that motive need not be proved to support conviction of a crime, and "the same rule must arise to protect defendants."

Whelan and O'Connell denied all of Upperman's charges.

Justice Laws said that he found the attorneys not guilty, but he criticized them for not having reported improper conduct by Upperman in asking them for money and offering to take messages from the Warrings to a prisoner in Atlanta penitentiary.

Prosecutors Praised

For their "diligent and vigorous" investigation, the court praised by name District Attorney Pine, Assistant District Attorneys Fihelly and Wilson and Lieut. Earle Hartman, of the Metropolitan police. He commended also the "dignified and honest approach" of the defense counsel.

Whelan and O'Connell issued a joint statement after their acquittal that "the citation afforded us the opportunity we insisted upon having to publicly disprove the charges against us."

Four deputy marshals named from the witness stand were required to resign by United States Marshal John B. Colpoys. Two others, Thomas R. East and Harry C. Allen, who were witnesses for Whelan and O'Connell, are under suspension.

Justice Laws set Wednesday for an open discussion of the date of a third Warring trial. Emmitt Warring would face the court beside his brothers, Charles (Rags), 30, and Leo Paul, 35, who were his partners in building up the numbers racket. Also accused is Gordon L. R. Sadur, income tax expert for the gang.

Hungary Raids Nazis

By the Associated Press.

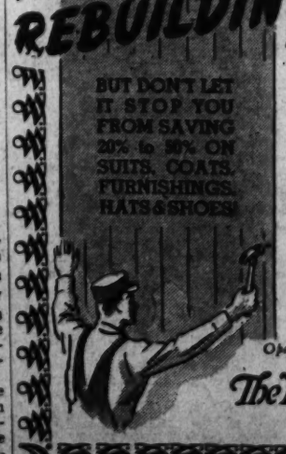

Budapest, Feb. 24.—Hungary's new government today smashed the nation's largest party of Nazi sympathizers and at the same time, with seeming contradiction, allied Hungary formally with Nazi Germany in an anticommunist pact.

Premier Count Paul Teleky, who took office February 16, banned the Hungarist Party as a danger to public safety. In swift raids carrying out his order, police arrested more than 500 persons, ousted the party from its headquarters throughout the country and seized tons of documents and propaganda material.

While the raids were in progress, Foreign Minister Count Stephen Csaky signed the anticomintern agreement which pledged Hungary to aid Germany, Italy and Japan in fighting communism throughout the world. (Manchuokuo, Japan's protectorate, also signed the pact today.)

Police said they had evidence the Hungarists aimed at a change in the state by violence and by persistent propaganda tried to bring the nation's head, regent Admiral Nicholas Horthy, into disrepute.

In Aid Of Fair Play

Attorney General Murphy's efforts to bring about "procedural reform in the field of administrative law" are very timely. With constant extension of quasi-judicial agencies, the rules under which they operate become a subject of increasing importance. The Administration has too long neglected the need for more uniform practices in this field.

Fortunately, a great deal of pioneer work has already been done by the special committee on administrative law of the American Bar Association. For several years that agency has been at work, analyzing practices within various independent agencies of government, studying procedure in other countries and formulating general standards to which it believes all administrative units should conform. Last January a measure prepared by this committee was adopted as the Bar Association's administrative law bill.

Some parts of this bill have aroused sharp controversy, but the soundness of the fundamental aim is scarcely open to question. Its object is to regularize the rule-making power, assure a fair hearing to individuals whose interests are involved in cases before administrative agencies, and facilitate judicial review of administrative decisions.

Mr. Murphy's committee is more representative than that of the Bar Association. Its chairman is drawn from the Department of Justice. But it also includes representatives of the District Court of Appeals and of the American Bar Association. Considering the complexity and importance of the subject under investigation, it is clearly desirable in advance of legislation to have the findings and recommendations of this group to lay beside those of the Bar Association.

Action should not, however, be too long delayed. As Justice Frankfurter has pointed out, "there are very precious values of civilization which ultimately, to a large extent, are procedural in their nature." Citizens must be protected against such arbitrary procedure as the Supreme Court exposed in the Department of Agriculture last year. At the same time administrative agencies must be left free to function with efficiency and dispatch when once the requirements of fair play have been met.

It will be difficult to establish a uniform mode of procedure that will serve both purposes. But the chance of enacting a satisfactory formula has been greatly enhanced by the work the Bar Association has done, and by the study the Department of Justice is now undertaking.

A Peaceful Axis

In his speech in the House of Commons Thursday, Lord Halifax took pains to reiterate Prime Minister Chamberlain's recent pledge of assistance to France. It is significant that the British foreign secretary found it advisable to do so. It is equally significant that the language he used in aligning Great Britain on the side of her ally was even stronger than that employed by his chief.

On February 6 the British premier declared that "the solidarity of interest" uniting Great Britain and France is such "that any threat to the vital interests of France, from whatever quarter it came, must evoke the immediate co-operation of this country."

This statement was as forthright as it was clear. It obviously meant that an attack by Italy, or by Italy and Germany in combination, on French territory would meet with the united resistance of both democracies.

Apparently it was not so understood in Berlin and Rome. At least those capitals have been busily engaged in explaining that this British declaration did not mean what it appeared to mean and therefore could be discounted. Undoubtedly these explanations were designed to ascertain the determination behind the British attitude. If not officially contradicted it could be assumed that the Chamberlain statement was actually subject to discount.

No wonder, then, that Lord Halifax has sought to squelch so dangerous an assumption by again warning the dictators that Great Britain and France stand solidly together in their readiness mutually to protect their vital interests. To give point to his contention he dismissed as baseless the apparently inspired reports from Rome that Great Britain plans to act as mediator in the dispute between Italy and France. Only if both parties desired it, he said, would Great Britain agree to do so. And so far Italy has not even indicated what "may be the precise points of difference between it and France."

Coming at this time, Lord Halifax's statement should clear the air. Once it is clearly understood that France and Great Britain stand together there will be less temptation to seek another Munich. In such unity there is strength and in such strength, peace.

Discriminating Justice

At no place does the process of government touch the life of the citizen so vitally as in the court room. The tax-collector may deplete our purse. The Army, through proper legislation, may require military service. But only the courts may deprive the individual of his Constitutional guarantees, as a personal matter, for the good of the community. It follows that the caliber of our judicial agencies is a factor of great weight in determining the attitude of citizens toward their government.

Washington has just experienced a remarkable demonstration of the influence for good which the courts can exercise. Judge Laws has turned the Warring scandal into an uplifting community influence which should have far-reaching effects upon future law enforcement and law observance in the District. The disgrace of the conditions uncovered by the court and by the District Attorney's office has not been minimized. But the skillful, thorough and persistent manner in which the jury-tampering episode was investigated, and the restraint of the court in imposing punishment, lend new dignity and increased respect for the processes of justice.

Judge Laws might have been ruthless in imposing sentences. In cases of contempt the punishment to be meted out is left entirely to the discretion of the court. But he rightly saw no advantage in merely striking a vengeful blow in the name of society. After he had made every effort to get an accurate picture of the bribery efforts of each defendant, he adopted an attitude of even-tempered justice.

It can not be said that the prison sentence of two years and two months meted out to Emmitt Warring, and the shorter sentences given other defendants, are in any way excessive, considering the magnitude of the offense. But it must be remembered, as Judge Laws pointed out, that Warring was sentenced only for contempt of court in connection with the jury tampering. The defendant has not been legally charged with violation of the gambling laws, and the income tax fraud case must be heard once more before any decision on that issue can be reached.

The judge's clear reasoning in the exoneration of Attorneys Whelan and O'Connell was no less distinguished than his handling of the other cases. He has left the community with a very strong impression that he is as scrupulous in avoiding any injustice as in imposing penalties where all reasonable doubt of guilt has been removed. Justice is thus sharpened to a keen edge.

There is a suggestion in the evidence that exposure of the entire scandal is a result of this conscientious administration of justice in Judge Law's court. The case was broken by the juror Denekas only after he had remained silent in the jury box for several days. Was he prompted to confess his relations with Warring by the discriminating fairness of the court he had been called upon to serve? Certainly that would not be an illogical reaction to the atmosphere of a dignified, conscientious and scrupulously fair tribunal.

In any event, the outcome of the case is one of which Washington may be proud. The local machinery of justice was put to a severe test and has emerged with a dignity which must greatly strengthen public confidence in its future operations. After such a contribution to the cause of intelligent law enforcement it is difficult to believe that the prospective transfer of Judge Laws from the criminal bench will stand.

Not Easy To Replace

The resignation of W. Frank Persons as director of the United States Employment Service is a matter of regret to all who are familiar with the careful and conscientious work he has done as head of a rapidly-expanding and most important agency. Fortunately Mr. Persons is not withdrawing from Government service. He is to assume an executive position with the CCC, where his wide experience will be no less valuable than his high personal integrity.

The best tribute that can be paid to a retiring official of the caliber of Mr. Persons is to insure that his successor will be a trained administrator capable of carrying on effectively the work which has been so well begun. The United States Employment Service is an organization which already touches the lives of millions of workers. It has guided the establishment of a State-Federal system of public employment offices which now covers every part of the country. With the coming into force of unemployment compensation these public offices have become centers to which all the unemployed in insured occupations gravitate, since they are required to register as a condition of receiving benefits.

As a result the active files of the local employment offices have not only lengthened rapidly but they are now representative of the working population as a whole, skilled as well as unskilled, competent as well as inefficient.

As time passes the work of these employment agencies will continue to expand and new duties will no doubt be assumed. Already a great variety of activities is being carried on, apart from simple registration and placement of the unemployed. There are, for instance, the problems of finding work for the aged and handicapped, of vocational guidance for young people entering employment, of making suitable provision for those displaced from their former occupations by technological changes.

These are tasks to challenge the ability and resourcefulness, and to arouse the enthusiasm, of the most highly trained and capable of public servants.

Taxes And Enterprise

After reiterating the President's assurance that no new taxes are contemplated Secretary Morgenthau on Thursday expressed the hope that Congress will "take a careful look at the tax law and see if there are any deterrents which are holding back businessmen from making future commitments."

This evidence of solicitude for productive enterprise is as gratifying as it is unexpected. Heretofore the Administration and its Treasury advisers have paid very little attention to the economic effects of the heavy taxes that have discouraged initiative and checked industrial expansion. They have been chiefly concerned with the ethical or equitable aspects of our tax problems, attaching great importance to plugging loopholes by which taxes are evaded and advocating forms of progressive taxation inimical to capital accumulation.

This one-sided emphasis largely explains why the Administration has so strongly supported the oppressive capital gains tax and the taxation of undistributed profits, despite abundant evidence of their deterrent effect upon industrial and investment activity. Last spring the President's active opposition to abolition of the undistributed profits tax, and his defense of the progressive taxation of capital gains, did not prevent Congress from adopting a tax measure that brought some relief to business. But it did serve to retain the undistributed profits tax "in principle." And it strengthened belief that the Administration was largely indifferent to the effect of its tax policies upon business.

So long as the major objective was equity in taxation, in disregard of the inhibiting effects of such taxes upon capital accumulation, hence upon industrial expansion, businessmen were naturally disinclined to take normal risks. Secretary Morgenthau's present solicitude for their welfare is, therefore, the more encouraging.

If the Administration really wishes to inspire business confidence, however, it will not be sufficient merely to refrain from levying new taxes, or adjusting existing tax burdens. It must also restrict the scale of Federal expenditures so as to make budget-balancing possible. Otherwise all classes of taxpayers must be prepared to pay more and higher taxes no matter how seriously such impositions hamper enterprise. The only alternative to that unpleasant necessity is eventual financial disaster for all whose well-being is, directly or indirectly, dependent upon preservation of the public credit. And that means everybody.

Spreading The Light

Goethe's last prayer has long been answered, save in a spiritual sense. The world has traveled far since Abraham Lincoln studied by the light of a pine knot. Nowadays the paths of learning have indirect lighting; and the day after tomorrow, perhaps, a student may be able to strike a divine spark simply by touching a button.

Ay, nowadays, so far has night usurped the day that outdoor games are played after the sun has set; and it is indeed a long, long way from the candle's fitful gleam to the floodlight's great illumination.

And those same floodlights know some disrepute. Consider the plight and the plea of the people living in the neighborhood of Shibe Park, Philadelphia. They have never objected to baseball games by daylight. On the contrary, for a flat roof and a good glass may prove as satisfactory as admission to the bleachers. But night games are another story. What privacy can there be in a bedroom where huge flood lights give the field and all its surroundings a pitiless publicity? About as much as that afforded Irving Cobb's goldfish.

The plea of the neighbors has been turned down by Philadelphia's zoning commission, the members of which have doubtless taken to heart that principle of a democracy that desires the greatest good to the greatest number. There are thousands who will be able to see the game who have no chance to spend an afternoon at the park and it may be that the floodlights will enable the team-owners to see daylight.

It may even be that being in the bright lights, under proper auspices, may turn the league-trailers into league-leaders; for men ever act according to their lights.

"Many birds sing without opening their bills," declares a naturalist. Maybe we'd feel more like singing if we didn't open ours.

The Griffenhagen Plan

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

So many public comments, editorials and resolutions criticizing the Griffenhagen report are heard, and so little emphasis placed on the general and sweeping good points in the plan that, I fear, the members of Congress may get the impression that the people of the District are opposed to the report.

Most of the criticism seems to be centered on the inclusion of the public school system in the general plan. I believe the criticism concerning the school set-up is justified, for the reason that there should be an autonomous school board rather than an advisory council, as suggested.

However, let the Congress and the people of the District in general be reminded that there seems to be little criticism, if any, on the other 16 divisions in the Griffenhagen plan. I deplore the fact that most of the published statements seem to center on criticism of the plan, and so little is being said on the many good points in the report. Let us remember there are 17 major divisions in the plan and the criticism is mainly on only one of the 17.

Let me urge those interested in being heard on the subject to emphasize the strong points in the 16 major divisions of the report not criticized. There is the danger that Congress may get the impression that because one section of the report—that on education—is severely criticized the people of the District oppose the whole plan. That would be a serious mistake indeed. I think the plan, with the exception of the Department of Education, is good and should have the enthusiastic publicity it deserves.

Prosperity by Bookkeeping

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

I once heard our President say that there is no overproduction in our country; that one-third of our people were ill-fed, ill-housed and poorly clothed; and that what we lacked was purchasing power. Now I hear there is a man employed to tell the people how and why to decrease production.

I have also heard that we are living in a changing world; that a century ago our great problem was how to produce enough for the people's needs. But it seems that some foolish inventors and scientists came along and changed all that. Now we have produced so much that we cannot consume the output. Is it inconsistent to say we have no overproduction, and then employ an expert to hire people to produce less. Why not figure out how to increase consumption?

I also heard that our monetary system is now a mere matter of bookkeeping; that when the banks bought $1,000,000,000 worth of bonds, they credited the United States Treasury account with $1,000,000,000 or "actually created $1,000,000,000 by a bookkeeping entry." Couldn't Uncle Sam employ one of those superbookkeepers to keep books for him and thus furnish some of this so needed purchasing power?

"What For Is Democracy?"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

That was an able and lucid editorial headed "What For Is Democracy?" in The Post of February 22. An editorial in the same tenor appeared in your nearest competitor in suave and distinguished writing, the New York Times. If only Dorothy Thompson, who wrote the screed "To the Intolerant," on the page opposite yours, could be induced to retire into the silences with those editorials for just a few minutes, to read and to ponder them.

I gather that Miss Thompson's male associate in turbulence in Madison Square Garden the other night was fined, while she went unpunished. We Americans are peculiarly tolerant of unruly women, because of the eternal merit won for the sex by our women of frontier days. Some highly regrettable ladies have coasted along since on that merit.

Miss Thompson may mean as well as Carrie Nation did, but her unthinking zeal is harmful.

She makes a partisan issue of tolerance and she has rallied a following, and in answer the Ku Klux comes back to life, and the Nazi bund packs Madison Square Garden to the crow's nest and welcomes in the Coughlinites and even dares cock an eye at the Republican Party itself. And distinguished and responsible Americans country-wide—William R. Castle, former Undersecretary of State, in Pittsfield, Mass., last night—are forced against their inclination to defend Miss Thompson's elected enemies.

It is salutary and may allay the growing storm to have Washington's leading newspaper, and New York's leading newspaper, define again philosophic and American tolerance as tolerance of one's opponents.

THOMAS McMORROW.
Washington, Feb. 22.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

I wish I could concur in the complacency expressed in your editorial, "What For Is Democracy?" and believe that the "irritation which it (bund meeting) causes, compared with the value of the legacy of freedom, is a triviality." But I can't.

It may be true, as you said, that "fools must be suffered in order that principles may be preserved," but we are not dealing with fools. The only fools in this case are you and I and other liberals who permit and protest and thereby encourage a gang of criminals to mislead a large section of the American public and to destroy this very "legacy of freedom." Without any doubt they will destroy our freedom unless we remove our heads from the somewhat intoxicating and nebulous atmosphere of "principles" and come down to practical, earthy life.

The first law is the law of self-preservation and the sine qua non of any desirable life is the will to defend it. There is no spontaneous life in democracy, as so many liberals fondly imagine. It may survive if vigorously defended, but it will surely die if we permit the Nazis to slander and misrepresent our institutions and divide the people of this country. Only a surrealist can find strength for democracy in the fact that a meeting could be held where the President of the United States was insulted by the speakers and hissed by the audience. To me it indicates only treason and a definite menace to our way of life.

Isn't it about high time that we suspend our hifalutin lip service to democracy long enough to insist upon plain loyalty to the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States, to demand from naturalized citizens, who foreswore allegiance to foreign governments, to live up to their oath, to forbid agitation for the overthrow of our form of government?

What law of God or man bids us to help those who would destroy us and what obligation to be tolerant do we have to those who regard intolerance as their first article of faith?

Appreciations

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Many times since coming to Washington our pleasure and satisfaction has been so great as a reader of your paper that I wished you might know it, though I am only one of the thousands who read it. To have the privilege of such fine analytical editorials, and the articles of Dorothy Thompson and Walter Lippmann, whom we have previously read in the Kansas City Star—and a writer, new to us, Barnet Nover, so well informed and keen—and Ernest K. Lindley, whose article on Justice Brandeis was a fine tribute and analysis of the progress of human thought!

But probably being one of those who all too seldom comment on what they enjoy, I would have continued silent except for an article by Hazel Scaife Detwiler, "The Nameless Masterpiece." For it I was specially grateful as a friend had told me of such a statue in Washington known as "Grief." I was unable to locate it until last month when I was very impressed by its mystery and beauty and very eager to know more of it.

Would new residents could know more of the historical and cultural in the city.

Wants A City College

To the Editor of The Post.—Sir:

A city college is very much needed by the students in Washington. Washington is the Capital of the United States, yet, it does not have adequate educational facilities.

Many students who wish to attend college can not because of financial difficulties. Many cannot get jobs and some are driven to the road of crime. It would be a saving on the morals of the youth of today and the diminishing of the crimes committed by youth.

Jobs are getting harder and harder to obtain and the person who has a college degree has a great advantage over the high school graduate. Yet, Washington does not have a city college to help the students to continue their education. Many cities and States have municipal colleges besides the expensive private institutions. Washington does have Wilson Teachers College but anyone can see it is inadequate for the needs of our city as it has but one profession on the curriculum, and that is teaching.

I believe something should be done about this great lack of a city college.

Miss Thompson Vs. Bund

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

It is a cheering thing to see that Dorothy Thompson, The Washington Post's eminent writer and patriot, had the initiative and courage to rise in opposition to the bund's recent great un-American gathering.

It is truly amazing to think that there are as many as 18,000 or so persons living in these United States who would attend such a meeting, thereby virtually placing their stamp of approval on Hitler's agents here and the utter intolerance and hitherto unreached depths of stupidity they represent.

A mite of the energy now being expended by Congress in rearmament legislation could well be diverted into one more channel—wiping out of these bunds, which are dark stains on the banner of freedom. The longer these bunds are allowed to spread their poisonous roots into American soil, the more difficult will be our cleanup and clear-out task.

The Post Impressionist

Ozark Beau Brummel

THE PROBLEM of what to wear during my winter in the Ozarks is a trying one. Heretofore I have never given much thought to my clothes. I have always had two suits and sometimes more, and it has been simply a question of wearing first one and then the other, and of trying to remember to have them pressed occasionally, but never at the same time, of course.

When they are fresh from the cleaners I am acutely conscious of the sharp crease in the trousers and very careful about what I do with my legs. The next time I am caught in the rain or the next evening spent in drinking porter removes this self-consciousness, but no sooner am I happy and comfortable in my clothes than some well-meaning friend tells me that I look disreputable and that I should have my clothes pressed.

There are no such worries in this Ozark village, for regular, store-bought suits of clothes are not worn, except by the jeunesse dorée when they go courting and by their elders when they go to church. I fall into neither category.

Outsiders think that it is de rigueur to wear overalls and a faded blue shirt in the Ozarks, but we are not hillbillies here at Potter. We have a Rotary Club (6 p. m. on Wednesdays), electric lights and running water, movies three times a week, and a recreation parlor with a bowling alley. Our civic pride would be offended if we were all to dress so drably.

I have studied the clothes of my fellow-boarders at the Riverside Hotel, but since no two of them dress alike my studies have not helped me much. The only points these outfits have in common is that they combine originality, durability, and colorfulness, and that they don't show dirt easily.

Bill, for instance, wears cowboy boots with high heels and embroidered uppers, a purple silk scarf ornamented with pink flowers and knotted under his right ear, and a huge white hat. Bill has never been seen on a horse, but he says that he is from Texas. In spite of the fact that I haven't missed a Wild West picture since I have been here, I doubt if I could get away with such a costume.

Harry the truck driver, on the other hand, rejoices in a violent plaid jacket and gray spats. I once tried wearing spats during my salad days in Cambridge, but that was in the era of dirty flannel bags and battered hats. My friends pointed out to me the error of my ways, and I relinquished the practice.

For sheer, flamboyant color, nothing can rival Frank's flannel shirts, or, at least, nothing could rival them when he first appeared in them. He has a red one, a green one, and a blue one, but their beauty, like the rose, soon fades. After they have been worn for about a fortnight, they almost have to be washed. Then their brilliance gives way to a depressing dinginess.

Mike wears what might be described as a two-tone ensemble. Both his shirt and his trousers are of the same material, gray with a darker gray check. Either they wear remarkably well or else Mike does not do very dirty work, for in the six weeks that he has been wearing them they have not darkened perceptibly.

Ties are rarely seen. Vernon the engineer, however, sports a ready-made black bow tie, with a large diamond stickpin between the first and second buttons of his shirt. I can't afford a diamond, much as I should like to have one, so that is out of the question for me.

Howard, who plays basketball, wears a sweat shirt, so that he always appears about to begin or just to have finished a game. Sweat shirts look warm and comfortable, but I don't play basketball.

Lyle, my constant companion at the bowling alley, appears in a dark blue sweater. The front of it is largely taken up by a huge red circle, with the legend "Missouri Pacific" in white. I envy him this sweater, for it gives ease in bowling, but I have never so much as ridden on the Missouri Pacific lines.

Vernon, who has just returned from a CCC camp, wears 1 ea shirt, W. O. D. And the other day I saw an old man wearing a still older officer's blouse, the sort that buttons right up to the neck, complete with shoulder straps. But the military note seems a bit out of place in this tranquil community, where the consensus of opinion is that the President had better be trying to pay off the national debt instead of spending all that money buying planes for the Air Corps to kill theirselves with!

Perhaps the most elegant garment our assembly can boast is a skin-tight rayon pull-over of a most delicate salmon pink, in which Joe appears resplendent every Saturday night, but he admits that it is pretty chilly for these February evenings.

Norman, who works in the office and is something of a dude, has blue corduroy trousers and jacket and cuts a figure straight from the pages of La Vie de Boheme, if he only knew it.

And I? At the present moment I am wearing a shirt I bought at Garfinckel's in an expansive mood and a pair of khaki slacks that still bear traces of Colorado asphalt that I acquired while changing a tire on the road to Central City. It is a drab, colorless, unoriginal outfit, and I am ashamed to wear it.

But my new costume, in addition to being original, durable, and colorful, must also be fireproof. Since I have begun rolling my own cigarettes, some part or other of my attire is almost continually smoldering. There seems to be some little knack to the art that I haven't yet acquired.

Perhaps overalls and a faded blue shirt would be best, after all.

Baying Hounds

SOME OF OUR people—a little more level-headed than others, perhaps—insist that it is a mistake to jaw back at the Hitler Bolsheviks in Germany and here, on the theory that if we refuse to answer back they will yell themselves out and lie down. In a way the situation suggests the barking of dogs in the country on a still night when the moon is full. Dogs seem to go a little bit crazy when the moon is full, and when one starts to sound off another a mile away will answer back, and another a mile off in another direction will take it up, and so on, until a whole country is a bedlam.

But then if an owner here and there in the chain of disturbance calls his mutt into the house, whangs it a good one over the tail with a strap or switch and tells it to shut up, for gossakes, and locks it in the cellar, that breaks the spell. Receiving no answer to their remarks, which appear to be insulting in character, the dogs which remain in the wrangle, being out of earshot of one another, presently begin to brief up their comments. Their voices lose force, and in another half hour they drop down with their eyes half shut and their back hair subsiding and drowse off with a few diminished wuggs and grunts. Then everything falls quiet and peace reigns.

Maybe Sunspots Cause the Trouble

SOME REALLY sensible people, at a loss for any other reason for the silly temper of the human race these last 20-some years, have been speculating seriously on the idea that we are victims of some mysterious rays of sunspots. That sounds as good as any other explanation, but no better, and can be referred to the entertainment committee. But we do know that Hitler is a screwball, the first dog in the chorus, yawping and bellying away from the mountaintop where he hides out alone with God only knows what lunatic thoughts and fancies in his queer, shrewish brain, and trying to answer him or outlast him is a futile and undignified occupation for people who are sane by any of the accepted tests.

And we have been seeing, too, that if we attempt to answer him or argue with him we sound almost as crazy as he is, because it is impossible to conduct repartee which is goofy on one side and intelligent on the other. He and his fellow Bolsheviks, such as Joe (How's the Wife?) Goebbels and his agents here in the anti-American bund, have the initiative and the advantage. They pose some insane proposition and argue in double talk, and the first thing we know we are trying to discuss a lunatic idea in sensible language and baying as noisily and foolishly as Hitler himself.

How Can You Argue With Man Like This?

NOW, HOW CAN you make talk with a nut who brags that he has the toughest army and air force in the world and calls you a warmongering world terrorist because you decide to buy yourself a Boy Scout suit and a kite?

What answer can you give a maniac who slaughters and persecutes people of all religions and himself worships bonfires in the mood of a tenement firebug, but sends agents here to establish religious freedom in America?

Or can you talk sense to an international confederator, already convicted in court of spying on this Nation, who sends agents here to become naturalized and do treason among us, but roars warnings that native American Jews are disloyal?

Doesn't Need Laws To Prosecute 'Foes'

IS THERE ANY sane answer to a man who holds anti-American meetings under the protection of American laws, but in his own country decrees that any act against "the sound feeling of the nation" shall be punished even if there is no law against the act?

All the biographies of Hitler, except the official issues—which, of course, don't count—agree that he is a queerie of some sort. He shrieks and weeps, which is unmanly conduct, according to our ideas, at least; he lives on rhubarb and whey; he is a sulker and thumbsucker, and when the moon is high he may kil' his best friend or give orders that an old pal of his bosom be taken for a ride in a plane and made to walk the plank without so much as an umbrella.

I am inclined to think those people are more than half right who say we ought to let him do the howling and, for our part, keep our information on him up to date and store up all the guns we can, no matter what he says.

"I wish I hadn't bought that danged old race horse—he's determined he's gonna hug the rail!"

Abridged Hopkins' Text

Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 24 (AP).—A partial text of the address by Secretary Hopkins here tonight follows:

I have never belonged to the school of thought which holds that merely dividing up the present national income would provide a decent living for all. If new jobs are to be provided, the national income must be increased. . . .

The difficulties of business no longer swing with the fortunes of battles in the legislative halls where broad policies were being formulated, and no one could be sure what would come out of the hopper. What difficulties there are now are difficulties of administration in relation to broad policies which are formulated and known.

Among many businessmen there exists a widespread lack of confidence. I am prepared to accept that premise, nor would I underrate its importance. . . .

And yet there are few today who are not glad that this great program of social reform is on the statute books. If we look back at the reform of the past 20 years, taken as a whole, it is by no means startling in amount or scope. . . .

Is it not, therefore, better to have a program of reform substantially completed than to have to look forward to important changes not begun?

With the emphasis shifted from reform to recovery, this Administration is now determined to promote that recovery with all the vigor and power at its command.

Secretary Upholds Federal Spending

As part of this drive for recovery, it is important that there be a proper recognition of the value to business of Government expenditures, made in the proper way, in the proper amount, and at the proper time. . . .

The President's policy has significance from a number of points of view—from that of conservation of our natural resources, protection of the welfare of the unemployed, or of balancing the budget without resort to sharply higher taxes. Then from the point of view of business, this policy has a special interest, in what it aims at restoration of business health through increase of business activity. . . .

That is the significance of the President's quota of an $80,000,000,000 national income. It is in no sense an argument for a permanent unbalancing of the Federal budget. It is an argument based on the realization the budget can be balanced and the debt retired out of the taxes coming from this increased national income, rather than substantially increasing taxes at this time or reducing necessary expenditures.

While I feel there should be no general rise in Federal taxes this year, I believe any Federal taxes which tend to freeze the necessary flow of capital should be amended. If necessary such taxes can be replaced by increasing other taxes which do not have the same deterring effect.

One of the substantial avenues for private capital in the near future can be the field of public utilities. That being the case, it is extremely important there be a meeting of minds between the utilities and the Government relative to the appropriate spheres of action of Government on the one hand, and privately owned and operated utilities on the other.

Stresses Peace With Utilities

There is peace between the Government and the utilities in the Tennessee valley which, I believe, ends the era of great litigation.

I do not think any one outside of the Government can realize how much freer Government can operate in its relations with business—such as the utilities—now that both seem to be rid of the incubus of that self-styled big city constitutional lawyer. I am convinced most of our difficulties in this field originated with some fancy lawyers who advised their clients not to work things out with the Government on the theory that these lawyers would be able to defeat the Government in the courts, so that no working out of the things would ever be necessary.

I want to make it perfectly clear that I believe in labor unions. . . .

Labor on its own side faces responsibilities and obligations. The Government has strengthened labor's position with new laws not only as to wages and hours, but also to guarantee collective bargaining. Labor's contribution to a rising national income must be tolerance and fairness in reaching just agreements with employers. Labor must fully realize that under our economic system, businessmen have to make money to hire workers. . . .

I feel it is quite as much to the interest of business and industry as it is to the workers themselves, that those two great labor organizations, the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O., reconcile their differences. . . .

My experience has convinced me that there can be no solution to our problem of unemployment in the cities until the farmer regains his proper economic position in relation to the rest of the Nation's population.

. . . Certain types of enterprise, need sympathetic aid by the Government. For many years, we thought of steel as being a most reliable barometer of business conditions. Today we have what is perhaps a better guide—the operations of the so-called small business men. In cities and towns and villages the hundreds of thousands of small enterprises constitute the very backbone of our national, industrial and economic life. Upon the combined thinking and planning and action of those men depends to a large degree the prosperity and welfare of America. It is upon their vision and ingenuity and confidence and their ability to merchandise and promote and sell that much of our manufacturing, mining and transportation depends. Their operations affect the number of workers which any manufacturer can employ. Therefore, one of my principal interests as Secretary of Commerce will be to see that the resources of the Government are particularly directed towards aiding these small enterprises.

Foreign Trade Used as Vehicle

We must recognize that today foreign trade is being used by some countries as a vehicle to support political and cultural penetration. Unless we acquiesce in such penetration we must be prepared to meet quality, quantity and price on such a basis as to get the business. Competition of this character is a cherished tradition of American business, and I suspect we have both the talent and energy to apply it in the new setting of the international scene.

We have all dedicated ourselves to the maintenance—the successful maintenance—of our American system of free enterprise. . . .

It is imperative that freedom of opportunity be maintained for all who can contribute to our national well-being.

It is clear to me that a returning increase in production cannot be accomplished without a substantial increase in private investment. I have tried to indicate tonight that the Government is desirous of doing everything it can to create an environment in which private investment is encouraged.

If I were to sum up the Government's attitude toward business, it would be to repeat a statement that I made last summer, when I said:

"I can say from personal knowledge that the Government is not, and never has been, opposed to business. It has no desire whatever to harass or punish business. It fully realizes that business must succeed, and must be able to work with Government, if our economic system is to be preserved. It seeks an understanding and a meeting of minds, not only as to present points of conflict, but as to methods which will assure for the future, on the one hand, justice and fair dealing to all the people, and on the other, the confidence, success and legitimate profits of legitimate business enterprise. It has no quarrel with business merely because it is big; but big or little, it—the Government—intends to prevent practices which do violence to the effective working of our economic system."

Railroad Traffic Declared Diverted

I feel that competition from the highways and airways has diverted traffic from our railroads and has made the problem of the rehabilitation of these roads immediate and pressing. The railroads are, and must be, sustained as essential arteries of commerce and must be ready for use as part of our national defense.

Rehabilitation of the railroads and relating them to our present and future economy is not a simple matter. Indeed, it is probably one of the most difficult of all problems to solve—but I am firmly convinced that until it is solved, it is difficult to hope for anything like a complete recovery in America. . . .

While we have made splendid progress in breaking the jam of housing, we have a long way to go.

Today And Tomorrow

The Vote Against Fortifying Guam

CONSIDERING the way in which the authorization for Guam was presented to Congress, the action of the bi-partisan majority in the House was, it seems to me, fully justified. Nobody was thinking about Guam until the report of the Hepburn board appeared. That report was made by a committee of Naval officers appointed by order of Congress, and when the report was published it did not appear to have been officially considered and adopted by the Administration.

The report contained one recommendation which was obviously debatable, that the United States proceed to the establishment of an advance fleet base at Guam. This recommendation was obviously debatable because essentially and primarily it involved a great question of foreign policy.

No Legal Right To Fortify Guam

UNDER THE interpretation of the Washington treaties which the United States officially insists upon in all its dealings with Japan, we do not have a legal right to fortify Guam. No doubt it is true that Japan has broken the Washington treaties. But the position of the Administration has been and is that the treaties are still in force. That being our argument, it is our obligation to observe the treaties until by negotiation they are revised or by formal act they are abrogated.

Recognizing this position, the Administration should have gone to Congress and said that it will be necessary to negotiate with Japan for a settlement in the Pacific with a view to determining whether the existing treaties are to stand or are to be revised. Since Japan is believed to have taken steps to fortify certain islands, the forthcoming negotiations will be on a better basis if Congress has authorized the fortification of Guam. Whether Guam is in fact to be fortified would depend, however, upon the outcome of the negotiations, and since nothing could be done to fortify without an appropriation from Congress, the question would come back to Congress for final decision.

The Administration did not do this. For that reason the proposal had to be interpreted both here and abroad as a gesture of intimidation. It was, moreover, a poor gesture, the kind of thing that Theodore Roosevelt used to denounce as forcible-feeble. For while it contained an expression of general hostility to Japan, it contained little that could really impress Japan. Five million dollars for dredging a harbor and the like is no more than shaking a little finger at Japan; actually the construction of a formidable base at Guam would take at least three years and probbaly five, would call for a large amount of money and would require the concentration of the fleet at Hawaii to stand guard while the fortifications were being constructed.

House Used Good Sense in Rejection

INSTEAD of treating Guam as a diplomatic instrument in a negotiation with Japan, the Administration found itself using Guam, more or less inadvertently, as a feeble but provocative gesture. The majority of the House showed very good sense in rejecting it, and if the Administration is wise it will accept this decision and be glad that the House has extricated it from a badly conceived project. The Administration, should then make a new start toward negotiations with Japan, treating Guam as an incident in the much larger problem of peace and security in the Pacific Ocean.

It now remains to be seen whether the Japanese will construe correctly the vote of the House. If they wish to understand what has happened, the Japanese will do well to begin by dwelling on the fact that everything else in the bill was adopted by virtual unanimity. These additional bases are the equivalent of a great extension of American Naval power, and so it would be a grave mistake to think that Congress rejected the item about Guam because it is afraid, or because the United States is disposed to give any power a blank check to do what it likes all over the Pacific Ocean. If Japan takes that view of the vote in the House, and expands her aggression, she will discover to her dismay how rapidly the House is capable of reversing its position.

What the House did mean to do was to extend an olive branch to Japan and to rid the United States of all suspicion that it is threatening Japan or is desirous of provoking war with any one. If the Japanese were very wise they would respond by an equally conciliatory gesture of their own, and so begin to create an atmosphere in which negotiations could be undertaken.

American Attitude Is Puzzle Abroad

THOUGH THE action of the House was characteristically American, foreigners abroad and also foreigners who are here among us, have the greatest difficulty in understanding the very peculiar American way of behaving in situatic of this sort. Americans have been free for such a long time that they have developed a method all their own of reacting to situations where force is brought into play.

The sit-down strikes of 1937 are a good example to study. These strikes were lawless. But for quite a while the people were disposed to tolerate them, partly because they did not take them very seriously, partly because they saw some justice in what the men were striking for, partly because they are free men and so they do not like strong-arm methods by Government officials, partly because they are free and so very much disposed to mind their own business and not to meddle in someone else's quarrel.

Any foreigner who did not understand this country would have concluded in the winter of 1937 that the C. I. O. was going to take charge of the Nation, just as there are some who seem to think that the storm troopers in Madison Square Garden the other night are the nucleus of an army that is going to conquer the Nation. But what happened to the sit-down strike epidemic was that after tolerating it for a while, the day suddenly came when the people had enough. And being used to freedom based on self-reliance, they did not pass laws and organize a secret police; they formed volunteer vigilante committees, and in no time at all suppressed the whole nuisance. It is not very legal. It is not very formal. It is not very elegant. But it is, and always has been, the American way of establishing the essentials of law and order when they are threatened by subversive and insurrectionary groups.

Pacifist and Yet Quite Pugnacious

IT APPLIES in foreign affairs. The American people like to be let alone, and so they will put up with a lot for a while in the hope that if they do not pick a quarrel, the other fellow will not pick a quarrel with them. But they are not very patient. When they get fed up with something that seems to them wrong, they get very fed up with it.

That is why America, to the continual amazement of the rest of the world, has been at once so pacifist and so pugnacious. It would be well if foreigners here and abroad could grasp this characteristic of the American people, for it always asserts itself in critical times.

Patent Suit Filed Against High's

Suit charging infringement of two patents was filed in District Court yesterday against the operator of High's Ice Cream plant, 1324 Half street northeast.

$1,500,000 Suit Filed Against RCA

New York, Feb. 24 (AP).—A $1,500,000 suit charging patent infringement was filed in United States District Court today against the Radio Corporation of America by the International Carrier Call and Television Corporation.

The complaint alleged Radio Corporation had willfully violated a patent of a new two-way intercommunicating system for power circuits owned by the International Carrier Call and Television Corporation.

Justice Questions Right of Jury to Urge Probation

Justice Proctor said yesterday in District Court a jury "has no business" to recommend probation for a defendant in a criminal case.

Justice Proctor pointed out it was the function of the jury to decide the facts in a case and to leave the court free to impose sentence. The jury earlier had recommended probation for Virginia Williams, colored, charged with robbery.

Justice Proctor fixed her sentence at 6 to 18 months.

Recovery Chances

By Mark Sullivan

New Deal Assurances

ASSURANCE to business by the Administration has reached proportions which must lead everyone to see that it is intended to be understood as a planned campaign of encouragement. President Roosevelt, on his way to his vacation, told newspapermen they could report him as saying that "business and industry . . . could look forward without any misgivings as to the Administration's objectives in the months ahead." This is followed by similar assurances from two Cabinet members, Mr. Morgenthau, of the Treasury, and Mr. Hopkins, of Commerce.

The purpose, at least the main purpose, is undoubtedly what appears on the surface, to get a business recovery under way. With this, equally without doubt, goes a political purpose. That a party in power, and approaching an election, should seek to promote prosperity, is no new thing. Indeed it is the usual thing.

Political Motive Differs From Usual

IN THE PRESENT situation the political motive of Mr. Roosevelt's Administration in encouraging business recovery differs somewhat from usual. The whole of the political purpose of the present assurance to business may be found in the words of a newspaperman, Mr. Ernest K. Lindley, who frequently reflects the inner councils of the Administration. As Mr. Lindley puts it:

"Unless human nature has changed, the outcome of the 1940 election will depend chiefly on the curve of the national income . . . If the curve of national income continues on the upgrade through the 1940 election, the Democrats should have a great, probably decisive, advantage. If the curve is down in the summer and fall of 1940, the Republicans should have a decisive advantage . . . Whatever happens between now and the 1940 election, the Democratic Party cannot divest itself of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Its record in 1940 will be his record. If he is a great asset in 1940, and the Democrats nominate a candidate acceptable to him, they should win. If he has become a liability, they are almost certain to lose, no matter whom they nominate . . . Although he is not insensitive to the troubles within his party, Mr. Roosevelt seems to me to be more sagacious than many of the dissident members of his party in at least two important respects: (1) in realizing that he holds the whip hand, and (2) in keeping in mind the critical importance of the index of economic recovery."

Double Purpose Behind Assurance

THUS IT IS apparent the political purpose of the present encouragement to business is double. One aim is to have the Democrats win in 1940. Along with that, and almost superior to that, is the aim of making Mr. Roosevelt himself popular, with business and generally. The object of this is to enable Mr. Roosevelt to control the 1940 Democratic convention.

Beneath all this, what the country will want to know about the attempt to revive business boils down to one question. The question is, will it work? Compared to that question, the political fortunes of Mr. Roosevelt personally, and of the Democratic Party, are negligible.

Many of the materials for business recovery exist. They exist for two different kinds of recovery, or apparent recovery. The materials exist for an inflationary recovery exist. But also there exist which, in its early stages, would be psychologically cheering but would not be the same as true recovery.

Some of the materials for true recovery exist. But also there exist conditions which make true recovery difficult to expect. One of these is the unbalance of the budget. This condition, which would promote inflationary recovery, is at the same time a serious deterrent to recovery of the true kind.

Some Innovations Viewed Impediments

THERE ARE other impediments to real recovery. They are inherent in certain innovations introduced by the New Deal. They cannot be exorcised by words, whether from Mr. Roosevelt, or Mr. Morgenthau, or Mr. Hopkins. They can only be removed by action, either repeal or modification of the innovations. And this the Administration as yet shows no disposition to do.

There is a theory that recovery may come in a different way. Some time within the next 20 months, between now and the 1940 election, there may arise a feeling that the New Deal is coming to an end—that it is coming to an end either through dominance of the conservative Democrats within that party, or through election of the Republicans in 1940.

In either case, the anticipation about the New Deal would be the same. The anticipation would be that while much of the New Deal would be kept, those parts of it that are fatal to industry would be ended or modified. The anticipation that the harmful parts of the New Deal would be removed later on, might lead to recovery some time fairly soon, without waiting for actual legislation, which would take place after the 1940 election.

Sop To Cerberus

By Barnet Nover

Hungary Signs Anti-Comintern Pact

MANY MONTHS ago, Germany and Italy began to put pressure on Hungary to sign the anti-Comintern pact. Germany and Japan made that agreement back in November, 1936. Italy had joined it about a year later. The possibility of Hungary's adherence to the pact came up at least as far back as the time of Admiral Horthy's visit to Berlin early last year.

Until very recently, however, Hungary resisted the blandishments of Hitler and Mussolini. Since the days of the White Terror which followed the Red Terror of Bela Kun, no nation in Europe has taken a more pronouncedly anti-Communist stand than Hungary. And no nation has been less threatened by communism.

If the anti-Comintern pact is genuinely an arrangement to prevent the spread of communism within the boundaries of the signatory powers, it is superfluous, so far as the Magyar kingdom is concerned. If, however, the pact cloaks other designs, it contains no apparent advantages to Hungary and some possible disadvantages. That is why Hungary refused to sign. But this week she did sign.

How explain Hungary's change of front? Does it mean that Hungary now feels itself threatened by communism? No responsible Magyar statesman would admit anything of the sort. On the contrary the recent actions of the Budapest government indicate very clearly that the menace they fear is not communism, but nazism. Indeed, on the very day that the Hungarian foreign minister was putting his signature to the anti-Comintern pact, the Hungarian police were rounding up and jailing followers of Ferenec Szalasi, Hungary's would-be Hitler. The real menace to Hungary's internal security comes not from the extreme left but from the extreme right; not from those who would establish on Magyar soil a replica of the system that obtains in Russia—they were suppressed long ago—but from those who would transform Hungary in the image of her anti-Comintern partners. On the basis of pure logic, therefore, the front that Hungary should be joining at this time is not the anti-Comintern front but an anti-Fascist front.

Her Perilous Post-Munich Plight

ACTUALLY the logic which Hungary is following is the logic of necessity. It is a tragic paradox for her that the very moment which provided Hungary with the long-sought opportunity to regain some of her lost lands also involved the greatest threat to her independence.

That circumstance was the Munich settlement. It opened the floodgates of territorial revision not only for the benefit of Germany but also for the benefit of Hungary. But that same event, together with the disappearance of Austria, placed Hungary under the thumb of the Third Reich.

The position was and remains a most unpleasant one. Magyar statesmen have sought with might and main to escape the dangers involved in that position.

On the one hand they have tried, though unsuccessfully, to bring about a partition of Ruthenia between Hungary and Poland so as to provide a new breakwall against the Nazi floodwaters from the Rhine and the Elbe, the Oder and the Danube moving toward the Black Sea, the Dniester and the Aegean. On the other hand, they sought to neutralize Nazi pressure within the kingdom by taking over part of the Nazi program.

Fighting fire with fire has its personal dangers, as Premier Imredy discovered when someone impertinently dug up his own family tree, and its national dangers as well. But Imredy's successor, Count Teleki appears determined to follow the same line in the hope that by adopting the Nazi program of anti-Semitism, if in slightly diluted form, and the Nazi demands for the partition of the large Magyar estates, if slowly and with reservations, Hungary can avoid being wholly Nazified.

THE MAGYARS know only too well, however, what happened to Austria and what happened to Czecho-Slovakia. To suppress Szalasi is hardly enough. Nor is it enough to imprison 500 or 1,000 of his followers so long as German funds, Nazi propaganda, Nazi intrigue are employed to bring about the establishment at Budapest of a counterpart of the regime that exists in Berlin.

If Hungary is to retain even a modicum of domestic independence, so it is argued in Budapest, she must sacrifice what little freedom of action she still enjoys in the foreign sphere. And it is in line with such calculations that Hungary has now signed the anti-Comintern pact. It is her sop to Cerberus.

THE MAGYAR leaders are, no doubt, gambling on the hope that the anti-Comintern agreement will remain what it ostensibly is, an ideological combination against communism. As such, it fits in with Hungary's own ideology. But is that all it is?

Despite the recent stir in the German press over the Ukrainian problem, the indications do not indicate any immediate Nazi thrust in the direction of the Soviet Union. There is far greater likelihood that Germany will move west rather than east, if and when she decides to move again.

On the other hand, Italy's immediate objectives have nothing whatever to do with Russia but have a great deal to do with France and Great Britain. At the moment, in fact, Russia, the host country of the Comintern, is threatened only from the direction of Japan and appears so little concerned by that threat that she is making no move to meet Tokyo's demands regarding fisheries.

The Real Enemy Is Democracy

IT IS PLAIN, therefore, that the anti-Comintern pact does not involve any direct or immediate threat to Russia. What good is it, therefore, to Germany, Italy and Japan? Why have Berlin and Rome found it necessary to force Hungary in line as, tomorrow, they may seek to get Gen. Franco to join the circle?

The answer is that the anti-Comintern pact is a convenient means of throwing dust in the eyes of the democracies, the real rivals, the real enemies of the Fascist powers. Basically a combination against the status quo, which means a combination against those powers—the democracies—that have the greatest interest in the maintenance of the status quo, it is so designed as to appear something other than what it is, so as to capitalize the strong anti-Communist sentiment which exists in the democracies.

Were the anti-Comintern pact called by its right name, i.e., an anti-democratic pact, it might draw the democracies closer in self-defense. But that is precisely what the dictatorships fear. They can only achieve their respective aims with the democracies disunited, not only among themselves, but within themselves. And with each new, willing or unwilling, recruit to the anti-Comintern group, their power to intimidate and confuse the democracies is capable of growing.

The Once Over

Shopper, Beware!

A war has been started against the shopper who is a chronic "returner." There are millions of Americans who would try to return a cake of ice to the seller on the ground that it wasn't as represented, and merchants are out to curb the custom.

A credit bureau in New York is to list the names of customers of the larger stores who never like any product after they get it home.

Any shopper has a right, of course, to bring back something found not as represented, but the American merchant is a big sufferer from the antics of the customer who never really makes up her mind what she wants until after she buys it.

The Metropolitan Retail Store Adjusters Association of New York has taken up the battle against the shopper who even returns golf balls on the ground that she put them in every suit in the closet and they didn't keep the moths out.

The stores get to know the habitual returner, it is said, and will co-operate in card-indexing the type. It may be a good idea, but the argument of the year will take place when the first shopper tries to return yesterday's purchase and hears she is on the "nothing doing list."

We can imagine the listings:

Jones, Mrs. Mezeppah—Never keeps a package more than 12 hours. Will return anything from a paper of pins to a grand piano without batting an eyelash. Once brought back a plate of ice cream the day after buying it, claiming that it didn't hold its shape.

Smith, Mrs. Chidsey Z.—Has everything delivered to house in suburbs and phones to have the truck call the following day and cart it back. Theory is that she likes to have a truck in front of the house. Often buys bathing articles and sends them back because the tide is out.

Zipplezook, Mrs. Gideon K.—Known to the trade as Old Roundtrip. Gets back to the store with her purchases so swiftly that the clerks suspect she must use an airplane. Once brought a bedroom suite and tried to return it four months later on the ground that her doctor has advised her to sleep on the porch.

Twippletwit, Carrie—Is like the customer who always calls the waiter and complains about the soup after draining the plate. Favorite hobby is buying expensive glassware, opening box with a hatchet and demanding her money back on the ground that the stuff was too fragile. Once caused a riot at a chicken farm by demanding that a hen take back a light egg because she wanted a dark one.

On with the listings, boys! But we still reserve the right to press a necktie and bring it back if the stains are relatively minor.

Summer Prospects

Provincetown, Mass., has passed an ordinance requiring that all bathers wear garments reaching to the knee this summer. This correspondent is for the law. Naked bathers have long since ceased to be a novelty. It would be a thrill to see a bathing girl with some clothes on.

And speaking of such things, the pinnacle of something or other is reported from Miami Beach. P. H. L. says that for the past ten days a motorboat has been chug-chugging close to the bathing beaches, themselves vast demonstrations in nakedness, and displaying advertising signs reading, "See 'Unashamed'—A Daring Movie—a Romance in the Nude."

Ectoplasm and Topper Return To Capitol

'Topper Takes Trip' Is Fun-Filled Hit: Phil Regan on Stage

"TOPPER TAKES A TRIP," Hal Roach picturization of a story by Thorne Smith adapted to the screen by Eddie Moran, Jack Jevne and Corey Ford, featuring Constance Bennett, Roland Young, Billie Burke and Alan Mowbray, with Veree Teasdale, Franklin Pangborn, Alexander D'Arcy, Paul Hurst, Eddy Conrad, Irving Pichel, Leon Belasco, Armand Kaliz, James Morton, Paul Everton, Georges Renavent and "Skippy." Directed by Norman Z. McLeod. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Capitol Theater.

For the ectoplasmic minded and just plain demented creatures such as your slap-happy reviewer, "Topper Takes a Trip," the Capitol's new film, relates further naughty and gaudy adventures of blithe Cosmo Topper and his in-again-out-again spirit friend, Marion Kerby.

Of course, Roland Young is still the lucky Mr. Topper, and Constance Bennett the charming, if elusive, Marion and their adventures remain the same now-you-see-them-and-now-you-don't sort of thing that the faithful will recall from the earlier "Topper." Cary Grant, so Miss Bennett mournfully explains in a somewhat lengthy prologue, has ascended to better things and she remains on these terrestrial mediocrities to do a good deed so that she may join her spouse.

Her good deed she sees as mending the broken household of Cosmo and Mrs. Topper. Having been the vanishing lady in an embarrassing hotel case of the earlier film, she learns with remorse that the Toppers are in the midst of a divorce suit. Kerby-like, she arrives in an already befuddled courtroom in her accustomed celestial fashion. When she picks up a pencil to write Topper a note the present adventures of Topper begin, for all that has gone before is mostly explanation for the auslander still uninitiated in the ways of Thorne Smith.

Complications Set In

Veree Teasdale urges reluctant Billie Burke to France for a more certain divorce, but Constance hears of it and pushes Cosmo across the Atlantic to recapture his wife. Meanwhile, a suave baron is after the wealthy, eccentric American woman. The Topper butler arrives from America and things become thoroughly involved, with the Bennett girl popping in on an avid baron about to make his catch.

Only the late Thorne Smith could make any of the above sound the slightest bit amusing; with which thought your reviewer will refrain from drooling about exactly who does what and when. Mr. Smith leavened it all very neatly with situations like having the invisible sprite pull off a man's trunks on a public beach, a bicycle rolling off without any rider, a drink disappearing into amazed air, a not too brilliant dog who can summon up only enough ectoplasm partially to appear.

While it is conceivable that all of this similarity of humor can tend to become monotonous, this "Topper" sequel is peopled with such an amusing gathering that its dullish spots are pretty successfully veneered. Roland Young still seems to us one of the chosen people of the earth and Miss Bennett is more at ease than in her recent "Tailspin." Billie Burke has nit-wit lines, but they do not seem so spontaneous as usual. There is a neat bit by Paul Hurst as an incredulous bartender and Alan Mowbray has a small, but amusing piece, as the butler.

Regan "Steals Show"

As any true Irishman should, Phil Regan runs away with the stage proceedings, although near the close of their routine the boys in Benny Meroff's Band give him a close chase. The genial Irishman has a way with audiences and yesterday afternoon's first house wanted more of him than they got. "Heart and Soul," "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" and "My Own" were Mr. Regan's first numbers after which he moved down to the ramp in front of the empty orchestra pit (the band is on the stage this week) and sang "Little Lady Make-believe." He was in fine voice and we particularly enjoyed the spirited tempo he gave to the Irish melodies which are too often sung in a sanctimonious dirge.

The Meroff Band is at its best when it forgets its music for horseplay. It is a large aggregation—29 players—and while they may not play too well, they do play loud; at least for Martha Perry, their songstress, and Shirley Rust, their tapster, much of whose work was drowned by the brasses. But the boys are a versatile bunch—in particular Mr. Meroff—and they juggle, clown and imitate when they hit their groove. Don "Popikoff" Tanner was their restless comic who wound up in a burst of glory as the Italian dictator. An original and unique part of their act was an imitation of the newsreels. It won wholehearted approval.

A FitzPatrick Travelogue in color, "Ancient Egypt" takes the audience to the glories of the upper Nile Valley and the Tombs of Kings. The newsreels reveal a curious talking robot and the amazing King Gustav of Sweden. He's shown playing tennis at the age of 83.

Sprightly Comedy Punctuates Detective Yarn on Earle Screen

Douglas, Bruce Score In Amusing Melodrama Of Thieves and Cops; Eddie Duchin Triumphs

"THERE'S THAT WOMAN AGAIN," Columbia Pictures filmization of a story by Gladys Lehman, based on a work by Wilson Collison and adapted to the screen by Philip G. Epstein, James Edward Grant and Ken Englund, featuring Melvyn Douglas and Virginia Bruce, with Margaret Lindsay, Stanley Ridges, Gordon Oliver, Tom Dugan, Don Beddoe, Jonathan Hale, Pierre Watkin and Paul Harvey. Directed by Alexander Hall. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Earle Theater.

One's classification of this picture will depend largely upon the juncture in its development at which he arrives in his seat to view it.

BELL

The opening sequences are preponderantly and delightfully comic; the last half of the action is distinctly melodramatic. The solution of the problem, if any, of coruse, is to see it from the beginning.

"There's That Woman Again" is out of the "Thin Man" mold, with Detective Bill Reardon intent on solving a series of baffling jewelry store robberies under the serious impediment of his wife's "assistance." These thefts are a little on the odd side. Only one piece of jewelry disappears at a time. That is, at the beginning. Later on, the showcases are stripped of diamonds mounting up to something like $100,000. Quite a handful of gems. Then, to complicate matters, there are the mysterious "automatic" murders that bob up from time to time to offer a reminder of some of S. S. Van Dine's more intricate mysteries.

It all looks a little tough for Mr. Reardon, whose job is hanging on the successful solution of a case with which the district attorney's office seems to be getting nowhere almost as rapidly as he. Then, through some of the revelations of the bungling wife, clues begin to present themselves. They prove of high value and eventually prove the guilt of the culprits, whose clever machinations have been made clear to the audience practically from the start. By taking the audience into their confidence, the numerous authors of this gay and interesting charade have eliminated it completely from the category of "mystery" plays. There is no mystery about "There's That Woman Again," save in the minds of those involved in the case on the screen.

Comedy Is Concentrated

The comedy that rather thoroughly saturates the picture has been concentrated in the characters of Bill and Sally Reardon and Reardon's dim-witted helper, Flannigan, who does much to perpetuate the legend that most fly-cops are abysmally dumb. Melvyn Douglas plays the part of Reardon with fine zest. He is equally the comedian and the hard-bitten and incisive plain-clothes man. His performance is as able a one as he has turned in recently, betraying fine balance and polished skill. Virginia Bruce, as Sally, reasserts her right to be known as one of the cinema's foremost comediennes. Her portrayal is varied, vivacious and in complete consonance with the spirit and the movement of the story. As the fabulous Flannigan, Tom Dugan has the sort of part he does best and gives it the full measure of his comic talents. Mr. Dugan hasn't been around lately as much as he used to be. His present assignment should serve to bring him back oftener.

There are, needless to say, many others in the cast who do their full share toward making "There's That Woman Again" a film play that offers voluble and spirited amusement. Foremost among them are Margaret Lindsay, who confines herself to the sinister aspects of the story and leaves the humor to funnier people; Gordon Oliver, a suspect not entirely without guilt; Stanley Ridges, principal beneficiary of all that thievery, finally caught by one of Miss Lindsay's lethal bullets; Don Beddoe, as almost as big as numbskull as Flannigan; Jonothan Hale, Paul Harvey and Pierre Watkin, who haven't so much to do, but do well what they have.

There is nothing in this subject to tug at the deeper seats of reason, but there is a great deal in it to tickle the risibilities of any picture patron who likes to laugh and learn in gleeful fashion that "crime does not pay."

Duchin Scores Again

On the stage at the Earle this week that incomparable pianist-conductor, Eddie Duchin, puts his small, but extremely competent, orchestra through a wide variety of paces, all of which seemed to be perfectly timed to audience taste yesterday afternoon.

Duchin's own intervals at the keyboard always are one of the highlights of his orchestra's performance and a source of great delight to music lovers.

In addition to the maestro, the specialists with the band include Stanley North, an excellent barytone; the "Top Hatters," a youthful roller-skating team who seem to have the courage to risk their necks in everything they do; Durelle Alexander, a songstress who captivated her hearers yesterday; Burton Pierce, an exceptionally agile tap dancer; Lew Sherwood, a "hot" trumpeter; Ray and Trent and John McAfee. This forms a combination that is extremely hard to beat.

A Leon Errol comedy, "The Crime Rave," in which the star seemed even a little funnier than usual to these eyes; a subject devoted to the training of field dogs, "Points About Pointers," and the Paramount News are auxiliaries of a feature that is bigger in entertainment than it was in production cost.

Indian Giver

For important scenes in the Zane Grey picture, "Heritage of the Desert," Harry Sherman, who produced it, built a pretentious hacienda on the Desert 30 miles from Kernville, Calif. When he had finished the picture, Sherman gave the adobe mansion to the native Indians.

Detective Reardon Has a Problem

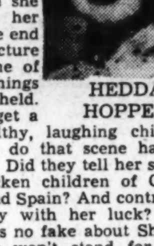

MELVYN DOUGLAS AND VIRGINIA BRUCE as Bill and Sally Reardon, sleuths more or less de luxe, in Columbia's new crime-comedy of "There's That Woman Again," currently occupying the screen at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater. Margaret Lindsay, Stanley Ridges and Tom Dugan lead a capable supporting cast of serious players and comedians

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., Feb. 24.—Some of our stars, who look like mannequins at a dress parade, could take a lesson in acting from Shirley Temple in "The Little Princess." She gives a performance which is mighty hard on those fragile French handkerchiefs. The emotional scene she does with her father at the end of the picture is really one of the finest things I've ever beheld. How they get a happy, healthy, laughing child of that age to do that scene has me wondering. Did they tell her stories of the stricken children of China, Germany and Spain? And contrasted their misery with her luck? Because there's no fake about Shirley, her mother won't stand for that. Everything she does is real.

HEDDA HOPPER

The dramatic suspense is laid on with too heavy a hand in spots. And I think when Shirley and Arthur Treacher go into a dance, which is excellent, but has no reason at all in a very, very private school, it not only halts the action, but makes it appear a little ridiculous. Because the story would hold without it.

The dream sequence is perfectly beautiful. But I noticed again that in Technicolor, only the definite characters stand out. The wishy-washies melt into the background. The person who brought Beryl Mercer out of retirement into the role of Queen Victoria, did the picture public a great service. Her performance is on a par with Helen Hayes'. Mary Nash, as a meanie, is superb. And at last, Arthur Treacher has been allowed to do something beside buttle. We all wanted more of Ian Hunter and I hope Cesar Romero will never appear again without a turban. If I looked like that in one, I'd wear it in real life, and I mean that Cesar. This picture should start Sybil Jason on a new career. Also Marcia Mae Jones.

Stopped on the way out of the Cathay Circle Theater to ask the Blackfoot Indians, working in Shirley's present picture, how they liked it. Those who could speak said, "Great," "fine." The others just waved their hands as much as to say, "Umph, umph!"

Doug Fairbanks passed them by quickly, fearing he might be mistaken for one—he's the same color. He said, "Gee whiz, Hedda, wasn't I lucky that in my day I didn't have to compete with children, Indians or animals?"

I hear on good authority that Warner's are still stalling on Miriam Hopkins for that role in "The Old Maid" with Bette Davis. Wouldn't surprise me at all if one of their own stars did it and Miriam went to another studio.

If you want to see the stars "see stars," don't miss the Tropical Gardens or the Pan-Pacific. Both places are crowded because everyone's trying to get Sonja Henie's job.

Colleen Moore Hargraves said when I commented on her blissful, bubbling-over look, "Well, I served my apprenticeship in Hollywood, Hedda, and deserved a break. And hubby's it." Incidentally, her doll house will be shown here again in May. In four years she's cleaned up a fortune on it and given it all to charity.

There's quite a story behind Charlie Barton's new actor-director contract at Paramount. He started there 11 years ago as prop boy, worked up to assistant director. Finally directed B's. One day rather than do a story he didn't like, he quit. Then Cecil DeMille asked for him as his assistant on "Union Pacific." Then along came Bill Wellman, about to start "Beau Geste." Well, Charlie had done a bit for him in "Wings" and wanted to team up with Brod Crawford as the other Texan in that picture. The new contract resulted.

An extra boy, while playing in "The Magnificent Fraud," lost his wallet containing $35 which was to make his monthly payment on his car. Wallet was found, but money gone. When Director Bob Florey heard about it, he made a speech to the company, and said, "Before we do anything else, I'd like to start a collection for him." In ten minutes they had $45.

Mike McGrath, Jimmie Stewart's stand-in, says there are too many vacations between his standing-in, so he got himself a job in the wardrobe department. Smart boy, Mike.

Joan Bennett said that when she was a blonde, most of her mail came from high school girls. Now that she's gone brunette, she gets the college boy trade. Hedy Lamarr's returns not in yet!

Let's settle for all time this controversy about who started the short hair craze in Hollywood. Annabella was the first. She cut hers for the boyish part in "Suez." Janet Gaynor did it on Adrian's advice. Then came Antoine from Paris to cut Claudette Colbert's tresses 2 inches from her head for "Midnight." When Ina Claire arrived from New York, she was already wearing hers short. So our hair stylists needn't take bows.

But I do think we should hand some credit to our makeup artists who over a period of years have done amazing things. Invented new makeup, colors, rubber faces, and even a special wax to blot out features and build up others.

Jack Dawn, the Westmores and Dottie Pondel get my vote. So does Mel Bern for his new Sable-Glo lip brush—which once you've used, you can't do without.

Magnin's sold a hundred new lipsticks in one day! And Elizabeth Arden is on her way out to plan a new building here. Truly, if it comes from Hollywood, it sells!

Six-foot-six John Carridine, who will recite Shakespeare at the drop of a hat, folded himself like a jack-in-the-box into a special Duesenberg car with liveried chauffeur, and tonneau the size of a match box, in front of Marcel LaMaze the other night. A writer, watching, wrote them both into his new picture.

Going Up

'Beachcomber' Opens Repeat Run at Met.

The Laughtons Superb In Maugham Story Of South Seas

For all of us movie lovers who are a bit slow on the pick-up, the Metropolitan gives a rain check in the opportunity to see "The Beachcomber" in its second downtown showing.

Charles Laughton, admittedly one of the great actors of our generation, adds another portrait to the gallery that includes Henry VIII, Capt. Bligh and Rembrandt. It is a portrait touched with the acid character etching of Somerset Maugham, writer of "Vessel of Wrath" from which the cinema has been evolved.

Not as a vessel of wrath does Mr. Laughton appear, rather as a vessel (and large) of alcohol. He is a besotted, unkept bit of trash on a tropical beach, living on remittances paid as a form of blackmail to keep him away from his British family. But he preserves a stupendous impudence staminated by an inborn sense of superiority. His name is "Ginger Ted." He likes the girls. And the girls like him. But his only true friend is a frowsy terrier, afflicted with that illogical loyalty peculiar to the otherwise splendid canine genus.

Idyllic Existence

In this idyllic existence of "Ginger Ted'" in the Southern Seas, there are two flaws—the periodic onslaughts of creditors and a lady missionary (with brother attached). Through the conscientious efforts of this pair of professional do-gooders, "Ginger Ted" is sentenced to a term of hard labor for sundry flagrant offenses including the luring of vulnerable South Seas belles from the missionary school and the wrecking of the South Seas equivalent of a beer joint.

But "Ginger Ted," though a rank no-good, is still adept in outwitting all efforts to put him at honest work. His alleged "hard labor" is served on a nearby island where he and the local beauties hold what may be termed high revelry—until the lady missionary comes along. Marooned on another island (so many islands) with the missionary, he earns her gratitude for his chivalry in abstaining from making advances, she never dreaming that perhaps her flat-footed type of beauty is not the type that appeals to him.

The end you know if you have read "Vessel of Wrath," if not, as a smart moviegoer, you'll probably guess.

Laughton at Best

The role is one of Laughton's best, probably because he was entirely in sympathy with the story, enjoyed every bit of the unraveling of this paradoxical and perverse character. Few liberties have been taken with the story (except in the disease-fighting sequence), none with the essential character.

Elsa Lanchester, Mr. Laughton's real-life wife, again proves herself the completely accomplished actress. Only a person with a fine humor and understanding could have made the quaint little missionary so real and pleasant a person.

A fair criticism of "The Beachcomber" is that which has been voiced to us by friends who went to see Charles Laughton, but hadn't read "Vessel of Wrath"—that the action leaps so rapidly without completely clear explanation. That is understandable in at least two sequences, that from the courtroom sentence to "Ginger Ted" lolling happily, and from the courtship to England.

The newsreel is all carnival, ranging from California's new fair, through the ice carnival at Lake Placid and New Orleans' Mardi Gras. There is, too, a historical short of Lincoln in Technicolor, featuring Frank McGlynn.

Columbia

"Jesse James," in all his rough-riding, fast-shooting, glamorous badness is robbing the railroads another week downtown—at the Columbia this time. While it may be true that the bold outlaw is perhaps needlessly glorified and whitewashed, it is also true that the pace of the story is so fast that it probably doesn't make any difference, anyhow.

Taking the premise that Jesse was justified in all his pillaging, plundering and waving of shootin' irons, the story make him a most attractive young man who became a bandit because circumstances forced him to do so. It is all done in superfine Technicolor, filmed in the very locale in which Frank and Jesse operated. If there is anything more thrilling than a hoss race over the Missouri hills, we have yet to imagine it.

If best performances have to be listed, we choose Henry Fonda, as Frank James, deeming his performance a constantly satisfying surprise, so well timed and effective it is. Second we would name Henry Hull, who splutters around as an editor, or Randolph Scott, the peace officer, who would not have been a bad Jesse.

A comedy called "Bolts and Nuts" is inept and botchily done. It is incredibly banal in its handling of the capital-labor theme. Pete Smith has a Technicolor short about outdoor cooking which is as sharp as a hound's tooth. The newsreel has shots of the evacuation of Catalonia and the opening of the Frisco Fair.

Roles Reversed

Robert Armstrong won his first dramatic success as a palooka fighter in the stage success, "Is Zat So." James Gleason played his manager. Currently featured in "Me and My Gal," Armstrong plays a fight manager to Buck Jones, stumble-bum fighter.

RKO-Keith's

For a fourth and final week, "Gunga Din" remains at RKO-Keith's Theater until next Thursday evening.

Its husky trio of stars, Cary Grant, Victor McLaglen and Douglas Fairbanks, jr., are breaking records the country over in this action tale of three sergeants in the service of Her Majesty in India. Sam Jaffe has the title role of the faithful water boy and Eduardo Cianelli is the fanatical leader of a troublesome tribe of natives. Joan Fontaine is the girl from whom Grant and McLaglen try to keep Fairbanks.

There are scenes of blood, sand and thunder galore, as well as curious — inquisitive — elephants and death-dealing snakes. It is a rip-roaring picture and the length of its run indicates its appeal for the filmgoer.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Feb. 24.

GOV. LEHMAN: Florence Knapp, the only woman who ever became Secretary of State in New York, is finding the sledding tough and is calling upon friends for aid . . . Dist. Atty. Geoghan: John Amen, the special prosecutor, is checking the abortion racket in your borough. He expects to break the story next week . . . Bway. Assn.: Tommy Manville, who has been enriching the Broadway night clubs these many years, is planning to retire from the midtown scene, because his N. Y. visits bring him home to Mamaroneck too late. Tommy confided yesterday that he's arranging to open his own night club in nearby New Rochelle . . . Darryl Zanuck: You'd better start your production of "Abe Lincoln." Walter Wanger, who is in N. Y. now, has been closeted with Bob Sherwood, author of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," negotiating for the film rights.

F. D. R.: George M. Cohan, who just concluded his engagement in "I'd Rather Be Right," in which he portrayed you, is very much surprised at the reaction he's gotten when, pursuant to the script, he hinted the possibilities of a third-term candidacy . . . When the show played Indianapolis there were boos at the third-term mention—and one man applauded . . . For the first time since the show started its run, Cohan deviated from the script. He walked to the footlights and asked the lone applauder to stand up. "I'll keep that in mind," said Cohan, "for '40."

WILL HAYS: Champ Segal, the Broadway sportsman who was arrested in California for mutiny in regard to the cruise chartered by Jean Harlow's stepfather, will remain in Hollywood. Segal, who once had his own racing stable and managed two world's champion fighters, is writing movie scripts, and has completed six . . . N. Y. Medical Society: The New Yorker magazine has purchased Sam Behrman's Profile of Dr. Emanuel Libman, the famed heart specialist . . . Harold Ickes: Paramount toned down the movie version of "one-third of a Nation." Among the items deleted was the speech of President Roosevelt, wherein he commented upon the one-third of the American populace being ill-housed—the comment from which the picture got its title.

TALLULAH BANKHEAD: Lillian Hellman, who wrote your newest hit, "The Little Foxes," is very much pleased that the crowds are coming to the National Theater, which is below Times Square . . . When Miss Hellman's first hit, "The Children's Hour," was celebrating its first anniversary, the author walked by the theater with Dashiell Hammett and sighed: "Too bad we couldn't have gotten a Forty-fifth street theater" . . . "Why kick?" Hammett replied. "The show is in its second year now" . . . "True," Lillian agreed, "but on Forty-fifth street it would have been running longer."

ALICE FAY: Although Zanuck insisted that you quit radio your husband, Tony Martin, will continue to broadcast . . . Tony, incidentally, was invited by Lew Brown yesterday to star in his forthcoming musical . . . F. D. R.: Tommy Corcoran and Frank Murphy will go south to join you in your return to Washington . . . Boxing Commission: Friends of Al Singer, the ex-lightweight champ, are unable to find him . . .

BILL ROBINSON: The new Cotton Club show, which will star you, promises to be the best of the series . . . Variety: You reported that "Information, Please" wouldn't risk broadcasting with Dorothy Parker, for fear she might say something censorable . . . Dorothy, who won an O. Henry Prize award, ranks among the foremost literary figures of America. She's been invited to broadcast with "Information, Please" any date she names.

ELSA MAXWELL: Mrs. Jessie Donohue tendered a dinner party at her Palm Beach home for 100 of her most intimate friends . . . Mrs. Donohue furnished food, wine and an orchestra for dancing. She was a most amiable hostess and lavished cordial greetings upon her esteemed guests . . . The trusting Mrs. Donohue, however, first locked the doors to all the 14 bedrooms in the house.

JOHN PERONA: Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the former Attorney General, won't come to visit your zebra-striped El Morocco. She says that the regulars there are beginning to look like zebras . . . Anne Hewitt: Your mother, Mrs. Peter Cooper Hewitt, against whom you brought suit because of a sterilization operation, has offered her creditors 50 per cent to discharge her in bankruptcy, but they won't take it. Even her chauffeur is suing her . . . Walter Lippmann: When your name and Winchell's and mine were mentioned at the Nazi rally at the Garden, we were booed. Har'ya, comrade.

JIM FARLEY: James Morris, Asst. Atty., Gen., flew from Washington to Florida to make a prepared speech at the Jackson Day dinner. When he got there he discovered that there were no speeches—that it was a dance. Morris now is known as the best jitterbug speaker in Washington . . . Franchot Tone: The published version of your current vehicle, "The Gentle People," is very attractive. Bennett Cerf, who published it, made it look attractive by placing, on the front cover, a photo of Sylvia Sidney—his ex-wife . . . Leon Turrou: Your book, "Nazi Spies in America," will get a pictorial review in Look magazine.

Your Figure, Madame!

—By Ida Jean Kain

Milady's Silhouette This Year Must Be a Real Hour-Glass

FASHION is fickle even as to figures! And if you think it isn't, go take a look at this season's crop of window mannikins. By comparison, the display figures of last season all look as though they needed waistline exercise!

Spot exercises would come nearer to doing the trick—the kind that build up here and pare down there—for, according to Jean Spadea, who is one of the leading creators of these charming dummies, they have definitely become ladies. Not only is the waist measure one inch smaller than last season, but the bust and hips are larger.

One of Miss Spadea's newest creations was designed after Ann Reid Hutchinson, the model, and has exactly the same measurements: Bust, 34 inches; waist, 25 inches; hips, 36 inches.

Yes, It's Propaganda

Now compare those measurements with the ones considered fashionable a short season ago: Bust, 32 inches; waist, 26 inches; hips, 34 inches. The waist used to be only six inches less than the bust, and now it is nine inches less.

You recognize, of course, that this is all propaganda for exercise—but you will admit that when even the window mannikins have their midriffs nipped in another inch, it's time you took action!

Miss Hutchinson, who posed for the new figure, got her own measurements up and down some months ago at a New York training school which stresses daily exercise and plenty of it.

One of the favorite slimming and molding exercises at this school is a strenuous work-off called the "thumps and bumps." It has the same effect on the hipline as a steam roller, and it throws in a slimming twist for the waistline. (Don't try it if you are one of the underweights who want to gain curves by Easter!)

The Newest Twist

You lie down on the back on the floor with the knees flexed and feet on the floor, arms straight out at the sides on the floor. Give an eel-like twist of the waist, and without lifting the feet from the floor, bring the hips down on one side with a thump. Twist back into position and bring the hips down on the other side with a bump. Keep the legs together throughout this maneuver and don't take it too hard to begin with. Ten times each day will be enough for even a sturdy overweight for the first week. After that you may gradually increase until you are doing 100.

The underweights can modify this exercise to a fairly mild side-to-side roll for streamlining waist and hips.

Curtains Tend To Lighter Tones

The most recent beauty treatment given lace curtains is a lightening of their colors. American women are showing a liking for light tones, so creamy beiges, ivory, white and even delicate pink take their place with the deep bieges and ecrus that will continue to be favorites in many homes. All of these hues are neutral, fitting in with any color scheme. The lightly light tones are very much in evidence in the many lace net curtains designed especially for bedrooms.

Tyrolean Inspired Dinner Gown

Imported white broadcloth, white and soft as an angora kitten, makes this distinctive dinner gown. Germaine Monteil, the designer, went to the Tyrol for her theme of Swiss applique with which she trims the jacket. The same cool white of the simply cut gown is used for these scroll designs, which are posed against a navy jacket. This casual, yet impressive ensemble is superlative for casual nights at winter resorts or as mainstay for an informal evening wardrobe. May be worn for numerous occasions

The Wise Family

MR. WISE—Well, of all the idiotic things!

MRS. WISE—What's the matter?

MR. WISE—It says here that Chamberlain's going to make another appeal to Hitler. Now, the thing he ought to do——

MRS. WISE—Is simply to tell Hitler in a nice way—but very firm—that he simply won't——

MR. WISE—No! No! Wait!

AUNT NANNIE—I never could stand the man.

MR. WISE—Oh, some silly girl who got cut up and put in a trunk.

AUNT NANNIE—Who was the man?

MR. WISE—Wait a minute . . . It says they're looking for some inventor. All those inventors are crazy.

MRS. WISE—She had no business getting mixed up with the type of man who would cut her up. Where was her mother?

MR. WISE—Wait, it says here the trunk was found in this man's apartment——

AUNT NANNIE—I knew it!

AUNT NANNIE—She had no business going to the man's apartment in the first place.

SISTER—Well, I guess she had her own life to live——

MRS. WISE—But think of her poor mother! What's that headline about vitamins?

MR. WISE—Oh, it's some fool scientist thinks he's discovered a new one. It's all a racket.

MRS. WISE—Junior, did you drink the rest of that milk?

AUNT NANNIE—What people need is more sleep. They're turning night into day.

MR. WISE—They need to eat more. The women of this country are starving themselves to death on these Hollywood diets.

SISTER—Who wants to be fat?

MR. WISE—Now, here's another sample of the thing that's undermining this country, "WPA Worker Father of Quadruplets."

AUNT NANNIE—There ought to be a law.

MRS. WISE—No, these people simply need to be instructed——

MR. WISE—The Government has no business spending the taxpayers' money——

AUNT NANNIE—The man shouldn't have gotten married——

SISTER—Well, after all, people have their own lives to live.

MRS. WISE—It's all very well to talk that way NOW——Oh, look at that da-a-r-ling kitty in the paper!

AUNT NANNIE—O-o-o-h! Bless little heart! What does it say?

MR. WISE—Wait a minute . . . "Mistress Leaves $1,000 Annuity to Cat." Can you beat that? Just like some crazy old maid. Now, the thing she ought to have done with that money——

MRS. WISE—Was to leave it to some worthy movement.

MR. WISE—No, she ought to have adopted a half dozen children. That's just what's the matter with women today——

SISTER—She ought to spent it on herself.

JUNIOR—Yeah, she oughta had herself a time.

AUNT NANNIE—Well, after all, it was her own money——wait, let me see that fashion picture. It says skirts are going higher.

MR. WISE—It actually looks like women are losing their minds.

AUNT NANNIE—It's not women. It's the styles.

MR. WISE—Well, then, what women ought to do——

MRS. WISE—Is simply to tell the designers——

AUNT NANNIE—No, what they ought to do is to make their own clothes.

MR. WISE—Here, take the whole paper. There's nothing in it.

MRS. WISE—Dosn't it say what's going to happen in Europe?

MR. WISE—Well, the whole thing is, nobody really knows. However, there's just this much about it . . .

Baby Bonnets In Spring Styles

New York (AP).—As far as shapes are concerned, poke bonnets and baby bonnets are news. They swing back from young faces in a way which is decidedly refreshing after a season when virtually every hat pitched over one eye.

There also are scores of sailors—those perennial spring hat favorites—a number of flower-splashed pillboxes, numerous hats in unusual worked shapes and berets tied on with ribbon knotted at the back. One of the most striking groups of chapeaux are draped turbans of striped ribbon or silk. Brimmed hats of dotted cravat silk also appear.

Cake-Baking Exploits Of Males Win Praise Instead of Laughter

I WONDER IF you are one of the women who scoffs faintly at the sight of a man over a cook stove. If you are, you would have been highly delighted if you had been with me last Saturday at the St. Agatha School, where a small select group of local men engaged in a cake-baking contest.

ALICE HUGHES

Many wives were present, and those who came to laugh remained to praise. One of the experts was Norman Coke-Jephcott, organist at our cathedral of St. John the Divine, who seemed to whip up his eggs with strict ecclesiastical tempo. One of the heavy favorites in this weird contest was Harry Lissfelt, one of the managers of a local glass shop. Harry got the edge because he is the most experienced cook of the lot and because he even sniffed at the idea of men baking cakes, which seemed to him slightly sissy. Suddenly he changed his mind, and went to work on a pound cake in the shape of a lighthouse, with an electrically lighted sugar tower on top. Harry is now convinced that there is nothing undignified or effeminate about the serious business of baking.

The dark horse of the race was a local business man named Stuart Unz, who was fussy enough to insist on having the same mixing bowl every night. He claims to have had no previous cooking experience, but experts who watched the progress of the contest sniffed at this as an evasion.

On the whole, this contest was a tremendous success, and I recommend that you try to interest father in such an antic when he has the urge to go bowling or shooting pool. As a final clincher, Dr. Robert Dinegar, the official physician, says that he has had not a single case of indigestion during the necessary tasting period.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN: Just to keep you in touch with the local situation, I must report that we have had no climate in New York during the past week — only weather. For instance, one day last week began with a gentle rain and a temperature of 62. By eight same evening the rain had turned to snow, and this was accompanied by a gale estimated at a velocity of 65 miles an hour. Before that day had ended both rain and snow had ceased and our weather had settled into a cold slow calm. Try to beat that for one day's assortment of weather and you will top New York—which is not difficult to do in any case.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Tortured Neurotic Thinks Psychiatry Might Aid Her; Husband and Physician Scoff; She Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Heretofore I have always, without assistance, either solved or muffed my own problems. But now I find myself in such a mess that I can no longer do anything to bring relief to my tortured mind. The mess is very general; everything is wrong. Failure in responsibilities toward my family and other persons who were kind; a marriage obviously not working out; and a fear of recurrence of a health breakdown (I've had tuberculosis twice in the past nine years) are some of the things that are bringing me to a point where I can neither reason with nor discipline myself. I shun people to the extent of wanting to cross the street when I see an acquaintance approaching.

For years I have felt the need of psychiatric assistance, but both my physician and my husband scoff at the idea. Because I have a rather charming front, no one suspects what seethes beneath the surface. However, very recently, even my husband said to me, in a fit of exasperation, that some of my reactions were "downright psychopathic."

I want to be sure that the person I consult will have a background of scientific knowledge sufficient for coping not only with the vitiating effects of organic disease on personality, but also for penetrating my stubborn reticence and bringing out the hidden nightmares which make my life hideous. As I write this, I am still not quite sure that I could, or would wish, to pour out all that is within me—which is mine and mine alone—even for so great a reward as restoration to normalcy. Yet neither do I wish to remain an unproductive neurotic. What shall I do? I am in my early thirties.

EGOTIST.

Play Your Hunch

DEAR EGOTIST: The comforting gist of Dr. Louis E. Bisch's message, in his altogether cheerful and instructive volume, "Be Glad You're Neurotic," is to the effect that one must be endowed with a first-class intelligence before one can become prey to the vexations of neurasthenia. Admitting, then, that you are neurotic, you may console yourself with the thought that this affliction establishes your claim to better-than-average mental equipment. Thus reassured, you may proceed constructively to the point of placing rather more confidence in your own judgment, concerning possible approaches to a correction of the condition, than you seem to have done in the past.

Which is to say, you can well afford to play your own hunch—in the face of your husband's and physician's scoffing—that psychiatry holds the solution of your problem; that, through consultation with a psychiatrist, on a long-time, mutually co-operative basis, you may permanently dispel those hideous subjective nightmares which make your existence intolerable. Indeed, you would be betraying that very intelligence which indubitably holds the key to the cure as well as the cause of your suffering, in neglecting to play your hunch.

In employing psychiatrist assistance, don't expect the specialist to shoulder the whole burden of treating you. He can treat you only to the extent that you permit yourself to be treated. If you would be wholly restored to normalcy, you must be fired by the grim determination to lay aside prettified defenses of inutile reticence, in the course of a joint search for those psychic ulcers, splinters and boils, so to speak, that are poisoning your thought processes.

To make conscious mental reservations, when in need of scientific healing in the psychological realm of being, is to be guilty of hindering coyness comparable to that of a certain Victorian lady who—so the story goes—took along with her a fully dressed doll when she went to consult her family physician concerning an organic complaint. As she discussed her symptoms, she shyly invited the doctor's attention to the doll's anatomy, that he might the better comprehend just where her pain resided. It is not recorded how much the doctor was able to help her, but if her symptoms were serious, his responsibility was not enviable.

And so is it with psychiatrists. Many of their alleged failures to help or to heal, much of the tedious delay to which many patients fretfully object, may be directly attributed to the disappointed client's witless or willful failure to co-operate up to the limit of his abilities or his needs in what must of necessity be a partnership enterprise.

My advice to you is to look about for a psychiatrist of impeccable repute and proven abilities, whose temperament is sympathetically compatible with your own (since fundamental rapport between specialist and client greatly facilitates psychoanalytic diagnosis and treatment) —and give him every opportunity for relieving your suffering through uncovering its sources. Such a practitioner will not hesitate to recommend medical treatment, in addition to or in preference to psychiatric treatment, if your condition seems to warrant it.

Paris Goes Back Three Centuries For Present Styles

Paris (AP).—Wired hips, stiff petticoats, with matching gloves, an apron over the evening dress, and canes with a vanity case in the top seem to be the things for summer.

The Paris stylists who think they dress the world have finished their showings and the trends are now apparent.

The stylists put their emphasis on romance of three centuries ago. Judging from the saw-toothed collars and deep gauntlet cuffs, on day dresses, and the stand-out hips overskirts, falling in thick folds, for evening, they all had front seats at the Theatre Francaise revival of "Cyrano de Bergerac."

The extreme in day skirts this year is 17 inches from the ground. Colors, including blotting-paper pink, cover the rainbow cycle and more. Particularly noticeable were ensembles, with one piece contrasting the color of the other.

Small Dinners Hold Lenten Spotlight

Justice and Mrs. Reed Entertain Argentine and French Envoys; Emil Hurjas Fete Dr. Aranha

Small dinners and luncheons hold the social spotlight during the Lenten season, when there are practically no large receptions and very few dances. Dinners remain the favorite form of evening entertainment in a town which refuses to go "cafe society" and entertain anywhere other than at home or at one of the exclusive clubs.

Several interesting dinners, both official and residential, took place last evening. Associate Justice Stanley Reed and Mrs. Reed had guests in their apartment at the Mayflower, the ranking members of the company being the Argentine Ambassador and Mme. Espil and the French envoy, Count Rene de Saint Quentin. Justice and Mrs. Reed will entertain again at dinner tonight in honor of the Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, who limit their going out to Saturday evenings.

Hurjas Fete
Dr. Aranha

Popular Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, Brazil's Foreign Minister, was honored at a small dinner given last night by Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja at their residence on California street. Dr. Aranha will be here until the end of next week.

Others in the company were the Norwegian Minister and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne; the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles Edison; the Commandant of the Navy Yard and Mrs. George T. Pettingill, Capt. A. C. Andersen, father of the hostess, and Reine Luoma, Finnish American pianist.

Senator and Mrs. Wallace White had a few friends in for dinner informally at their Tracy place home in honor of their daughter, Mrs. Ernest Dordritz, of Pittsburgh. She is visiting them, and Senator and Mrs. White will have additional friends in tomorrow evening in her honor.

The United States Minister to Switzerland and Mrs. Leland Harrison were feted at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. George A. Garrett, with whom they are staying during their current visit. Tonight Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Coffin will have a few of their friends in to dine.

Faith Baldwin, Here for Speech, Honored by Zeta Tau Alpha

Noted Writer Guest at Reception Given By Alumnae; She Will Address Panhellenic Association Today

Faith Baldwin, noted writer, who is here to address the luncheon of the City Panhellenic Association today at the Wardman Park Hotel, was guest of honor last night at a reception given by the Washington alumnae of Zeta Tau Alpha, of which she is an honorary member. About 100 attended the affair at the Mayflower for chapter presidents and delegates of the 23 national sororities in the association.

Miss Baldwin arrived yesterday afternoon from her home, Fable Farm, at New Caanan, Conn., and had as her dinner guests at the Carlton, preceding the reception, Judge Ellen K. Raedy, of the Municipal Court, and Miss Beatrice Clephane, director of the Legal Aid Bureau, who are among the prominent local members of the sorority. Judge Raedy was made an honorary member of the national organization in June, 1937, at the biennial convention in Swampscott, Mass., when honorary membership was also conferred on Miss Baldwin.

Miss Baldwin's father was a prominent New York lawyer, who was a close friend of Frank Hogan, now president of the National Bar Association. She chatted gayly of her recollections of members of the legal profession whom she had met at her father's home as a girl. Among them were two women, who made an unfortunate impression on her. One was a fluffy and feminine individual, she said, who insisted on calling her father "Brother Baldwin" and the other a judge whom she did not like because she was conceited.

She has long since overcome her youthful prejudice against women lawyers, she hastened to assure her "lawful" sorority sisters, and she will attend the Federal Bar Association dinner tonight.

Zeta Tau Alpha in Washington has among its members several prominent professional women including Olive Geiger Faircloth, secretary of the Bar Association; Estelle Moore, who has recently opened her own law office here; Mildred Stanley, an attorney with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and Dr. Augusta Willis, who is on the staff of Garfield Hospital.

Miss Baldwin who, in private life, is Mrs. Hugh Cuthrell and mother of four children, Hugh, Hervy, Stephen and Ann, will tell you frankly she is 45 years old and weighs 123 pounds. A while ago she weighed 130 but she insists she reduced without even trying to. She wears her brown hair bobbed and has hazel eyes with a twinkle in them. Her gown last night was a black crepe with a figured design in yellow and white flowers, with which she wore a short mink jacket.

She has three books coming out this year, "Career By Proxy," "High Road," and "Twenty-Four Hours a Day," which is a reprint. With these off her mind, she is preparing to sail for Australia week after next, to be gone three months and write travel letters for a woman's magazine.

The receiving line at last night's reception was headed by Mrs. Edgar Withrow, chapter president, with Miss Baldwin standing next to her. Others in the line were Judge Raedy, Mrs. Lucile Roberts, grand second vice president of Zeta Tau Alpha and its representative to the Eastern regional conference; Mrs. Leighton Johnstone, president of the Panhellenic Association of Washington, and Miss Dorothy Rock, province secretary and Panhellenic alternate.

Alternating at the coffee table were Mrs. John Conley, chairman of the national finance committee; Mrs. Charles L. Chambers, Mrs. Walter Greene and Mrs. R. Fred Roper. Members of Beta Alpha Chapter at George Washington also assisted, including the president, Mrs. Gretchen Hill.

Mrs. John Warlick, former province president, was chairman of the committee in charge, assisted by Mrs. W. Paul Briggs, Miss Jane Bennett, Miss Dorothy Catling, Miss Clephane, Mrs. Linden Crone, Mrs. Laurie Hess, Miss Frances James, Mrs. Bynum Riddick, Mrs. Rene Reizach, Miss Rock, Miss Mary Lee Watkins and Miss Adelaide Woodley.

Women Plan Archives Party

Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Mary Beard and Inez Haynes Irwin will be on the program of the luncheon to be given at the Mayflower next Saturday by the Washington branch of the World Center for Women's Archives. Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, chairman of the local group, will preside at the affair for which 1,500 invitations have been issued.

The luncheon is the first gathering of such size which has been sponsored anywhere in the interest of the project, started about a year ago under the leadership of Mrs. Beard. The location of the center has not been decided on but both Washington and New York are under consideration.

Write Only of Men

The need for women's archives was brought sharply to the attention of Mrs. Beard in research for one of her books, when she found no complete material on any women leaders available. Historians have built their works around the achievements of men and passed lightly over the influence of women in world affairs.

George E. Putnam, in the gift of Amelia Earhart's flight records has made the most important and valuable contribution so far to the women's archives. Among archives to be presented at the luncheon will be letters and documents of her political career, given by Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, former Governor of Wyoming and now director of the Mint; papers given by Mrs. Emil Hurja and by Emily Newell Blair.

Many Sponsors

A few among the sponsors for the World Center project are Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Irwin, who is chairman of the board of directors; Judge Florence Allen, Mrs. Vincent Astor, Pearl Buck, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Dorothy Canfield Fisher, Fannie Hurst, Dr. Henry Noble MacCracken, of Vassar, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, Josephine Roche, Doris Stevens, Dorothy Thompson, Ellen S. Woodward, Representative Caroline O'Day, Dr. Meta Glass, Mrs. Louis D. Brandeis, Izetta Jewell Miller, Mrs. David Cushman Coyle, Mrs. Luke I. Wilson and Lucy Madeira Wing.

B'nai B'rith Auxiliary Has Open House

Mrs. Morgenthau, Dr. Pergler, Address Women

Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., and Dr. Charles Pergler, dean of the law school of National University, were speakers yesterday afternoon at the tea given by the Women's Auxiliary of B'nai B'rith Argo Lodge, held at the Jewish Community Center. It was the first open house given by the organization, honoring new members.

Dr. Pergler, former United States Minister to Czecho-Slovakia, declared it was impossible to ignore what was happening not only to the Jews, but to other minorities in Europe. Unless consistent protest is made against current practices of barbarism abroad, they may come nearer home, he said.

Work of Self-Help Exchange Praised

Mrs. Morgenthau, who had not been announced beforehand as a speaker, consented to talk briefly on the work of the Self-Help Exchange. This project, she said, was one of the most worthwhile in the community because of the practical opportunity it offered people to help themselves.

Among other guests of honor were Mrs. Sol Bloom, wife of Representative Bloom, of New York; Maurice Bisgyer, national secretary of B'nai B'rith; Mrs. Mark Lansburgh, president of the Washington Chapter of the National Council of Jewish Women; Mrs. Charles Goldsmith, vice president of the Self-Help Exchange; Mrs. Raphael Tourover, president of the Washington Chapter of Hadassah, and Mrs. Nathan Wallack, president of the Jewish Consumptives Relief Society.

More Than 600 In Attendance

More than 600 members and guests attended the tea. The affair had been announced as a silver tea, but it was not one at which the guests were expected to make contributions. The "silver" indicated the decorative theme. Four large tea tables were set downstairs, all appointed with silver service, napkins and silver ornaments. In the auditorium another table was arranged at which the guests of honor were seated, with Mrs. Morris Gewirz, the president, presiding.

A play entitled "Waiting" was presented by the adult education and dramatic groups of the auxiliary, under the direction of Mrs. Hyde G. Buller, co-chairman with Mrs. Zal Diamond, of the dramatic group.

The chairman of hostesses for the afternoon was Mrs. Eli Silberstein.

Democratic Wives From Both Houses To Be Feted Today

Mrs. Morris Sheppard, chairman of the membership committee of the Woman's National Democratic Club, is in charge of the luncheon to be given at club headquarters today by the members of her committee and the board of governors in honor of the wives of the new Democratic members of the Senate and House.

Mrs. Loren Johnson, chairman of the House committee of the club, is assisting in plans for the luncheon, which is to be a purely social affair with no speaker. There will be about 40 guests.

Will Honor Governor

The Governor of South Carolina and Mrs. Burnet Maybank will be honor guests at a dinner and reception to be given March 10 at the Shoreham by members of the South Carolina State Society.

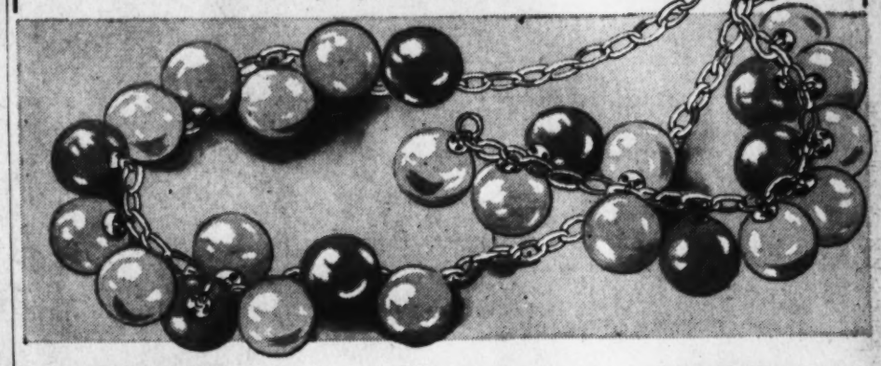

Before his election as Governor, Mr. Maybank was mayor of Charleston.

Fr. Walsh Likens Nazis To Marxists

Hitler 'Divides The Human Race Vertically,' Says Georgetown Regent

Nazi leaders are moving "toward a pathological state of permanent madness," the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president and regent of the school of foreign service of Georgetown University said last night in the second of ten public lectures. He spoke at Memorial Continental Hall.

Success at Munich, he said, "has proved a heady wine" for Adolph Hitler. Though the German government "had a long catalog of legitimate grievances against Versailles," he added, "the unbalanced and disproportionate estimate of the Germanic destiny in world history now being resurrected and restated by Herr Hitler is transforming a valid premise into a fixed idea," driving Nazi leaders toward "permanent madness."

Likened to Bolshevism

Hitler, he explained "divides the human race vertically," cutting through all class distinctions and invoking "the test of racial affiliation under which the so-called Aryan blood group is proclaimed the highest achievement of human nature and the Teutonic branch the highest expression of that exclusive superiority."

"Hence," Dr. Walsh said, "the persecution of the Jews, the attack on Catholics whose religious faith must ever remain hostile to a narrow racism, and the enslavement of the Protestant churches in Germany to the regimented pattern of the dictator's chauvinism. The Nazi dictatorship, consequently, differs only in objective from the Bolshevik program.

"One attacks ruthlessly from the left to deify a class, the other from the right to canonize a race. Both would trample human liberty on the way and both are equally unacceptable to Christianity and democracy. Both rely on hatred as an instrument of power and neither will hesitate to use force, falsehood and ferocity."

Points to Bund Rally

Dr. Walsh saw the recent riot at a Nazi Bund meeting in New York as "a conflict transplanted to these shores" which was "more than a police problem or an obstruction to traffic."

Madison Square Garden, he said, "practically became a beleaguered fortress occupied by the American section of the Nazi Party in the uniforms and military formation of Mr. Hitler's shock troops. While the Bund, which is a private army within the American democracy, criticized and abused American institutions, another army sought to force entrance and come to grips with the booted and belted Nazis. It required a third army of 1,500 New York policemen . . . to hold the adjacent territory for the free circulation of peaceful citizens of the United States engaged in their lawful pursuits."

This conflict, he concluded, "means that cool heads are needed on the bridge of our ship of state and steady hands at the wheel of our international relations."

Capital News In Brief

A Couple of Gigglers

Police of the public relations squad descended on the 1200 block of G street northwest last night ready to protect to the last ditch the interests of battered democracy. They had been informed, over the phone by an excited feminine voice, there was a Nazi Bund meeting there and war veterans were marching thither.

They found the designated address dark and deserted and, in a nearby window, two young giggling women.

Pickpockets Will Learn

At least three veteran purse filchers learned yesterday not to underestimate their time-honored enemy, the "harness bulls."

Private G. L. Heath, of First Precinct Station, was told by a passing citizen that there were three suspicious characters at the corner of Fourteenth street and New York avenue. He selected a spot to keep an eye on them.

The criminals saw him, but showed slight concern, for they joined in the rush for a street car, jostled with the rest, and came out with a wallet. At which point, Private Heath arrested all three.

Burned in a kitchen accident February 7, Rose Thomas, 34, colored, of 1300 Twenty-second street northwest, succumbed at Emergency Hospital yesterday. Her dress caught fire at the home of Mrs. John N. Swartzell, 2725 Thirty-sixth place northwest.

D. C. Man Last Person Pope Decorated

Murphy, of Cathloic U., And Baltimorean Made Knights of St. Gregory

Frederick Vernon Murphy, head of the department of architecture at Catholic University, is one of two Americans made knights commander of the Order of St. Gregory the Great by Pope Pius XI, Archbishop Michael J. Curley will announce in the Catholic Review March 3. He was the last of two persons to be decorated by name by the late Pope.

Also decorated was William L. Galvin, Baltimore attorney.

Murphy will receive the knighthood for his work as an architect, especially for the Apostolic Delegate, having designed many Catholic churches, besides buildings here. Galvin is legal adviser to the Archbishopric and is a trustee of Catholic University.

Archbishop Curley will confer the decorations at a time to be announced.

Murphy, born February 16, 1879, at Fond du Lac, Wis., was a student at Columbian College (now George Washington University), 1899-1901, and at the Ecole des Beaux Arts, Paris, France, in 1909. He has been head of the Catholic University department of architecture since 1910.

He is a member of the board of consultants for the Municipal Center here, associate architect for the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, a director of Allied Architects, Inc., and a member of the design committee for the new House Office Building, the new National Museum and the new Naval Hospital.

He was decorated a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor by the French Government in 1929.

Law Limits Flights of Pigeons, Bees

No wild animal "nor its progeny" may be kept or displayed within the District except by special permit of police. The ruling issued yesterday by the Commissioners following an investigation included other decrees.

It is illegal for bees to buzz within 500 feet of a home; and pigeons that "run, fly or stray" within 50 feet of residences are specifically breaking the law.

Dogs are banned from private property unless permission is first obtained from the owners. However, by special mandate of Congress, licensed dogs have the run of the city, except at certain defined times. Barking dogs are a personal matter and should be dealt with by the affected neighbors.

All fowl and pigeon permits must be renewed within 30 days, but homing pigeons escape the edict. As to licensing cats, the investigating committee "encountered no public interest on this point."

Father-and-Son Banquet Hears Rep. Voorhis

Californian Urges A Stronger Faith In 'Eternal Values'

Today more than ever before humanity needs a stronger faith in "eternal values," Representative Voorhis (Democrat), of California, said last night at National Baptist Memorial Church, Sixteenth street and Columbia road northwest.

Addressing the annual city-wide Father-Son banquet sponsored by the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A., the legislator said his hobbies were "boys, baseball and American history." George E. Harris served as toastmaster.

"We, as fathers and sons, have to be a bigger people, a more understanding people and a farther-seeing people than we've ever been before," declared Congressman Voorhis, "and we need a deeper, more abiding and stirring faith than we've ever had before."

Interested in boys for many years, Representative Voorhis served as headmaster of the Voorhis School in California until 1938, when the school plant was given to the State as an outright gift by the Voorhis family.

Preceding the address, the fathers and sons joined in rousing songs led by William Schumucker, with Ronald Morgan at the piano. Other entertainment was provided by Jack McColley and the Beard School of Music. Women of the church served the dinner.

Among the special guests were Page McK. Etchison and L. W. De Gast, religious work director and general secretary, respectively, of the Y. M. C. A.; Ward Barrick, city-wide boys' work director of the "Y;" Dr. Gove C. Johnson, pastor of the host church; several members of the Y. M. C. A. staff, and others.

Bar Told U.S. Legal Service Is Misused

Special Interests' Attorneys Gain Unfair Advantage, Says Ramspeck

"Special interests" have delegated their own attorneys to brief service in Government agencies regulating business in order to obtain valuable information for private use, Representative Robert Ramspeck (Democrat), of Georgia, charged last night.

The chairman of the House Civil Service Committee, speaking before a Federal Bar Association conference in the Commerce Department auditorium, warned that civil service regulation of the Federal legal service is necessary to check the abuse.

"It is imperative for the public interest that this practice be prevented," he declared.

Answers Objections

Replying to objections which he said had been raised against the proposal for extending the merit system to Government attorneys, Ramspeck said the regulations he advocated would be flexible enough to enable any agency to obtain men qualified in specialized branches of the law.

The assertion that United States attorneys in the various judicial districts must be free to choose their own aides is answered, he said, by the common complaint of Federal judges that their courts must virtually suspend business for several months whenever a new slate of Federal attorneys and marshals is installed, until the new officials have mastered court routine.

Would Choose on Merit

Ramspect said, "I don't always agree with the idealists who would do away with the apportionment system and always appoint the top man on the eligible list, but I do believe in filling all non-policy making positions with capable officials chosen on their merits.

"I visualize a Government service made up for experts," he concluded, "people ready to devote their lives to their country in civil positions. The national welfare depends today, as never before, on our ability to staff our Government with men who can make democracy work."

Kennedy May Yield on School Board

Says He Likes Other Phases of Griffenhagen Plan

With public hearing dates on the Griffenhagen plan for reorganization of the District government to be set Tuesday at a meeting of the House sub-committee in charge, Chairman Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, declared last night he is willing to compromise on administration plans proposed for both the Board of Education and the public library system.

"If we can be shown that the present administrative plans are best and those in charge are willing to come part of the way in making changes and effecting economies, then certainly we will be for that. We are not wedded to the plan, so much we cannot accept changes," he said.

His statement followed a conference with Henry I. Quinn, attorney, who resigned from the District Board of Education in order to fight the Griffenhagen proposal to make that agency "dependent," and with Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools.

"I am willing," Kennedy asserted, "to allow both the Board of Education and the Board of Library Trustees to remain independent boards under the new setup—if opponents of the Griffenhagen plan will show me good reasons why the present plan is best.

"I hope those who are fighting specific portions of the plan are not attempting to scrap the whole thing. If only 60 or 70 per cent of the Griffenhagen program is adopted I believe taxpayers will be saved several hundred thousand dollars each year, and the present form of government much improved."

Irish Veterans Open Own Drive For D. C. Stadium

District of Columbia Post No. 17, Irish War Veterans, last night unanimously voted to sponsor a campaign of their own to urge Congress to appropriate for the largest stadium in the United States to be built in Washington.

The Post also called on H. Scott Shaw, national legislative officer of the Irish War Veterans, to see members of the House and Senate for this purpose. It further authorized Edward Tierney, member of the national board of directors, Irish War Veterans, to urge the other 50 posts of this national organization to aid by writing their Congressmen and Senators.

Miss Overton Urges Adopting Father's Plan

Burroughs Citizens Hear Explanation Of Fiscal Formula

Adoption of the Overton formula for Federal financial assistance of the District Government was urged last night by Miss Katherine Overton, daughter of Senator John H. Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, sponsor of the plan.

In an address before the Burroughs Citizens Association, Miss Overton pointed out that the "formula recommends itself because it is very 'uncomplicated' and would permit the District Government to know in advance how much financial support to expect from the Federal treasury."

The plan, she said, provides for payment by the Federal Government of a portion of the expenses of the District administration. The amount paid would be a percentage of the District expense equal to the percentage of land owned here by the Federal Government.

Miss Overton emphasized "there would be no overhead and no annual wrangle for District appropriations, as is now the rule."

"Congress wants to do the right thing for the District, but it doesn't know what will be the policy best serving the interests of both the country and the residents of the National Capital," she added.

Arthur Bernstein, chairman of the research committee of the Citizens Committee for Fair Taxation, spoke in opposition to the proposed sales tax.

He charged such a tax would be difficult to administer and would be detrimental to local wholesale and retail interests.

President Robert Snow presided.

Anacostia Citizens

The Anacostia Citizens Association, meeting in Anacostia Junior Senior High School, last night adapted a motion urging scientific examinations of drunk drivers involved in accidents or speed cases.

"This would decrease the number of accidents and would certainly act as a warning to those drivers who insist upon drinking and driving their automobiles at the same time," said Stanley E. Otto, association president.

The association also voted to donate $5 to the Metropolitan Police Boys Club. R. J. Hellmuth was appointed chairman of the police and fire department committee.

Pet Sparrow That Warbles Is A.W.O.L.

Kota, singing English sparrow pet of Mrs. Clifford Nesbitt, of 1862 Ingleside Terrace, is A. W. O. L. The bird has not come home to sleep in his paper bag and to have his morning orange juice for three nights.

Mrs. Nesbitt adopted Kota two years ago when she found the fledgling hopping along the sidewalk. "He's been with us ever since," Mrs. Nesbitt said. In fact, so attached is the chirper that he fearlessly goes along on train or auto trips and frequently bursts out with song. Most times, though, he likes to sing to piano or radio accompaniment.

Mrs. Nesbitt fears Kota got four or five blocks away and doesn't know his way home. And as to finding Kota—well, "he looks just like any other sparrow."

Slum Plans In D. C. Face 50% Slow-up

Bill of Rep. Ludlow Provides $500,000, Only Half of Amount Ihlder Requested

Slum clearance in the District faced a 50 per cent "slow up" order yesterday, when the $1,000,000 loan recommended for the Alley Dwelling Authority by the Budget Bureau was cut in half in the Treasury-Postoffice appropriations bill reported to the House by Representative Ludlow (Democrat), of Indiana.

In an economy speech accompanying his report, Representative Ludlow made it clear that $500,000 for a continuation of the program was recommended only because the "work has been started" and the sub-committee in charge of hearings had been much impressed by "the director of the program, John Ihlder."

Ihlder, executive officer of the ADA, said last night he did not know what the authority's next move would be, but declared that if only the $500,000 was forthcoming "the slum clearance part of our program will be simply cut in two."

Agency Has $6,000,000

The loan was made in compliance with an act of last June, which authorized that "working capital" could be loaned to the authority at the present Federal rate of interest. The $1,000,000 estimate was in accordance with the size of the land buying and clearing program already under way. The agency has approximately $6,000,000 with which to build low-cost housing projects.

"There hardly would be money enough in the world," Representative Ludlow said, "to give every city money for slum clearance. It appears evident that the project, since it is entirely local, should be financed—at least in part—by local funds."

In contrast to the cutting down that characterized the bill, the Budget Bureau's estimate of $3,000,000 to fight venereal disease in the Nation during the next year was hiked to $5,000,000.

Buildings Provided

Chairman Ludlow declared this disease fight "not only good health but good preparedness." "We don't need battleships any more than we need health. This $5,000,000 is but one-sixteenth the cost of a battleship," he said.

The bill also provided $8,000,000 to be applied on social security building, $5,000,000 for the new building of the War Department, and $2,800,000 to complete the annex to the Government Printing Office.

The Rev. Acton Is Ordained by Bishop Freeman

The Rev. Nathaniel C. Acton, curate of St. John's Episcopal Church, was ordained to the priesthood yesterday by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington.

Presented by Dr. Oliver J. Hart, rector of St. John's, the Rev. Mr. Acton heard the ordination message delivered from the lips of the Rev. George H. Toop, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Apostles, of Philadelphia.

Among the participating clergymen were two former classmates of the Rev. Mr. Acton at Virginia Theological Seminary. They were the Rev. Joseph A. Hauber, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, Silver Spring, and the Rev. Boyd Howard, of Trinity Church, Arlington. Others were Canon Raymond L. Wolven, the Bishop's chaplain, and the Rev. William Curtis White, S.T.M., and the Rev. Florian C. J. Vurpillot, D.D., curates at St. John's.

First Ringling Bros. Clown Is Writing Music Here at 78

[This series is about men and women 70 or older who are finding that so-called "old-age" is really a lot of fun. They still are producing and getting a big thrill out of their work or hobbies. You know some qualifiers. Tell us who they are.—Editor's note.]

By Gerald G. Gross.

In an unpretentious third-floor apartment at 1819 G street northwest, there is a kindly little white-haired man whose dignified reserve belies the fact that he was the Ringling brothers' first clown.

He writes music today, hoping to find a publisher for his violin compositions, ever looking forward, instead of being content to spend his declining years raking over old memories of a thrill-packed past in show business. He is Mart W. Zielie and some of you who are over 40, and have a good memory of things theatrical may recall the name as that of the leading man in the first road-show production you ever saw of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" or "Trilby."

Practically every branch of the amusement business—grand opera, musical comedy, minstrels, drama, circus—of the era before radio and the talking screen had been covered by Mart Zielie when illness forced his retirement about 12 years ago. He has been living ever since in Washington, laboring diligently at a new career, hoping that it is not yet too late to blossom forth as a composer at the age of 78.

His Sister Is His Severest Critic

"My sister is my severest critic," he says laughing. "If I write something she likes, she'll say so but if it is not to her taste, she will say so too. Take the piece I'm working on now, for example. This morning I asked her what she thought of it. She replied, 'I'd burn it up.'"

He and his sister, Mrs. Thomas Maskell, have been making their home together since the death of her husband two years ago. The Maskells, too, were veterans of show business, he as an actor and she as a pianist. The talkies threw his sister out of work, says Mr. Zielie, but she is still in the theater: As an employe at one of the new neighborhood movies.

Every morning, before Mrs. Maskell goes to work, she sits down to the piano and Mr. Zielie picks up his violin and they go over whatever compositions happen to be in the embryonic stage at the moment. A heart that is "tricky, the doctor said" compels the retired trouper to remain indoors for the greater part of the day, giving him an opportunity to work uninterruptedly on his music.

His father wanted him to be a doctor. After studying medicine for one year, he chucked it and obtained paternal permission to enter the New England Conservatory of Music. His first job was with the Boston Ideal Opera Co. Shortly afterward, in the early 1880's, he played a season with one of the Ringling brothers' first traveling variety shows.

Last Survivor of Ringling's 1st Company

"It was before the Ringlings went under canvas," says Mr. Zielie. "They called their show the Ringling Bros. Concert and Novelty Co. the season I was with them and we played in halls, empty stores, hotel dining rooms and whatnot in the towns of Kansas and Nebraska. I sang, did a banjo number in blackface and had a clown specialty. To the best of my knowledge, I was the first clown with the brothers' show. And, as far as I know, I am the last survivor of that pioneer company."

For nine years Mr. Zielie was a minstrel man, playing with several different organizations, including Duprey & Benedict, "which was the biggest minstrel aggregation—80 men—ever to go on the road." In later years, when his singing voice failed, he went into dramatics, playing in Shakespearean repertory and "ten-twenty-thirty" melodramas. He has been Svengali in "Trilby," the hunchback heavy in Arthur Byron's "The Inside Track," the tramp in "The Old Homestead," to mention only a few of his parts.

MART W. ZIELIE

A company he played with many years ago had a $9-a-week property man who wanted very much to be an actor. One day the manager gave in to his pleading to be permitted to read a butler's off-stage line. The youth was supposed to announce a guest who had a fancy French name. When the time came, the property man got his tongue twisted in the unfamiliar nomenclature and, in exasperation, exclaimed, "What the h--- is this guy called!" The audience roared.

"That was the first time I was ever impressed by Lon Chaney," Mr. Zielie said with a smile.

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 24.—A rugged band of Maryland ringmen trudged over a rocky road strewn with upsets toward fistic laurels tonight, placing five hard-hitting representatives in the second round of the thirteenth annual Southern Conference boxing tournament, which opened before an enthusiastic audience of 1,500 fans.

It was a genuine bid the Terps made for their second conference crown, but tomorrow will bring the real test when they square off with a group of apparently evenly matched opponents for the right to enter the semifinals. South Carolina, a heavy favorite, was out in front of the pack at the end of tonight's milling, with six men qualified for the succeeding round, closely followed by the Terps, Clemson, The Citadel, North Carolina and Virginia Tech. Clemson and The Citadel already are assured of 3 points as a result of advancing two men to the semifinals.

Bradley Defeated

Maryland's colors were born to victory by George Dorr, 120 pounds; Ben Alperstein, 135 pounds; Nathan Askin, 145 pounds; Frank Cronin, 155 pounds, and Newton Cox, 165 pounds. Bob Bradley 127-pounder, fell by the wayside early in the evening, losing to Gennett, the favorite, from North Carolina, in an exceedingly close bout, which The Post score sheet gave to Bradley. Morton Steinbach, the Old Liners' light-heavyweight, was the other casualty, succumbing to Wilson, of Clemson, in a hard-fought duel.

Only one knockout was recorded, and one other knock down. Henry Covington, pudgy Clemson heavyweight, scored a surprise knockout over Ed Hubbard, the favorite, of North Carolina, felling him with a sickening left hook to the stomach after one minute and 49 seconds of battling in the first round. The other knockdown was credited to Alperstein, who floored Bill Bradley, of Clemson, with a left hook to the head in the third round of their bout to clinch the decision.

Loses Heartbreaker

Bradley lost a heartbreaker. The Post score sheet had him out in front at the finish, but Gennett forced the fighting throughout and was a trifle stronger at the finish. The Marylander fought cleverly and landed as many clean punches as his adversary. He let Gennett come to him, hooking him with a left and following with a jolting overhand right that found the mark more often than it missed.

Alperstein, boxing nicely, outjabbed and outmaneuvered Bradley during the first two rounds, and floored him with a potent left hook to the jaw in the final round to clinch the honors. Bradley, tall and muscular, dazzled Ben for a time, but when the intercollegiate featherweight champion brought his big guns into play he was too much for his less experienced opponent.

Fans Are Barred As Fives Battle For Court Title

Because of the prevalence of influenza, no one but players and coaches were permitted to witness the game, in which Illinois State Normal defeated Eastern State Teachers, 44 to 30, to clinch the Illinois Intercollegiate Conference Championship.

More than 40 of the Prep lads are turning out every day now for diamond drills. Ben Decker (below), the Little Hoyas' star athlete in every branch of sport, sneaks away for a set-up basket in a practice game. He's forward on the cage team, halfback on the football team, pitcher on the baseball team, and New Jersey State junior titlist in the 50-yard free-style swimming event. He started life, however, with a terrible handicap. A boiling pot of coffee almost forced the removal of his right arm at the age of 2

Georgetown Trails Throughout Second Half; Boyle Leads Winner's Attack; 4,000 See Clash; Villanova Wins

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 24.—Temple turned the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball Conference race into a mad scramble tonight by beating the first-place Georgetown quintet, 32 to 25, before 4,000 at Convention Hall. The game was the second of a doubleheader. Villanova beat New York University, 40 to 27, in the opener.

By virtue of its victory, Temple, defending champion, can tie for first by winning its two remaining games if Georgetown splints with Penn State and Pittsburgh.

Two baskets by Ed Boyle, who scored 17 points, broke an 8-8 tie to give Temple a 13-10 edge at half time. The Hoyas were behind, 29-19, late in the second half when Bole tossed in five points on two more goals and a foul to avert danger.

Georgetown scored first on a field goal by Kurtyka. Temple's McDermott made good on a free throw. Schmitt made it 3-1 for the Hoyas but Bowie Black evened it up at 3-all with a field goal. Rizzi's basket and a free throw by Kurtyka gave Georgetown a 6-3 advantage. Black's second basket and a free toss by McDermott tied the count at 6-all.

Black put the Owls ahead for the first time with a long shot but Rizzi knotted it at 8-all with a toss from the side. Two baskets by Ed Boyle gave Temple a 12-8 margin. Kurtyka's basket followed by Henderson's free throw for Temple gave the Owls a 13-10 halftime lead.

Howie Black and Ed Boyle counted three baskets between while Murphy put one in for the them early in the second period Hoyas to run the Temple margin to 19-12. Murphy counted from the floor, Murphy added a charity shot to make it 19-15. Boyle made it 21-15 as a near riot took place when Nicol, of Temple, and Kurtyka exchanged punches. Nobody was ejected from the game.

Rizzi scored for Georgetown, Boyle added two free shots for the Owls and it was 23-17, Temple with about 10 minutes to play. Kurtyka countde for the Hoyas and it was 23-19 Temple. Boyle was fouled as he scored and added a free throw. He added another from the side and Temple led 28-19.

Washington College Loses To Maryland

With the count 38-37 in Maryland's favor and two minutes to go, the Terps, led by Dewitt and Johnson, rang up nine points to put the game on ice.

It was Maryland's last game before the Southern Conference tourney at Raleigh, N. C., next Thursday, but Coach Burt Shipley made no effort to save his stars from overexertion as he did Wednesday against George Washington, when he kept the first-stringers out of the game most of the time because of the "slippery floor."

Eddie Johnson, son of the Big Train, starred for the Terps and led both teams in scoring with 17 points. Zebrowski was second high with 15 and Dewitt third with 13.

Washington College drew first blood with a two-pointer by Neubert, followed by a foul shot by Zebrowski. Johnson then rang up two baskets in a row for the Terps and from then until the closing minutes, the game was a nip-and-tuck affair, with the score being tied thrice. At half-time, the teams were deadlocked, 18-18.

Mako Winner Of His First Indoor Match

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 24.—Obviously enjoying his first appearance in the national indoor championship, Gene Mako, the country's second-ranking amateur tennis player, easily won his opening match today at the Seventh Regiment Armory as all of the second-round brackets were filled.

Mako, in routing Baron H. H. von Kohorn, of Japan, 6—3, 6—1, played in a variety of moods. One moment he would hit out with all of the considerable power at his command, and the next switch to a soft, cut-shot technique that would catch his aggressive little opponent off guard.

The big Los Angeles blond, No. 2 on the seeded list, was one of four favored players to win in straight sets. Frank J. Bowden, of New York, beaten finalist the last two years and seeded fourth, whipped Martin Dupraw, of White Plains, N. Y., 6—2, 6—2. Joey Fishbach, the St. John's University student who holds the national junior indoor title and is No. 6, eliminated Joel Adler, of Brooklyn, 6—0, 6—1, and Frank Froehling, of Chicago, Northwestern University captain, finally bested John Wendell, of Princeton, 7—5, 10—8, in a wild-eyed slugging match.

Woodward Defeats Fork Union, 20 to 12

A cage game that started out to be nip-and-tuck, developed into a walk-away for Woodward Prep yesterday on the Woodward court, as it defeated Fork Union quintet, 20-12. At the half, Woowdard was ahead only 8-6, but the scoring efforts of Greer and Ducey brought Woodward its sixth victory of the season in the second half.

Jimmy DeShong Is 'Waived Out' Grand Jury Loop

He was excused by Judge Paul N. Schaeffer, in charge of the investigation of primary election campaign charges against high Pennsylvania Democrats. It started December 15.

"It's been a great experience," DeShong said. He disclosed the women of the jury surprised him with a "baby shower" after they learned he is soon to be a father.

Georgetown Prep Quits Catholic Loop

Georgetown Prep, one of the schools in the District area which has long been included in the unofficial Catholic Prep Athletic League, yesterday decided to withdraw its teams from all competition with the other two schools in the conference, Gonzaga and St. John's.

Speaking for the higher school officials, Coach Ed Hargaden said his Wisconsin Avenue basketball team would not meet either of its former leaguemates this season, and that it was likely no baseball or football games would be scheduled with St. John's or Gonzaga in the future.

Hargaden's announcement came after an unsuccessful attempt to get coaches of the two teams to fill scheduled engagements this weekend. The Preppers had a game with St. John's slated for last night and a game with Gonzaga listed for tonight.

With the one purpose in mind, Hargaden attended the spectacular Johnny-Purple clash Thursday night, but the rival coaches refused to keep their dates. Both objected to playing on the Prep court, and playing so soon after the tough workout Thursday.

After offering to schedule home-and-home games, and being met with the same objections, Hargaden reported to his superiors and the decision was reached.

Ambers Stops Arizmendi In Eleventh

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 24.—Larruping Lou Ambers, a jitterbug with a jolt in both hands, stopped the rugged little Mexican, Baby Arizmendi, in 11 bloody rounds at Madison Square Garden tonight to clinch his right for a shot at the lightweight championship he once held.

Ambers weighed 135¾; Arizmendi, 136.

It was the first time in 13 years of campaigning that the "Baby" had failed to go the route.

Before a disappointing crowd of 8,837, who contributed to a gross gate of $19,365.60, the Herkimer (N. Y.) Hurricane gashed both his rival's eyes so badly that Referee Pete Hartley halted the proceedings at the advice of the New York State Athletic Commission physician, Dr. William Walker.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 24.

The young man who has baseball ambitions would do well to forget about his outcurve, and be not annoyed by his inability to field grounders to his right or left, as the case may be. If he wants to give himself a break he might try learning to be a catcher. They're scarce. At least in the big leagues.

POVICH.

That fact was pretty forcibly brought to attention the other day when a few of the boys were talking about All-Star teams. Clark Griffith joined the discussion. "You pick a team, Griff, and I'll pick one," suggested a correspondent. "Pick nine players out of the American League, one for each position. I'll give you first choice."

The choosing developed something like this:

Griffith: "I'll take DiMaggio."
Reporter: "I'll take Dickey."
Griffith: "Bob Feller's my pitcher."
Reporter: "Gomez, for me."
Griffith: "I'll take Gehringer for second base."
Reporter: "Jimmy Foxx."
Griffith: "Greenberg."
Reporter: "I need a second baseman. Make it Buddy Myer as long as you beat me to Gehringer."
Griffith: "Cronin's my shortstop."
Reporter: "Crosetti's mine. Travis will outhit him, but I still like Crosetti."
Griffith: "What do I need now? A third baseman? Make it Buddy Lewis."
Reporter: "Thanks for leaving me Red Rolfe."
Griffith: "Now what? Outfielders? DiMaggio's one. I'll take, well, lemme see. Make it Joe Vosmik."
Griffith: "My third outfielder? I'll take George Case."

Only One Real Catcher in League

Griffith: "I've got everything now but a catcher. You've got Dickey, you lucky stiff. Well, I'll take, er——. I'll take . . . Hey, what's this? You mean to say Dickey's the only good catcher in the whole league. Danged if I can think of any other one. Guess I'll have to make it Frankie Pytlak, of the Indians."

Which was the tip-off that outstanding catchers are, indeed, scarce. Nobody ever accused Frankie Pytlak of being better than a fair catcher, yet after Dickey he is as good as any other in the league. There's a terrific shortage of good catchers, it seems.

Except Dickey, and who do you have. Mopping up the rest of the East we find Rick Ferrell at Washington. He was a good catcher, never a great one, but he has slowed up perceptibly. He's the only big league catcher on the Washington staff. At Philadelphia, Connie Mack has the 35-year-old Earle Brucker, who has only been in the majors for two years, and Frank Hayes, who surely cannot be rated as even a good catcher. At Boston, Joe Cronin's No. 1 catcher is Gene DeSautels. He doesn't command a vote as an outstanding catcher.

Indian Backstops Are Tops in West

In the West, the two best backstops are with Cleveland. They're Frankie Pytlak and Rollie Hemsley. Pytlak is a comparative tyke who is agile and hits well, but not for distance and he is no great shucks as a thrower. Hemsley—well, it's five, two and even that he'll even show up for a scheduled game. He may have urgent business with a few cops. Mechanically, he catches well, and sometimes he hits well, but he can't be depended on.

The Tigers have a very acceptable receiver in the veteran Ray Hayworth, who does everything well except hit. But Hayworth by no stretch of the imagination could be classed as a great receiver, and that is obvious when the Tigers are attempting to convert the inept Rudy York into a catcher. The best catcher on the White Sox staff was 36-year-old Luke Sewell, before he was traded to the Dodgers this winter. And Sewell has scarcely been mentioned for anybody's all-star team. At St. Louis, the Browns' No. 1 catcher is Joe Glenn, Bill Dickey's former understudy. He's pretty good, but he's no star.

That catchers can be scarce has long been evident. Even the great Yankees of 1926-1927, with all the money needed at their command, were forced to operate with a distinctly inferior catching staff. Big Pat Collins was the best receiver they could corral for a pennant winning team and he never inspired any glowing pieces in the paper.

Cochrane vs. Dickey Argument

For a period of ten years, the American League could boast two of the finest catchers in all baseball history. But when Mickey Cochrane was beaned and nearly killed by one of Irving Hadley's fast balls three years ago, Bill Dickey was left in a class by himself as an outstanding catcher.

The Cochrane vs. Dickey argument will rage for years, incidentally. On no other subject are baseball folks as violently divided. One school of thought holds out for Dickey as the better catcher of the two, and another element just as emphatically believes that Cochrane was the superior catcher by far.

Of the greatness of both, there never has been any doubt. Dickey is the smoth artist that a great catcher is expected to be. No lost motion, a superb throwing arm, one of the most dangerous hitters in all baseball annals, an artisan at handling pitchers and tagging runners.

Cochrane was a bit differently typed. He was a fierce bundle of energy behind the bat. He intimidated both hitters and pitchers. His throwing arm was inferior to Dicky's, that's agreed. Mickey was never anything better than a fair thrower. But he was as good a hitter as Dickey, if not better. And as dangerous with men on bases. On base himself, he was a far greater threat than Dickey. He had speed that Dickey lacked. And no catcher who ever lived could scramble in front of the plate for the bunt and field it as speedily and surely as Cochrane. He had the advantage of bulk at the plate and could block a runner better than the Yankee receiver. All this leads up to the Povich Institute of Private Opinion vote that Mickey was a bit better catcher than Dickey.

Nats' Orlando Club Purchase Assures a Training Camp

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 24.—This city of 35,000 population in the heart of Florida's orange belt will be the spring training base of the Washington team for several more years, it was assured today when Clark Griffith added the Orlando franchise in the Florida State League to his farm system.

In a deal this morning with F. M. Coffey, Washington businessman who operated the Orlando Club, the Nats' owner purchased 51 per cent of the stock for an undisclosed price. It was a move to safeguard the Nats' situation in Orlando.

Terming as absurd published reports that Orlando's Chamber of Commerce was not keen to have the Nats return here, Griffith explained that his purchase of the local State league franchise was merely an attempt to solidify the Nats' position in Orlando.

"In organized baseball, there is a rule involving territorial rights," said Griffith. "If an owner unfriendly to the Washington club bought the Orlando team he might force us to move our camp out of the city and be within his rights. We were forced out of Tampa 12 years ago in that manner. I bought the Orlando club to guard against that possibility here."

The purchase of the Class D Orlando team presages the Nats' abandonment of St. Augustine as one of its farms. It is against the rules of organized baseball for one club to operate two teams in the same league. Disposal of St. Augustine's franchise will be made as soon as Griffith considers all bids. Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis approved the Nats' Orlando deal on the condition that Griffith accept a bid for the St. Augustine club.

Griffith has installed John Ganzel, native Orlandoan, as the general manager of the Nats' Orlando farm. Ganzel, who operated the club for Coffey last season, is a long-time friend of the Nats' owner and was one of his outfielders when Griffith managed the New York Yankees, then the Highlanders, from 1903-1908.

After taking over the management of the club in mid-season last year, Ganzel led the team from seventh place into the play-off for the pennant, despite the fact it was last in fielding and last in hitting. He averted a huge financial loss to the owner and finished the season with a moderate $1,800 deficit.

Eastern Meets Tech Tonight for Interhigh Cage Crown

More Than 4,000 Watch Semifinals At Tech High Gym

By Bill Burnett.

The riotous "Arcade days" of public high school basketball were recalled last night at Tech gym as the first round of the 1939 championship tournament was staged.

Eastern's defending champions, appropriately nicknamed the White Tide, bounced Woodrow Wilson out of a title chance, 38-26, as two players were warned for fist-swinging. And in the opening half of the double-header, McKinley's Mighty Midgets trounced Roosevelt, 27-19, despite the loss of Moe Shulman, sparkplug of the team, who was expelled from the game for taking a healthy cut at Roosevelt's George West.

Meet at 8:30 at Tech

With their victories, Eastern and Tech earned the right to meet one another at 8:30 tonight at Tech in the game that will decide the champion for this season. The losers, Roosevelt and Wilson, come together in a preliminary at 7:30 with the consolation prize at stake.

The comparatively wide margins of both victories failed to dampen the spectator's enjoyment. Tech, still enjoying the sizzling streak that brought it into the playoff after three straight losses to start its season, played the not-so-Rough Riders off their respective feet. And Eastern looked more like the team its array of imported stars should make it than at any other time this season.

Floor Is Slippery

In an effort to make the playing surface of Tech's court less slippery, janitors cleaned it thoroughly this week—and made it more slippery. All four teams floundered over the glass-smooth floor, the players often falling in helpless heaps to give the excitable crowd further cause for cheering.

After one quarter, Roosevelt was almost concededly the loser of its game with Tech. The Midgets led, 10-3, with Vic De Leon turning in four of the points. Roosevelt went scoreless in the second period, while Tech's Eli Blank and Moe Shulman lengthened their team's margin to 14-3.

A half-hearted rally in the last half brought Roosevelt within 8 points of its opponent late in the game but that was the closest it could get. Two plays before the final gun, Shulman felt that West was overguarding and stuck his fist in the Rider's face. He was quickly waved out by Referee Enright.

The Eastern-Wilson game was dominated by Bob Custer, transfer from Western, and "Bap" Battiste, transfer from St. John's. They scored 14 and 10 points respectively, while the whole team combined in one of the most brilliant passing games the series has seen.

After one quarter Eastern led, 10-3, and it increased that to 12-7 at the half. The Tide's lead varied between 16 and 10 points for the rest of the game. With less than 1 minute of the game remaining, an unidentified lady caused a postponement of hostilities as she walked unconcernedly down the middle of the floor.

American led, 23-18, at half and then in the fourth quarter when its advantage had been boosted to 38-26 it sent in its second team which almost succeeded in dissipating the ample lead.

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 24.—Clark Griffith hints he will be very firm with the four players who have not yet signed 1939 Washington contracts—Buddy Myer, Pete Appleton, Charley Gelbert and Jimmy DeShong . . . he has negotiated with all but DeShong . . . and of the latter he says, "Maybe he's going to retire," inferring that it would be no great set back if DeShong did just that . . . Bill Holland, rookie southpaw from Charlotte, is something of a pet of Griffith . . . after watching him work out in Charlotte one day last summer, Griffith asked his foster son, Calvin, who managed Charlotte, to let Holland start a game . . . Holland started that afternoon with the Nats' owner in the stands, and pitched a three-hitter in his debut . . . the Nats' rookies who are quartered in a local boarding house, declare the food served is so good that they would prefer not to move to the hotel where they have been ordered to live starting March 1 . . . Jimmy Wasdell, who sold scorecards in the Cleveland ball parks as a kid, was fired when caught shooting dice with other scorecard sellers under the stands . . . to the ball park foreman who fired him, Wasdell said: "I'll be back in this park, and my name will be on these big league scorecards." . . . he made good that promise last year . . . speaking of the latest edition of Who's Who in Baseball, Bob Burke failed to have his record incorporated in the book despite the fact he was with the Nats for eight years . . . Mike Martin is contemplating putting on the market his own special-concocted cure for athlete's foot . . . which has completely healed aggravated cases among Washington players within a few days . . . the largest advance sale for the opening game in the history of the Washington club is reported for the 1939 opener against the Yankees . . . that park was sold out for last year's opener despite the fact that the lowly A's were the attraction . . . the Charlotte team in the Piedmont League as the only Washington subsidiary to show a profit last year . . . Al Lopez carried away a sizeable check for his services of coaching Roberto Ortiz in the Nats camp for four days . . . "I started Lopez in baseball," says Clark Griffith . . . who forgets perhaps that he paid Lopez $5 a day as a batting practice catcher and refused to sign him to a contract.—POVICH

Blackhawks Win, 19 to 16, At Boys Club

Bearcats, Merchants, Cardinals, Comets Among Other Victors

Eleven basketball games were played last night at the Boys Clubs with almost every variety of contest resulting. The Northeast Ravens routed the S. E. Bearcats, 21-4, with Taylor starring. The N. E. Blackhawks, led by Essex's six points, took a 19-16 fall out of the Merrick five. The Northeast Cardinals turned back the Northeast Owls, 33-6, with all the regulars figuring in the scoring.

A Merrick team trounced the Neighborhood House, 31-13, with Lanbe contributing 10 field goals. The Southeast Quins swamped the Southeast Giants, 23-2, with T. Downs in the starring role. C. Errico, with 12 points, could not save the Southeast Merchants from a 29-24 defeat at the hands of the Northeast Red Birds. Georgetown Branch downed the Central Branch Senators, 29-16, as Pettit led the attack.

Lacey and Hoffman made six points each as the Cardinals defeated the Southeast Crows, 21-6. Merrick took another when their boys defeated the Hayes A. C., 45-28. The Georgetown Branch won from Southeast Dux, 29-18, with Collins, Pullman and Pettit doing the bulk of the scoring.

Army Favored Over Navy Today

Army's high-scoring quintet, one of the foremost powers in the East, will be a decided favorite to even its all-time series with Navy this afternoon as the strong service school rivals meet in the sixteenth renewal of their basketball rivalry at 2:30 o'clock at Annapolis.

Despite its recent loss to St. John's of Brooklyn and the prospect of playing without its captain, Walter Brinker, Army is held a 5-4 choice over the inconsistent Navy five. Should Brinker, who has been out with an injured back, be able to resume his place in the Soldiers' line-up the odds would lengthen in Army's favor.

Georgetown Frosh Win Eleventh, 60-21

The Georgetown Frosh basketball team chalked up its eleventh victory against one defeat this season last night by routing the American University Graduate Student five, 60-21, in the Hilltop gymnasium.

Towson Beats Wilson, 39-37, In Hard Battle

Victors Come From Behind to Defeat Washington Five

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Towson, Md., Feb. 24.— Towson Teachers College fought an uphill battle here tonight to nose out Wilson Teachers College, of Washington, D. C., 39-37, in a thrilling overtime battle.

The score was tied at 34-34 at the end of regulation time and the teams played an extra five-minute period. Brill's basket, a short shot, were the winning points for Towson.

Wilson led all the way until late in the final quarter when Towson started a rally which enabled it to take a lead for the first time. Lewis tied up the game for Wilson just before the final whistle. Wilson had a 20-13 advantage at half.

Charley Clark, Wilson's star forward, was the best individual player of the game, scoring 19 points.

Central Faces Stiff Battle In Tank Meet

Woodrow Wilson and Baltimore Poly Are Main Title Threats

Central tonight will face stiff competition as it attempts to defend its team championship in the annual South Atlantic High School swimming championships at Shoreham Hotel pool. Baltimore Poly and Woodrow Wilson loom as serious contenders.

The three appear practically even in the individual events and the title probably will be decided by the result of the relays.

Bob Bamman, Central star, is the favorite in the 100-yard backstroke. John Miller, Wilson, has defeated all rival sprinters and is expected to easily take the 50-yard free style. Ralph Bridges, Baltimore Poly, seems the class of the field in the 220-yard free style and also is counted on to offer stern opposition to Wilson's Miller in the 100-yard free style.

Other outstanding individuals are Harry Ryan, Mount St. Josephs, 100-yard breast stroke, and Jimmy Russell, Baltimore City College, fancy diving.

FBI Takes Lead In Heurich League

Federal Bureau of Investigation flashed its finest form of the season to gain undisputed possession of the Heurich Amateur Basketball League's leadership in the night-cap, 30 to 21. Beach provided the outstanding performance of the night when he scored ten times from scrimmage and six times from the free line to tie the 26-point individual scoring mark set by Ollie Tipton, of Dapper Dan, earlier in the season.

30 Boys Club Teams in A. A. U. Tournament

To those incubators of basketball, the Washington Boys Clubs, the District A. A. U. championship tournament is the World Series, the Kentucky Derby and the world heavyweight fight all rolled into one. As far as these youngsters are concerned, everything that has gone before this season means little. They have their eyes glued on those individual gold and silver medals and Washington Post trophies. At the four Boys Club centers players from the 90-pounders to the unlimiteds are sharpening their scoring eyes, checking their weights and otherwise preparing for the all-important titular play scheduled to begin at the new Eastern High gymnasium on March 6.

Thirty teams (count them) will represent the three branches and the central division of the Boys Club of Washington in the tournament. Charley Reynolds, director of athletics, made that announcement last night.

The coaches supervising these teams are Pete Yurwitz, former G. W. star, at Northeast branch; Mario Gregorio and Buddy Nau, former Central high aces, at Southeast; Paul Casassa, well known District athlete, at Georgetown, and Ollie Dryzer, former Boys Club star, at the Central gymnasium.

With the exception of Yurwitz these coaches are former players who gained valuable experience in A. A. U. tournaments. While many of their teams will be long shots to take down titles, the coaches expect them to acquire polish in the tournament play that will serve them well in future seasons.

While the Boys Club teams play a good brand of basketball, the championships will be decided on the playing floor and in this case the Eastern High gymnasium will be a neutral court. They realize that other boys' organizations throughout the city and in nearby Maryland and Virginia are concentrating on the tournament and that they will have to be at the top of their game to survive.

Demands for team entry blanks continued at a brisk rate at both The Post Sports Department and at the Washington Boys Club, Third and C streets northwest. Indications are that there will be a full representation in every class.

If your team has not obtained the necessary blanks, do so at once. The entries close at midnight on March 2 at the Boys Club. However, completed entries may be turned into the basketball editor at The Post Sports Department.

Don Meade Scores Another Hialeah Triple; Wins Feature

Ace Jockey Registers 65th Victory

Rides Little Miracle Home in Main Event; Lewis Racer Brings His Backers $8.60

By the Associated Press.

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 24.—Don Meade, the Nation's pacesetting jockey, had one of his big days here this afternoon. The squat veteran, adding to the brilliancy of his comeback campaign, rode his third straight winner of the card in the fifth race, a 6-furlong Grade C event, reporting three lengths on top with Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' Little Miracle.

Lady owners accounted for all the honors. Mrs. E. A. Sexton's Irish Moon, favorite in the field of six seasoned sprinters, outlasted Mrs. F. Rossiter's Marson by a head for the place. Little Miracle, winner of only one of her 16 starts last year and recently beaten off at this point, paid $8.60 for $2 and stepped past the wire in 1:11 2-5. The Bud Lerner mare showed the speed that marked some of her New York races.

Most of the chill that had accompanied strong winds here the past two days had disappeared this afternoon. Another large crowd visited the course.

Meade rushed Little Miracle into a wide lead. Her lead was almost wiped out when rival horses spurted around the bend, but Meade knew he had plenty of horse under him. He let out a wrap or two furning into the home lane and the mare easily bounded away from her opposition. Marson tired trying to keep up and bowed to rish Moon in the last few strides.

Hoyas, Terps Seek Honors In S. C. Meet

44 Schools Entered At Chapel Hill; Tech And Central to Vie

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Feb. 24.—The University of Maryland and Georgetown University both will be represented by 14 trackmen today as athletes from 44 institutions in seven States and the District of Columbia begin assaults on 27 records in four divisions of the annual Southern Conference indoor games at the Woollen Gymnasium here tomorrow afternoon and night.

Most promising among the seven varsity and seven freshman representatives of Georgetown is its one-mile varsity relay team which has won four of five meets this season and recently set a collegiate record at the N. Georgetown's other varsity hopefuls are Al Frey, relay and 880; Joe Kilcullen, shotput; Newmeyer, 70-yard hurdle; Braun, 880, and Alnwick, 70-yard sprint.

Maryland, ever a track power, will have a good chance to defend two titles and perhaps add others. MYRNA LEE went to the front with a rush entering the stretch, but faltered when challenged. READY-ABOUT, well up the entire trip, responded gamely to punishment and outlasted JEAN C. Flamingo Attracts 14 3-Year-Olds

Volitant, With Meade In Saddle, Probable Favorite at Post Time

Miami, Fla., Feb. 24 (AP).—Three hundred and fifty pink flamingoes and 14 leading 3-year-old horses will be on view at Hialeah Park tomorrow in the $20,000 added Flamingo Stakes.

The birds, which inhabit the infield lagoon, won't be actually in the race. They'll be herded around the course at post time as part of the fanfare attending the classic, known as the Florida Derby until 1937, which furnishes an early line on the entries for such events as the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness at Pimlico and the Belmont Stakes.

Carries 121 Pounds

The Woolford Farm, whose Lawrin captured the Flamingo last year and went on to win the derby, furnishes two entries for tomorrow's event in Inscoelda, champion 2-year-old filly of last year, and Technician, winner of two of his three starts at Hialeah.

The filly drew top weight of 121 pounds, one more than the Saratoga Stable's Volitant, which was considered a leading colt of last year. With Don Meade, the sensational comeback jockey, having the leg up, Volitant appeared likely to be the probable choice at post time.

Herbert M. Woolf's entry was the pre-race favorite at 8 to 5 with Volitant next in line at 3 to 1. Ira Hanford will ride Technician.

Wright Up On Get Off

Wayne Wright, who rode Brevity to a Flamingo victory in 1936 and Lawrin last year, will be up on the Glen Riddle Farm's Get Off. Earl Steffen, slated to ride the Maemere Farm's Maeda won on Court Scandal in 1937. Brevity set the track record for the mile and one-eighth in 1:48 1-5, then a world record, a mark which Stagehand tied last week in winning the Mc Lennan Memorial Handicap.

Other Flamingo entries are Timeful, of the Shay Brook Farm, Calumet Farm's Easy Mon, W. C. Stroube's Sirasia, Belair Stud's Jonarie, H. R. Bain's Stoney Brush, Greentree Stable's Day Off, Crescent Stable's Chalmac, Starmount Stable's Shambles and J. W. Parrish's Stockboard.

Right After This the Jockey Broke His Leg

The number "13" proved unlucky for the above novice jockey. E. Conlan, granted his license to ride February 13, is shown just before he toppled off the borse and broke his leg in the Imber Novices' Chase at Hurst Park, England. Conlan is standing with his foot in the stirrup just before he was thrown from "G. B." after a sharp jump

Dear Al:

Among other things, it looks as if we have lost Clocker Mike. I have checked all his favorite haunts, including the bingo game, and he just can't be found. I even sent Jockey Noboy Jacobs around to the Miami Public Library to see if Mike was there trying to find the word "winner" in a dictionary. I guess I'll use the old system of "leave him alone and he'll come home." R. L. (Peg) Hanna, the Washington, D. C., trainer, has a new job. W. S. Sprague, big paper manufacturer of Swarthmore, Pa., has joined the ranks of the Hialeah owners by purchasing Erada, the former jumper, which won over the turf course last Saturday. John Bosley, jr., sold Erada to the Pennsylvanian, who is a member of the Delaware Turf Club and a stockholder in the Delaware Park track. Sprague will add several other horses to his stable in the next few months. Many Washington fans will be pulling for Jacola to take down the big dough in the $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap on March 4. Jacola is about the nearest thing to a Washington horse in the race and made a big hit with District fans by his Maryland victories, which included a decision over Seabiscuit just before the latter downed War Admiral. Jacola is trained by Selby Burch, of the Capital City. The trainer and horse are on the scene. Jockey Maurice Peters, who has been riding in good form here, will leave soon for California to ride the filly, owned by Edward Friendly. Some of the mystery regarding the sudden quitting of Royal Pam in that recent race was cleared up today when Trainer Johnny Ward said that the filly had bucked her shins. This mishap kept her out of tomorrow's Flamingo Stakes. The majority of young horses do this, and she should be back in action within a couple of weeks. Jockey Don Meade is going to shift over to the Havana track for one day on Sunday, March 5, to ride in a stake race at Oriental Park. He will return to Florida the following day. The race is the $5,000 Havana City Handicap, and a number of horses will be shipped over from Hialeah for the event. Post time for the first race at Hialeah on Widener Day, a week from tomorrow, will be 1:45 o'clock. Get 'em in early, fellows. BILL.

First race—What Hae breaks off the rail and will have Eddie Arcaro in the saddle. I expect this pair to be away winging and in front at the end. Graeme Cracker, teamed with Balcony as the Strawbridge entry, deserves attention due to the light impost of 104 pounds. Chancer is a fair sort and should be a factor.

Second race—I'm going to take one more flier at Flying Orphan. This cheap fellow closes well in all his races and the mile and a quarter of this may be right up his alley. Package has a recent good effort as a recommendation. Golden X. will go good despite the 120 pounds.

Third race—Calexico, with Meade up, seems well placed in this sprint. I see no reason for mistakes. Slave Song was scratched today with this in mind and is dangerous. Jinx Buster is considered better than that last.

Four race—Cruis had trouble in a recent race and if he gets clear sailing here he will be close if not the winner. San Antioca is good now and should be prominent. Lourdes, in with feather weight, may get in the money circle.

Fifth race—The mile and a half of this seems to suit Weary Flower although he meets a good field. This fast-closer gets the light weight of the party and Nash is better than a green hand in the saddle. Grandever will have Meade aboard and promises to do a lot of running. Cisneros for the show end.

Sixth race—The Woolford Farm entry of Inscoelda and Technician appears to have the Flamingo Stakes at its mercy. Both are fit as hands make horses and need only a share of racing luck. Volitant will have Meade to do the riding and will battle it out to the end. Shambles went South as a little regarded 3-year-old but can close like the wind and is a possible surprise.

Seventh race—Sargazo, one that the Marvel Ratings put over recently at boxcar odds, seems capable of repeating in this rather good field. Xavier gets only 111 pounds and is due to be a threat. Malano's last was a beaut.

Eighth race—Alter Ego probably needed that last. Should like the turf course and the 1½ mile route is not too much when this one is right. Manhattan is an in-and-outer but is in light. Old Story for the show award.

Best Bet—Woolford Farm Entry.

Howard Horses Dominate $100,000 Race

Sorteado and Kayak II Favored in Rich Anita Handicap ThisAfternoon

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Feb. 24.—Shorn of much of its color when the mighty Seabiscuit abdicated his throne for the rest of the winter, the racing picture at Santa Anita was dominated today by two immigrants from the Argentine, Sorteado and Kayak II.

C. S. Howard, genuinely upset when he had to announce that the 'Biscuit would have to pass up his third and last try at the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap March 4, had some measure of consolation in knowing that he owns the highly favored Sorteado and Kayak II.

Seabiscuit was the last of the "big three" to leave the handicap ranks here. Stagehand, the 1938 winner, was taken to Florida, and Dauber, the third high-weighted eligible for the Santa Anita, bowed to a bowed tendon.

There's a third Argentine threat, Ligaroti, which is sort of in the family, since Dr. Howard's son, Lin, and Bing Crosby, own him, and he, too, is well weighted at 122 pounds.

Sorteado gets his final big test tomorrow. He was one of 20 named today to run in the $10,000 San Antonio Handicap at a mile and one furlong, and will pack 118 pounds. Ligaroti is slated to go, too, at 120 pounds, the top figure.

There will be strong opposition, however, with Gosum in at 110, Heelfly at 106. Today, the horse that hung up a new track record in the race that brought defeat and lameness to Seabiscuit last February 14, goes at 111, and Whichcee, at 109, may prove a distinct surprise.

Jacola, flashy filly, and Cravat, Mrs. Townsend B. Martin's 4-year-old, were named to make their initial appearance at Santa Anita. Cravat will carry 118 pounds and Jacola, 117.

Others named were Frexo, Congressman, War Minstrel, No Dice, Sweepalot, Wild Turkey, Olimpo, Bourbon King, Flying Lee, Quick Devil Ossabaw and Honey Cloud.

$40,000,000 Issue Planned By Texas Corp.

Oil Debentures Will Be for Raising of New Capital

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 24.—Texas Corp. plans to file with the Securities and Exchange Commission within the next few weeks a registration statement for a new issue of $40,000,000 20-year 3 per cent debentures, Dillon, Read & Co., investment bankers, announced today.

The issue will be one of the first new capital flotations by a large borrower in recent months. Most offerings to hit capital markets recently have been refunding issues, to replace high coupon bonds with issues bearing lower interest rates, rather than securities designed specifically for the raising of new capital funds.

Proceeds of sale of the debentures, the banking firm said, will be used by Texas Corp. "for the development of the company's business here and abroad."

Dillon, Read the Bankers

Dillon, Read, the announcement said, will head the group of underwriters for the forthcoming issue. The Dillon, Read firm handled the $80,000,000 15-year 3½ per cent debenture flotation by Texas Corp. in 1936. In February, 1937, Texas Corp. added $62,240,000 to capital funds through sale of 1,558,894 shares of common stock to shareholders at $40 a share.

Texas Corp., an oil concern, has producing, refining and distributing facilities in this country, South America, Europe and the Far East.

It owns, jointly with Standard Oil of California, the California Texas Oil Co. with production and refining capacity on the Bahrein Islands. It also owns, jointly with Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., Columbian Petroleum Corp. and South American Gulf Oil Co. substantial oil reserves in Colombia and a refinery and pipe line facilities now in process of completion there.

New Financing

New financing for the week ended yesterday was $8,911,750, of which 90 per cent was new money, Poor's Publishing Co. reported today.

N. Y. Banks Favor Saturday Holidays

New York, Feb. 24 (AP).—A majority of nearly 2 to 1 in favor of the so-called Quinn bill in the New York State Legislature, which would make Saturdays in the months of July and August legal holidays, was indicated today in a poll of banks which are members of the State Bankers Association.

Of 735 banks, members of the association, 534 voted on the question. Of this number 340 voted in favor of the Quinn bill and 194 in opposition.

Of 62 counties in the State, 45 showed a majority of banks in favor of the July and August holidays. In 4 counties the vote was a tie and in 13 counties majority expressed opposition.

Stocks Inaugurate Brisk and Broad Advance in the Expectation That the Government Will Go Easy With Business

New York, Feb. 24.—Wall Street apparently believed that Secretary Hopkins' speech would be even more favorable for business than recent utterances by the President and Secretary Morgenthau. This, at least, was accepted as the chief reason for the most buoyant security markets in several weeks. Listed stocks, in broad and more active dealings, advanced to the best levels since January 21, while turnover of 967,390 shares was the largest since February 6.

Bonds were strong in all departments, eight Treasury issues achieving new highs, while carrier liens added 1 to 3 points in some cases. Foreign exchanges again moved up in dollar terms, with the exception of Dutch which dropped to a two-and-a-half-year low. Sterling's fractional rise established a 1939 high. Wheat and cotton were steady within a narrow range.

Leaders Are Strong

Recovery in share prices was in evidence from the start. Overnight gains were substantial in a number of pivotals and leadership was better than in recent markets, with aircrafts prominent and the most active list, including such old favorites as Steel common, General Motors, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Kennecott and Montgomery Ward. The total of 814 listed stocks traded was around 150 more than in recent dull days, 620 recording gains against only 75 declines and 119 unchanged. The composite of the 100 key stocks ended 0.98 point higher, the 70 industrials adding 1.07 and the 30 rails, 0.75.

Rail equipments, steels, motors, manufacturing and high grade rails along with many of the merchandising stocks contributed most to the comeback which differed from other plus sessions in February in that trading momentum was inclined to increase as quotations lifted. Among the 63 individual issues which were at new top prices for the year or longer were Cluett Peaboby, Eastern Air Lines, Lorillard, Glenn Martin, McCrory, McIntyre Porcupine, New York Omnibus, United Fruit and Universal Pictures first preferred. Westinghouse, Union Pacific, American Can, Atchison, du Pont, Great Northern preferred and Sears, Roebuck were ahead 2 to 3 points at the close while advances of a point or more were recorded by Anaconda, General Electric, Goodyear, General Motors, Public Service of New Jersey, Republic Steel and Pennsylvania Railroad.

The showing of copper stocks was considered good in the face of desultory metal markets. Sentiment in the group probably was encouraged, however, by further predictions that fabricators have permitted inventories to reach such low levels that they must needs become buyers soon.

Bonds Active and Higher

Listed bond trading was cheerful today, and a slight expansion of trading accompanied the upswing. High-grade investment bonds were marked slightly higher and the usual assortment of fresh highs appeared. Among speculative railroad and other bonds the trend was more decidedly toward improvement. Gains ranged from fractions to 2 points in the active issues, while a few inactive bonds showed larger advances. Foreign dollar issues also attracted more attention. Turnover was $6,670,000.

Opinion of Treasury bond experts is veering on the March financing, with more observers of the opinion that no new money borrowing will be done. Accordingly, more interest was taken today in outstanding issues, which showed gains of 1-32 to 5-32 point, and eight fresh highs. The guaranteed issues of the Farm and Home Corporations were firm. Telephone bonds advanced fractionally in the corporate section, and small gains were numerous also in power and light, rail and industrial bonds of best ratings.

Medium-priced railroad bonds were marked higher by fractions to 2 points. The better rated liens that long have been depressed showed the largest advances. Borderline rails likewise advanced easily, and even the default carrier bonds were in modest demand. Alleghany Corporation issues were stable, while utility holding bonds reflected good inquiry. Local tractions were a bright spot, and most other special groups also improved.

High grade foreign dollar bonds reflected thrifty buying, which apparently originates in the London market. Italian issues did well, but the Japanese group remained dull. German bonds led a modest upswing in the European default section, but Latin-American default bonds were quiet and irregular.

FCA Cuts Loan Rate To 1½ Per Cent

By the Associated Press.

The Farm Credit Administration reduced the loan and discount rate of its 12 intermediate credit banks to 1½ per cent yesterday.

The FCA said this rate, which was 3 per cent five years ago, permitted the 535 local production credit associations to reduce their rate of interest on agricultural production loans from 5 to 4½ per cent. Members of production credit associations, the FCA said, should save approximately $800,000 this year on the basis of the new rate.

Grain Prices Mark Time In Dull Day

Fluctuations in Wheat and Corn Restricted to ¼ Cent

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Feb. 24.—Grain prices were almost motionless today in one of the dullest markets on record. Fluctuations held to a ¼ cent range in the wheat and corn pits.

The wheat market reflected limited selling balanced by small buying orders, mostly from milling interests. The ⅛-⅜ cent higher close at Liverpool imparted some strength to wheat here and reports of better flour business in the Southwest, where some of the buying apparently originated, accounted also for support. Indications of modest revival of corn export demand together with strength in securities were stabilizing factors.

Wheat closed ¼ lower to ⅛ higher compared with yesterday, May 68⅝-½, July 68⅝; corn unchanged to ¼ down, May 49⅜-½, July 50⅝; Oats and rye ⅛-⅜ lower; lard unchanged to 3 higher.

March Cotton Futures Gain Four Points

New York, Feb. 24 (AP).—Evening up of contracts gave the march position a wider premium over other cotton futures in a narrow market today. March had a closing gain of 4 points, with the balence of the list up 3 points to 1 point down.

Traders and virtually everyone else in the cotton trade continued to follow with avid interest Washington accounts of Agricultural Committee hearings on proposals for bolstering the staple's position.

A point drawing special attention was the charge of Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, that cotton speculators, short of the market, were seeking to bring about release of Government loan cotton to depress the price. This came in conjunction with reports that the committee was seeking information on the extent of the short account in the New York market.

March closed 6.73; May, 6.97; July, 7.09; September, †7.18; October, †7.18. Crude oil was quoted 5⅝ cents in the Southeast and Valley and 5½@5⅝ in Texas.

Living Costs Slip Lower In January

New York, Feb. 24.—The cost of living of wage earners in the United States declined 0.5 per cent from December to January, because of decreases in the cost of food, clothing and gas and electricity, according to the regular monthly survey made by the statistical division of the Industrial Conference Board. Living costs in January, 1939, were 2.4 per cent lower than in January, 1938, 14.4 lower than in January, 1929, but 19.1 higher than at the low point of 1933.

Food prices declined 1.4 per cent from December to January, bringing them to a level 3.4 per cent below that of January, 1938, 24.5 per cent below that of January, 1929, but 29.6 per cent above the 1933 low point.

Rents averaged the same in January as in December. They were 2.3 per cent lower than a year ago, 6.3 per cent lower than in January, 1929, but 37.5 per cent higher than at the beginning of 1934, their low point.

Clothing prices in January were 0.4 per cent lower than in December, 5.2 per cent lower than in January, 1938, 26.8 per cent lower than in January, 1929, but 19.8 per cent higher than at the low of 1933.

Coal prices did not change from December to January. They were 0.5 per cent lower than in January, 1938, and 8.2 per cent lower than in January, 1929. The cost of gas and electricity, data concerning which are collected semiannually, was 0.3 per cent lower in January, 1939, than in July, 1938, primarily because of the decline in the index of electricity rates. The combined gas and electricity index in January, 1939, was 11.0 per cent lower than in January, 1929.

The purchasing value of the dollar in January was 0.4 per cent higher than in December, 2.4 per cent higher than in January, 1938, and 16.9 per cent higher than in January, 1929.

Gold imports totaled $73,508,377 in the week ended February 17—about $12,000,000 less than that which came in the preceding week, but still about three times the January average.

The Commerce Department said shipments received during the week included $11,123,924 from the Netherlands; $3,840,000 from Sweden; $53,192,052 from England and $2,698,544 from Canada. Silver imports amounted to $1,400,719, including $891,506 from Mexico.

Goodyear to Modernize Akron Factories

Akron, Ohio, Feb. 24 (AP).—Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. announced today a $3,000,000 program to modernize its Akron factories.

Directors already have approved $1,800,000 worth of the program and company engineers are working out plans for the remainder of the improvements, said Clifton C. Slusser, vice president in charge of production. The first step, a $50,000 expenditure for new vulcanizers, has been under way the past few weeks.

Retail Trade Works Higher During Week

Despite Spotliness Gains Average From 1 to 4 Per Cent

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 24.—Despite an uneven and spotty showing, "the past week's retail trade averages gains of 1 to 4 per cent over the like period last year, said Dun & Bradstreet today in their weekly business review.

A lag in the eastern region continued to pull down the sales average for the country, with some metropolitan centers recording decreases of as much as 12 per cent. Business in general, asserted the review, showed a tendency to flatten out after the sharp upswing in the previous week.

"Intensive advertising helped to maintain consumer interest in home furnishings and appliances, but retailers reported frequently that February sales of furniture and household goods as a whole were not up to expectations, despite the attractive prices offered.

Weather Fluctuations

"Extremes in temperature during the week made the showing of apparel departments particularly spotty; Saturday was a good day for these lines in most cities but sales for the full week were somewhat lower than in the preceding period."

In wholesale markets, continued the review, "housefurnishings, apparel and electrical appliances comprised the bulk of orders placed during the week. As fill-in orders increased somewhat trade succeeded in maintaining an 8 to 14 per cent margin of gain over the dull period a year ago despite the lack of forward purchasing.

"Wholesalers were encouraged by the volume of orders sent in by road salesmen calling for shipment within 30-60 days; the emphasis on early delivery was considered a sign of low inventories in the hands of country merchants."

London, Feb. 24.—Traders in the stock market took a more optimistic view of the European political situation today and prices closed firm. Copper, rubber and oil securities also sold higher, while British funds and transatlantics remained quiet but steady.

Paris—French rentes gained 15 to 50 centimes in the bourse today and Bank of France and Royal Dutch were up 50 francs. Suez Canal lost more than 400 francs.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

"My partner and I had much discussion (not too acrimonious) over a hand in which the opponents took a sacrifice, went set only one trick for a 200-point penalty, and won the rubber the next hand," writes Maj. B. A. D. "It was a most profitable save," he continues, "as we had a lay-down small slam for about a 15-point rubber, but actually we lost a six.

"He claims I should have made a forcing pass instead of doubling; this I don't deny, but I claim he should have shown the club fit either by "four clubs' instead of 'four hearts' or by 'five clubs' after my double. Anyway, what would you consider the proper bidding by North-South; we are both interested."

Today's Hand

Both Sides Vulnerable
EAST DEALER

	♠ 732 ♡ AQ 10642 ◇ 5 ♣ QJ10
♠ AKQ 64 ♡ J75 ◇ 1084 ♣ 95	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ J985 ♡ 3 ◇ KQJ 63 ♣ 862
	♠ 10 ♡ K98 ◇ A972 ♣ AK743

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♣	1 ♠	2 ♡
2 ♠	3 ♡	Pass	4 ♡
4 ♠	Dbl.	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: Q ♣

The hand and the bidding by Maj. B. A. D. and his partner are shown in today's box. It is a difficult slam to reach. The North and South cards fit like a hand to a glove, and were it not for the two singletons, the slam could not be made.

Five hearts certainly should be reached, and South must shoulder the major portion of the blame for doubling prematurely. Nor can he expect North to bail him out. After East's four-spade call, he can bid five hearts himself. The very least he should do is to pass the decision to North; the double is very poor.

North probably should take out the double because of his six-card heart suit and club strength, but he cannot be severely criticized for failing to do so as South's double is a warning not to bid further. Also a four-club bid from North earlier would go a long way toward reaching the maximum contract. The bidding might go like this:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	1 ♠	2 ♡
2 ♠	3 ♡	Pass	4 ♣
4 ♠	5 ♡	Pass	6 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

THE story goes that Lincoln went by train to Gettysburg and while letting his eyes idle out the window dashed off the famous Gettysburg Address. Yesterday, FCC Chairman McNinch started for his home State, North Carolina, to speak last night in Charlotte on the heavy theme, "Democracy Faces the Future," and like Lincoln he will have to write his address on the train. It was unfinished when he left here. The only difference in situation was that Lincoln, in heading for Gettysburg, was going to a battlefild; Chairman McNinch, of the FCC, will be heading away from one.

THE renowned Agriculture Chorus has taken this column's suggestion (made when the show, "A Nightmare After the Opera," had packed them in for nine repeat performances) and hired a public hall—has gone professional. It's the first time, so far as we know, that an amateur Government group ever turned to the pursuit of the hard dollar on public request. They appear, featuring the Men's Ballet, at the Willard Hotel Ballroom the night of March 4.

THIS column mentioned the other day that Alexander Woollcott was coming here, on request of Dr. F. M. Davenport, of the Personnel Council, to speak informally to a group of Government internes. Then the phone started ringing and people wanted to know where Woollcott would speak, when and where they could get a ticket. It won't be public. We're sorry for having started it.

WHEN-it-rains-it-pours department: Things had been pretty quiet over here, said the man in the Office of Indian Affairs. Pretty quiet. But the Shoshones came in this week to see something about that $4,500,000 the courts awarded them. The Arapahoes moved in some time ago on land the Shoshones said belonged to them, and the suit started. Say, the Arapahoes are visiting us here, too. And by the way, some Osages came in yesterday from Oklahoma. With them is Joe Mathews, as suave an Indian as you ever saw. Owns some oil lands and went to Oxford. Dashed off a couple of novels, you know. Say, I almost forgot to mention that a delegation of Menominees is here from Wisconsin. They operate a mill out there and have a long problem to talk here about. And, before it's forgotten, the Hopi's are coming in next week.

ADD the united front, or peace-on-earth department: Headline in the "Federal Record," official organ of the U. F. W. A. (C. I. O.): "The A. F. G. E. (A. F. of L.) Puts Up, Backs Down, and Shuts Up."

THE Federal press agent sits a-thinking: Here is a swell story. It's gone out to many papers, but they didn't use it because the Government—that vague quantity—makes us write stuff so unattractively the paper editors won't read it, and if they don't read it they certainly won't use it. The story could be sold to some national magazine, but if this is brought to attention of the chief, he would make me do the writing, then would sign it and get the check. Let's forget the possibilities.

RESEARCHES magnificent: While digging up dope for the radio programs, "Americans All—Immigrants All," the girl in the Office of Education discovers that America's symbol of simple living—gingham—was a gift to America from China, the land of the deepest simple living.

THEY say the WPA is about to hire some social service experts to speed up the firing. This hiring for the firing is some sort of new-fangled governmental paradox—just the sort of flower that would sprout in that incredible place over there.

AGAIN to the Agriculture Chorus. The cast, at the first professional performance, will include: Prudence Jackson, Hilda Nelson, May Delle Sandstrom, Katherine Warren, Theresa Hammelman, Alpha Knight, Doris Menter, Fred Fetter, jr., Ralph Marston, Walter Redit, Allan Robey, Vincent Carels, Roy Gray, Saul Hearn, John Wilson, Rolla Currie, Robert Freund, jr., Joel Winkjer, the "Heine Sisters" and Victor Neal

Bob Burns Says—

They tried to enforce an old 1898 curfew law up in Cambridge, Mass., the other night an' when a factory whistle blew, orderin' all kiddies under 14 off the streets, there was the derndest racket cut loose you ever heard. Firebells, automobile horns an' firecrackers! Why, it even woke up all the adults who'd gone to bed! An' they tell me more children appeared on the streets than the townspeople thought they had! The kids was all up an' dressed after 9 o'clock which was somethin' scandalous. They booed the policemen who tried to take 'em home an' tuck 'em into bed. An' some of 'em showed the officers notes from their parents sayin' they could stay out till later if they wanted to. Whether them notes was forged or not, the poor policemen couldn't tell, but they had one dickens of a time doin' anythin' with the younger generation.

Say, this all takes me back to the day of my childhood. I kin hear that old curfew bell a-ringin' yet. An' it jes' seemed like I wouldn't no more than git started kissin' my girl goodnight before it would commence. Then, one night, I discovered my girl wasn't lettin' me kiss her till time for the curfew to ring. So, next day, I sneaked in an' tied up the bell! So let me git in a printed word to the wise—if you don't want kids to git too "rambumptious," don't clamp the old curfew down on 'em too tight.

Bedtime Story

By Thornton W. Burgess.

An Appetite Lost

There's nothing like a sudden fright
—Blacky the Crow.

This is true. Blacky knows whereof he speaks. A feast may cause a loss of appetite through satisfying it, but fright will cause the loss of it much more quickly and quite as completely. It is queer about that, but it is so.

As Blacky alighted on a branch just above a big snow-covered nest high in a leafless tree in the Green Forest he looked down on a white mound. It was the nest of Hooty the Great Horned Owl. Blacky suspected that buried under that snow were at least two eggs, for although it was still winter he knew that those two big Owls had recently built that nest and begun housekeeping. He was sure that the storm the night before, a real blizzard, must have driven Hooty and Mrs. Hooty to seek shelter somewhere for there was none here.

Then just as Blacky was about to dig down in the snow for those eggs something terrible happened. An apparition appeared. The snow opened and out of it was thrust a big round head with feathered eartufts, a hooked bill that was being snapped in a manner most unpleasant to listen to, and a pair of big round yellow eyes that glared up at him so savagely that for a second Blacky was quite paralyzed with fright.

Then with a half-chocked squawk of sheer terror he toppled over backward and fell as Mrs. Hooty stood up to her full height, sending the snow that had covered her in all directions in a powdery cloud. Blacky fell only a little way before catching himself. You should have seen him work those black wings of his then! He was one scared Crow, was Blacky. He knew now that what had seemed an apparition was real, altogether too real. There was no doubt about it. Mrs. Hooty must have spent the night on that nest protecting and keeping warm her precious eggs after all. And he, who had thought to find a breakfast in that nest, had all but furnished a breakfast, instead of getting one.

It was, in fact, not yet certain that he would not furnish one, for even as he frantically left that tree, intent on getting away from that neighborhood as far as possible, as quickly as possible, a great, dark form launched itself out from a fir tree and on big, broad, noiseless wings headed straight for him. It was Hooty.

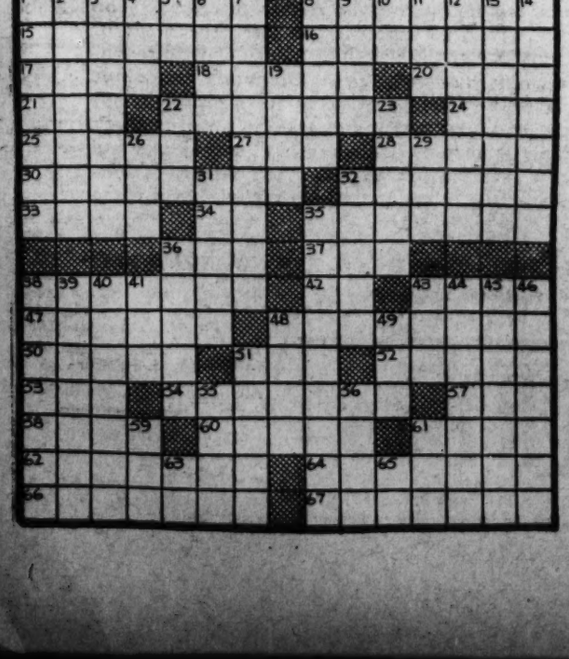

"Awk!" cried Blacky, in a half-strangled voice, and then made no more sound. He couldn't. He needed all his breath for what was before him. He was flying for his life. Yes, sir, Blacky the Crow was flying for his life and none too sure that he could escape.

Hooty the Horned Owl is big, with great broad wings. He does not look cut out for speed or for quick turning in the air, but in these matters he is likely to fool people. It was astonishing, and to Blacky it was terrifying, the manner in which he twisted and turned, and the speed with which he flew as he dodged in and out among the trees almost at Blacky's tail. Meanwhile Mrs. Hooty stood on the edge of the nest watching.

At last Blacky reached a thick clump of young spruce trees. Recklessly he plunged in among their closely grown branches. They whipped against him and hurt. They loosened several black feathers that floated out and down. Blacky didn't care. He could get through here, while Hooty with his larger size and great broad wings couldn't. That is, he couldn't get through in a hurry. Blacky worked his way into the thickest growth and there he hid, breathless, shaking with fright.

Meanwhile Hooty alighted close at hand snapping his bill angrily as he tried to locate just where Blacky was, and think of some way to drive him out into the open again. Blacky had forgotten that he had been hungry and had started out early to get a breakfast so as to be ahead of others. He had lost his appetite.

Kennedy Asked To End Impasse Over Palestine

Ambassador's Aid Sought by American Jewish Delegates

Special Dispatch to The Post.

London, Feb. 24.—Two American delegates to the Palestine round table conference today called upon Ambassador Kennedy to ask his intervention in the three-way deadlock between the Jews, Arabs and the British government on the future of the "twice promised land"—Palestine.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, leader of the American Zionists, and Louis Lipsky, member of the executive council of the Jewish agency and editor of New Palestine, visited Kennedy in the third week of the "abortive" talks among Jews, Arabs and Whitehall officials. The talk will continue next week to let the British government present its own plans for peace in the Holy Land.

Most of the Jews are profoundly dissatisfied with the progress of the talks thus far. The Jewish delegation holds that Britain's promise of the promised land under the Palestine mandate and the good will of the democracies will at least balance the temptation to satisfy the Arabs who know they can call on the dictators, at the expense of the Jews.

Again this afternoon Arabs and Jews sat down in St. James's Palace for a two-hour "general discussion" of their rival claims.

Yesterday's meeting between the two parties, the first time Jews and Arabs had officially talked together since 1919, when the Jews signed a good-will treaty in London with Amir Feisal Ibn Hussein of the Hedjaz, passed off peacefully—but with a grim indication to the Jewish delegates that the Arabs intended to persist in their claims for an "independent state."

Today's two-party confab dealt with "matters of procedure" and followed two meetings of the Jewish delegates at the London headquarters of the Jewish agency and the appeal to Kennedy.

In 1889, in Los Angeles, he was chief engineer of the Los Angeles Cable Road Co., building its original street car system. Later he built electric street railroad and interurban transportation systems. In 1903, Col. In 1916, Col. Van Vleck became supervising engineer and naval architect of the U. S. Army Transport Service and was retired in 1935. He was commissioned a lieutenant colonel in the Reserve Corps.

He was a pioneer in replacement of coal by oil as propulsion fuel.

French Woman Musician Lauds U. S. Artists

MME. NADIA BOULANGER

Says Nation's Culture Will Become More Characteristic Later

The United States has a culture all its own which will become more characteristic and individual as the country grows older, Mme. Nadia Boulanger, eminent French musician who will be guest conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra Sunday, declared yesterday.

"America has a culture representative of the American character and life and it is constantly being enriched by the products of young artists of the United States," she said.

Refusing to talk about "anything personal," Mme. Boulanger explained that "the composer is everything and the artist only interprets the music as it is written."

"Artists such as Shakespeare, who are strongly nationalistic in their work, reach such a high plane of achievement that their products have universal appeal," Mme. Boulanger stated.

"France has been extremely honored," she continued, "by the desire of great artists to live on French soil and to make their compositions a part of the cultural life of their adopted country."

Mme. Boulanger expressed amazement when told that Marion Anderson has not been permitted to sing in any of the larger concert halls of the National Capital.

"Is it true?" she asked. "Why, Marion Anderson is one of the greatest artists of our day and I admire her very much."

Mme. Boulanger, who has conducted the Boston Symphony and the New York Philharmonic Orchestras, said she hoped on her stay in the United States to conduct the playing of compositions by such Americans as Gail Kubic, Barbara Trask, Harrington Shortall and Theodore Chanler.

Labor Board Upsets UMW on Contract Breach

By the United Press.

The National Labor Relations Board ruled last night that a breach of contract by an employer is not a violation of the Wagner act.

This new principle of labor law was laid down by the NLRB in deciding that a United Mine Workers strike against the Sixth Vein Coal Corporation, Madisonville, Ky., was not caused by "unfair labor practices" of the company.

The board overruled U. M. W. A. contentions that the company's refusal to continue operating under a valid labor contract was a violation of the labor relations statute. It said that "respondent's breach of contract did not constitute an unfair labor practice within the meaning of the act."

The ruling was coupled with a sweeping decision against the Sixth Vein company and three other western Kentucky coal producers whose closed-shop, check-off contracts with the unaffiliated Independent miners union were invalidated. The four companies were told by the board to reinstate 350 discharged miners.

The board's ruling was against the Sixth Vein Co., the Williams Coal Co., Mannington, Ky.; the Reinecke Coal Mining Co., Madisonville, Ky.; the Grapevine Coal Co., Madisonville, Ky., and the Operators Association, a group of 19 coal producers in Chester, Hopkins and Union counties, Ky.

Won't Quit Law Guild, Say Arnold, Frank

Pecora's Charge of Communist Domination Denied by Vincent

Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold and Securities and Exchange Commissioner Jerome Frank were among National Lawyers' Guild leaders who yesterday denied they would resign, as predicted Thursday by New York Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora in charging Communist domination of the guild, officials reported.

Merle Vincent, president of the guild's Washington chapter, denouncing Pecora's charges as "baseless," and the dispute as a "one-man mutiny," called a special meeting Monday night to re-establish the guild's opposition to "dictatorships."

Frank said neither he, Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson, nor Arnold had resigned. He said that in view of the "seriousness of the charges," he felt it necessary to make an investigation before taking any action.

Other officials who denied they would resign included Judge William H. Holly, of Chicago; Judge Michael Igoe, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals; Walter Fisher, Chicago lawyer, and Prof. Malcolm Sharp, of the University of Chicago; Mortimer Riemer, secretary of the National Lawyer's Guild reported.

Riemer said he had received only one of the predicted hundreds of resignations. He declared that Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the New York State Power Authority, had resigned but believed he had done so under a misapprehension.

In calling the Monday meeting of the Washington chapter Vincent said "statements that the Guild is dominated by Communists is the same kind of slander that is leveled at every one who stands for constructive legislation to protect the rights of farmers and laborers."

"Dictatorships are one of the things we are fighting against, and as long as there are any defenders of dictatorships in this country to fight there will be a National Lawyer's Guild," he said.

Roosevelt Overrides Navy SelectionBoard

1916 Law Ignored As Oil Specialist Becomes Admiral

President Roosevelt has overruled a naval selection board and appointed, in disregard to law, a Navy captain to be rear admiral, it was learned yesterday.

STUART

Acting without precedent and in contravention of the Navy's long standing selection board procedure, the President elevated Capt. Harry A. Stuart, director of Naval Petroleum Reserves, to rear admiral. Mr. Roosevelt ignored a 1916 law, reaffirmed by Congress last year, requiring that all promotions in the Navy be made from a list of officers prepared by the selection board. Capt. Stuart was passed over by the board last year.

The nomination was sent to the Senate several days ago along with appointments made in the usual course. Naval officials said the President's action came as a surprise, although they had been seeking some way to keep Capt. Stuart in active service beyond this June, when he reaches the age limit for his present rank. He has been in charge of the Navy's oil reserves for years and will be difficult to replace, it was said.

While reluctant to discuss the matter, ranking officers obviously were not pleased. Conceding Capt. Stuart's ability and special qualifications, they did not like to see the selection board procedure, applying to all promotions above junior lieutenant, broken down in this manner. They pointed out that under existing conditions only about one out of every four captains may be selected for rear admiral and that consequently every year many outstanding officers fail of promotion and must retire.

The nomination has been before the Senate Naval Affairs Committee for several days and under the group's rules will be reported back to the Senate on Monday with a recommendation that it be confirmed, unless a protest is registered. Ordinarily, committee attaches said, nominations go through in this manner without consideration.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Washington National Ballet presents the second of a series of intimate ballet evenings on Friday in the King-Smith Playhouse. Program: "In a Park" (music by Schumann), "Poeme" (music by Chopin), "Not Quite Cinderella" (music by Edward C. Potter), "Friska" (music by Johann Strauss 2d).

Working under the disadvantages of a small stage and a limited space for spectators, the Washington National Ballet goes hopefully forward, sustained by the ideal upon which ambition is concentrated. The second performance of the group directed by Lisa Gardiner was witnessed last evening by as many encouraging patrons as could find room in the King-Smith Playhouse, and the entertainment demonstrated the spirit of collaboration which animates the dancers.

The crux of the program was Edward C. Potter's "Not Quite Cinderella," a lively and humorous perversion of the fairy tale, with choreography by Miss Gardiner. The Washington Composers Club is lending a helping hand to the enterprise, and Mr. Potter is the second member to contribute his talent this season. His music is vivacious, melodically attractive, and witty, even when inadequately heard through the medium of piano and violin.

"In a Park," the opening divertissement, presented a series of episodes to the music of Schumann's "Papillons." This was followed by "Poeme," a fantasy about a poet whose mood of despair over elusive rhymes is dissipated by a visit from Inspiration herself. The miming was done to various compositions by Chopin, upon whom dancers rely entirely too much. As far as ballet is concerned, the last word in the adaptation of Chopin's music was spoken in "'Les Sylphides," and after that there is nothing more to be said.

Traveler Predicts Japanese Will Stay on Hainan

Because of its rich tin deposits, the Japanese never will give up Hainan voluntarily, Nicol Smith, who le dan expedition through the island, said last night in a motion picture lecture for the National Geographic Society in Constitution Hall.

Japanese occupation of the island, separated from China's southernmost peninsula, Luichow, by a 15-mile strait, aroused protests from France because of Hainan's proximity to French Indo-China. It also is comparatively close to the Philippines and Singapore.

Inter-American Library Group Hears Talk by Chilean Writer

Cultural collaboration among American countries that was emphasized at the two-day session of the Inter-American Bibliographical and Library Association in its second convention here was emphasized last night.

Members of the association attended virtually in a body a meeting under auspices of the Charge d'Affaires of Chile, Sergio Huneeus, in the Hall of Heroes, Pan American Union, at which Senorita Gabriela Mistral, Chilean writer, talked about the "human geography" of Chile.

Resolutions favoring closer technical collaboration in bibliography between American countries were adopted by the association at a meeting at the Raleigh Hotel in the afternoon. The association called attention of the State Department to advisability of establishing in each Latin American country a collection of works by representative United States writers.

Dr. Roscoe R. Hill, of the classifications division, National Archives, presided at the morning session. Dr. Salmon de La Felva, spoke in the afternoon.

Ways of preserving and disseminating important works through photographic and other scientific means were discussed by Cuthbert Lee, director, American Documentation Institute; G. A. Schwegmann, director of the union catalog, Library of Congress, and others.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Just get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a reliable "WOMAN'S" tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and those disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life.
